Important Italian News.
Gold Still Going Up.
The President, and Criticism.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 21.

He spoke for Russia, and especially for Stalin, Russia's real ruler. Stalin stays in the background, letting Kalinin and others speak according to his instructions, as the New York Central Railroad used to stand in the background, letting Chauncey Depew speak for it.

If any real trouble comes you will hear Stalin, speaking for himself, plainly.

ITALIAN NEWSPAPERS, including Mussolini's Popolo d'Italia, suggest that Italy may withdraw from the League of Nations, considering the fact that Germany and Japan have withdrawn, and that Russia and the United States are not members.

What Mussolini thinks of the League he expressed briefly:

"Its very principle is absurd."

Europe will ask whether Italy's withdrawal from the League means a possible combination with Germany.

GOLD WENT up again, the dollar fell. Stocks went up, as usual when the dollar drops. The "market" is a see-saw, stocks on one end, dollars on the other.

BUT DON'T worry too much about your dollar, always bearing in mind that no matter what Europe thinks of it, our dollar will buy anything in the United States and things you need are all to be found here.

WHY WASTE your time worrying about "inflation?"

Suppose the government should issue, five, ten, fifteen or twenty-five billion dollars of so-called "inflated money."

What of it? In good times the nation's income is ninety billions. If a man had ninety thousand dollars a year income you would not mind his issuing notes for twenty-five thousand. He would still be solvent.

GEESE WILL tell you:

"Yes, but once embark on inflation, and there is no end. Look at Germany after the war, at France at the end of the eighteenth century."

Why not, nearer home? Look at Abraham Lincoln, who financed his war successfully with greenbacks. That was "inflation."

If anybody tells you "once you inflate five billions, you are sure to continue and inflate five hundred billions," you may reply:

"The fact that I drink a glass of beer, or even a glass of champagne, does not necessarily mean that I shall immediately swallow a gallon of gin."

YOU MAY be sure the President has a definite plan in adding to the nation's gold "rabbit's foot hidden away in Washington.

Perhaps the gold buying idea is to put the dollar down.

PERHAPS THE idea is to let the rest of the world see that while we may be off the gold basis, we have the gold, and are buying more of it.

In any case, what we are doing about money annoys Europe seriously. And whatever annoys Europe is apt to be good for the United States.

When Europe sees a shooting star, load of hay, or eyelash on the cheek, she does not use it to wish luck for us.

SOME GENTLEMEN preferring that somebody else do their thinking, have nervous spasms over anything remotely indicating criticism of the administration, any suggestion that some idea advanced by the administration might possibly not work out as hoped.

It should comfort the spasm specialists to learn that far from objecting to criticism or suggestions, President Roosevelt, a man of brains and character, desires both.

"I heard the President say he was dumbfounded by the almost unanimous support given to his program by the American press. He graciously acknowledged this as of infinite value to the administration and the country, but he made a significant statement:

"He said: 'But there is a fly in the ointment, gentlemen. Where is your criticism? You know the government can make mistakes, and this program is too vast an undertaking for any one man or set of men to be sure of. We are certain to make blunders. I can rely on you newspapermen to check us.

"'If you see us going wrong, for goodness' sake sing out about it. There is no kindness in flattering a wrong cause. I want your criticism as well as your support. It is the best kind of backing, and the only request I make is that you be prompt about it.'"

THAT IS how the President feels. He wants no chorus of unending praise, as in Revelations, where everything is perfect.

THEFT CHARGED TO BRIDEGROOM

An 18-year-old bride of two weeks witnessed the crash of her wedded bliss in North Side Police Court today when she heard her husband branded an ex-convict and accused of the theft of articles totaling several thousand dollars from more than two score offices in the North Side and Downtown districts.

The husband, Leonard Van Berkle, 22, of 510 Sundusky street, police-styled ex-convict, was held for court by Police Magistrate Raymond Schneider. Police accuse him of more than 50 thefts from the offices of dentists and physicians.

Three others, Andrew Perka, 31, of McFarland road, Dormont, a jeweler; Howard Dolyak, 27, of Bellevue, and Stanley Podvorec, of 420 East Ohio street, were held for court charged with receiving stolen goods.

Police said that the girl, Margaret Mechem, who eloped to Washington, Pa., following a four-day courtship, did not know of her husband's prison record until it was revealed in Police Court.

Settle, Fordney Land In Swamp Near Bridgeton, N. J.

BRIDGETON, N. J., Nov. 21.—(AP.)—America's first stratosphere balloon jolted to rest in the marsh land southwest of Bridgeton at 5:50 p. m. yesterday.

As hundreds of persons searched the pine woods, cranberry bogs and cultivated farms in Southern New Jersey, Lieut. Commander T. G. W. (Tex) Settle and his aide, Maj. Chester L. Fordney, slept the night through wrapped up in the deflated fabric of their big balloon, awaiting daybreak.

At 8:44 a. m., Maj. Fordney trudged through the marsh lands, walking until 9:30 a. m., when he reached the farm house of S. N. Johnson, nine miles southwest of Bridgeton.

TELLS OF TRIUMPH

Fordney calmly announced to the startled farmer:

"I'm hungry and I'd like to use the telephone."

Then he took up the telephone and notified the world of the balloonists' triumph. The Major said:

"We had a delightful and untoward trip, except that we came down so fast we had to throw things overboard as fast as we could to lighten ship.

"Although it was a pretty rapid landing, neither of us was hurt. We took our bearings, saw we were in marshy ground, surrounded by woods, and that it would be best just to put up for the night. So we got out of the gondola, wrapped up in the balloon and slept for the night.

"Leaving 'Tex' to stand watch over the balloon, I struck out for civilization at 8:44."

SOARED 11 MILES

As he talked the Major was helping himself to a breakfast of fried ham, potatoes and black coffee. Meanwhile, by telephone, he was relaying cross-country the details of the balloonists' experiences as they soared 11 miles above the earth yesterday.

According to the altimeter within the gondola, Maj. Fordney said the highest altitude reached was 59,000 feet, but the actual height attained must be officially checked.

The major said that Commander

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 21.—(AP.)—It's a big stern-wheel packet and it huffs and puffs up and down the Ohio and the Kanawha rivers, but the trip it makes today comes under the head of a "turkey trot."

DESTITUTE GET FIRST JOBS

Relief Recipients to Be Employed Before Others

Allegheny County's machinery for putting thousands of unemployed to work on civil works projects with its share of the $400,000,000 Federal CWA fund moved ahead today with these pronouncements by the advisory council of the Federal-State Employment Office here:

1—Between now and December 1, CWA employment will be given only to those on the relief rolls of the Allegheny County Emergency Association as of November 15.

2—Applications for work by unemployed who are not on the relief rolls, however, may be made between now and December 1 at the Federal-State Employment Office, 108 Smithfield street, or at any of the three sub job offices tentatively scheduled for outlying districts of the county.

3—Beginning December 1, CWA work will be distributed between those taken from relief roll and the registered unemployed.

The advisory council was called by Maj. H. F. Bucher, director of the local employment office, through which all CWA jobs will be provided.

PITTSBURGH ACTS

Emphasis was placed on the fact that Pittsburgh, alone in the county has proposed CWA projects for presentation to James L. Stuart, county Civil Works administrator, and the council urged "other cities boroughs and townships to hasten preparation of employment proposals."

Such proposed works schemes must first be approved by County Administrator Stuart, then finally approved by Eric Biddle, State

Pittsburgh Girl Grapples School Dormitory Prowler

Slashed by Intruder Few Hours After Music Recital.

A few hours after her initial recital at Peabody Conservatory, Baltimore, pretty 19-year-old Esther Kiefer, piano student, of 1904 Beaver avenue, was stabbed in the arm by a Negro who had prowled into her dormitory room, according an an Associated Press dispatch today.

Miss Kiefer was reading when she saw the introducer's reflection in a mirror. When she screamed the Negro either threw or struck her arm with a pair of scissors, inflicting as light wound.

He escaped. Police found the cellar door of the dormitory had been forced.

Miss Kiefer is a graduate of Oliver High School. Before entering Peabody a year ago, she attended the Pittsburgh Musical Institute, where her sister, Erma Kiefer, is an instructor.

Her mother, Mrs. Freda Kiefer, said today she received a letter from the Conservatory yesterday congratulating her upon her daughter appearing in a recital her first year at the school.

GOV. PINCHOT TO NAME MEMBERS

Showdown on Stores Bill Expected Tomorrow

State liquor control developments in Harrisburg today:

Gov. Pinchot and legislative leaders have agreed to substitute a state liquor control board for the Alcohol Permit Board to govern liquor sales.

Suggested for members of new board are John D. Pennington, Robert K. Cassett, of Philadelphia; former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips, of Butler; Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller and Henry Hornbostel, of Pittsburgh, Democrats demanding one member.

Final vote on Pinchot state stores bill expected tomorrow. Representatives Joseph G. Steedle and Clinton A. Sowers urging amendments to eliminate stores and turn sales to private business. If Pinchot bill passes House tomorrow Senate may be held until Friday for final action.

House committee to begin tonight investigation of charges of A. Leo Weil, Pittsburgh, that offers were made to Schenley Products Company "to control things" upon payment of money.

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Nov. 21.—As a first step toward eliminating the State Alocohol Permit Board—made up o fthree members of the Pinchot cabinet—from control over the proposed state liquor stores, restaurants and hotels, Representative James H. McClure, Allegheny, in the House today amended his bill to strike out all mention of the board.

As a substitute, McClure said, a separate bill would be introduced in the Senate tonight creating a Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board of three members, to be appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate by two-thirds vote.

This plan has the approval of Gov. Pinchot, Republican State Chairman Edward Martin, Speaker Grover Talbot, and will be approved by the Democrats if they are permitted to nominate one member of the board.

This subject will be threshed out at a conference of the Governor and Republican and Democratic leaders at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

THREE TO BE NAMED

McClure gave assurance that before a final vote comes on his bill tomorrow the names of the three persons Pinchot will name will be given to the members.

If the personnel is satisfactory the bill has a chance of passage, though it will be hard-fought.

There is a possibility that a Pittsburgh woman, Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, may be nominated by the Governor. Her name, and that of Henry Hornbostel, Pittsburgh architect, has been offered to the Governor by the Democrats in the event the board becomes bi-partisan.

Meanwhile, the House droned through the reading of a long sheaf of amendments to the McClure bill, which was introduced at the behest of Gov. Pinchot.

McClure himself offered many changes in the bill, all of which are acceptable to the Governor. There

M'CLURE MAKES NO DEFENSE

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—Offering no defense to the mass of testimony from 147 government witnesses who involved him in a huge liquor conspiracy, State Senator John J. McClure and his 75 co-defendants today cast their lots with the forensic ability of their high-priced battery of 17 lawyers.

Chet A. Keyes, the special United States attorney, began summing up the government's case when court reconvened this afternoon.

By offering no defense, the defendants gained the advantage of being allowed to address the jury last. It was considered certain they will launch an attack on the characters of some of the government's star witnesses, especially the group of grafting constables who testified for the prosecution while serving jail sentences for extortion.

"We go to the jury on the government's case," Attorney John R. K. Scott, head of the defense counsel, informed Judge George A. Welsh this morning. A wave of astonishment swept over the courtroom. The defense action was interpreted as a challenge to the government which, in effect, was charged with having failed to make out a case.

Mary, Bannister to Wed; Live on Farm

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—Mary McCormic, opera singer, recently divorced from Serge Mdivani, said last night that she and Harry Bannister, film actor and former husband of Ann Harding of the screen, will be married January 29. She added:

"We are going to live on a Connecticut farm that has cows and potato patches and things like that. I love to dig potatoes."

2ND VOTE CASE GOES TO JURY

A Federal Court jury retired at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon to deliberate a verdict in the government's second vote fraud trial.

"This eleciton board is trying to escape the responsibility for this, as raw a steal as can be imagined, by saying, 'We are good men, we didn't do it.'"

Attorneys E. G. Coll and John A. Metz asked the jury to free the defendants. Coll pleaded for the jurors to disregard anything they have read in the newspapers. Judge F. P. Schoonmaker charged the jury.

The defendants are Joseph Tortorelli, judge; Malachi Tiernan and Irvin Braun, inspectors; John F. McNally and Bernard Grossman, clerks.

Phils Trade Klein to Bruins

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—The Philadelphia National League Club today announced the trade of Charles (Chuck) Klein, slugging outfielder, to the Chicago Cubs, for three players and an unannounced sum in cash.

The players the Cubs gave in the exchange are Pitcher Ted Kleinhaus, recently obtained from Atlanta; First Baseman Harvey Hendrick and Infielder Mark Koenig.

The amount of cash involved was not revealed, but is beleived to be around $100,000.

40 'PHONE GIRLS BRAVE FIRE

Forty telephone operators, working on four floors of the 20-story Bell Telephone Company building in Seventh avenue, remained at their posts early today as fire of undetermined origin swept up the elevator shaft to the eleventh floor.

The girl employes of the building were never in danger, firemen said, although smoke rolled through the corridors and invaded the switchboard rooms.

Six of the dozen elevators, recently installed in the new addition to the building, were disabled.

Fire Chief George Schettler, of Engine Company No. 3, who responded to a still alarm, estimated the damage at $2,500. Telephone officials said it was nearer $5,000.

The fire is believed to have started in the sub-basement when cables crossed. It spread to the eleventh floor, charring insulation.

The elevators, of the modern automatic type, are inclosed, and firemen tried to break down two doors to reach the flames.

Socialist Heckles King, Peers in House Aghast

By HARRY K. REYNOLDS
International News Service.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—For the first time in living memory, King George V was subjected to the attacks of a heckler today as he concluded his address opening the winter session of the British Parliament.

As peers and peeresses stood with eyes lowered, John McGovern, Socialist member of Parliament, who has frequently been expelled from the House for violent attacks upon his colleagues shouted from the gallery:

"What about measures for abolition of the means test and unemployment cuts?"

For a moment the chamber was hocked into immobility. Then as other members of the House standing near McGovern sprang into action in an effort to quiet him, he broke into another wild harangue, directing his attack upon the nobles who had turned out in their gorgeous court dress to hear the King's speech. He shouted:

"You're a gang of lazy, idle parasites, living on wealth that other people create. You ought to be ashamed of yourselves. Think of the starving people outside."

The "means test" referred to by McGovern in his unprecedented violation of Britain's cherished and traditional respect for her royal family, is a measure put into effect in an effort to reduce the unemployment dole. It provides that all applicants for relief must subject themselves to searching examination as regarding possible means of support.

King George hesitated momentarily as McGovern's voice rang through the chamber and then proceeded to the retiring room with Queen Mary at his side. He gave no indication that the unexpected interruption had upset him.

Tracy Jailed in Mexico, Denies He Was Nude

MEXICO, D. F., Nov. 21.—(AP.)—Lee Tracy, American movie actor, was ordered by police authorities today to remain here pending further investigation of complaints that he had "offended public morals."

In a statement to police, Tracy admitted he shouted at cadets from a balcony of his room in the Hotel Regis Sunday morning, but denied charges that he had been nude.

The actor said:

"I had no intention of insulting Mexico and if I did I am sorry. But when I heard the cries of a parade Sunday morning I went out on the balcony. It is true that I shouted at the cadets, but it is not true that I was nude."

He said he was dressed and had a blanket wrapped about himself.

MORGENTHAU CLAMPS CENSORSHIP LID ON TREASURY

PROTEST WIRED ROOSEVELT IN SOUTH

News Correspondents In Fight on Order

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Clamping more tightly the lid of censorship on the Treasury, Acting Secretary Henry Morgenthau, Jr., today announced that in the future all public addresses must be submitted to the public relations section before delivery.

Meanwhile, a formal protest was wired to President Roosevelt at Warm Springs, Ga., by the Treasury correspondents association against the rigid censorship.

The protest said:

"It is our belief that the good-will between the Treasury and the press built up in the last 15 years, has been impaired seriously by Mr. Morgenthau's action.

PROTEST SIGNED

The protest was signed by representatives of the four major press associations and leading New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Baltimore newspapers.

"All statements to the press or to the public through interviews, speeches or public addresses by any officer or employe of the Treasury Department shall be submitted before release for approval by Herbert E. Gaston, Assistant to the Secretary."

APPOINTMENTS MADE

Morgenthau announced the appointment of Earle Bailie, of New York, a partner in the firm of J. and W. Seligman & Co., as special assistant in charge of fiscal affairs.

Herman Oliphant, of Maryland, general counsel of the Farm Credit Administration, was made general counsel of the Treasury, and Henry H. McReynolds, former assistant chief of the efficiency bureau, administrative assistant.

Morgenthau said that all press relations sections for the various bureaus would clear any information they had for the public through Gaston. This includes public health, coast guard, bureau of internal revenue and the bureau of industrial alcohol.

Most information from these bureaus is of technical or scientific character and never before have they been subjected to the "gag rule."

MORGANTHAU UPHELD

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 21.—(INS.)—Acting Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morganthau, Jr., acted without the knowledge of the President, but was entirely within his rights in forbidding officials of his department to give out information for publication.

It was pointed out that Morganthau was the Treasury Department executive, and that in matters such as that involved in the order for silence, it was entirely unnecessary that he ask the President's advice.

President Roosevelt was advised of the new order while he was out riding in his personal automobile, but had no official comment. It was learned, however, that he feels this matter is one completely in the hands of Morganthau, and will not hamper the new Treasury executive in any such moves he cares to make.

Penologist to Head Prison Trustees

Robinson, chairman of the penal affairs committee of the Public Charities Association of Pennsylvania, succeeds Dr. Henry N. Woolman, of Philadelphia, who was removed by the Governor.

Administrator. When this has been done, the municipality must file a requisition with the Federal-State Employment Office for the number of laborers specified in the proposal, according to Maj. Bucher.

It will be his responsibility to provide the men from the relief and unemployed records in his possession. Regarding the actual job-picking, Bucher said:

"I can only repeat what Gov. Pinchot said yesterday in Harrisburg, that there won't be any policies in the selection of workers. I will have a letter from the Governor tomorrow putting this statement in writing and backing up this office."

Director of Public Works Edward C. Lang announced today that the City of Pittsburgh is prepared to go ahead on 28 civil works projects that would give 9,455 men employment for three months at a labor cost of $2,617,000. These projects will be presented in the near future for Administrator Stuart's consideration, Lang said.

WORKS DIVISION

Divided into four types of works, the city's scheme would set up:

1—$1,000,000 for 2,750 men on light grading and surfaoing of unpaved streets, construction of brick gutters and catch basins, side walks and replacing board walks.

4—Improvement of parks and playgrounds, $620,000 for 2,555 men.

Nine fields of work that comes under the CWA have been outlined by Harry L. Hopkins, national administrator, according to Maj. Bucher. They are clerical and professional, pest control, parks and playgrounds, sanitation, highways, protection of water supply, general public improvements, repair and rehabilitation of public utilities and structures and the handling of relief supplies.

While Allegheny County's tentative allotment of CWA funds is $484,076, relief leaders here are agreed that ultimately the county's share will be much greater than this figure. Regarding the number of men to be given employment here under the new plan, Maj. Bucher said there was no definite number.

Bucher also explained that tentative locations for the three sub employment stations in the county were Tarentum, Coraopolis and McKeesport.

300,000 in State Will Get Employment

HARRISBURG, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—Eric Biddle, state administrator for the Federal civic works program, says about 300,000 men will be at work within three months at "real wages at going rates."

Allocation of $3,150,000 of the state's $30,000,000 share of Federal civic works funds, and plans to put 185,488 men to work immediately, were announced late yesterday at a conference of county administrators, municipal officers and civic leaders.

Allegheny, $484,076; Armstrong, $26,617; Beaver, $45,675; Blair, $42,603; Butler, $24,414; Cambria, $64,968; Clarion, $11,261; Clearfield, $25,752; Elk, $10,395; Erie, $53,235; Fayette, $77,807; Indiana, $28,822; Mercer, $33,941; Venango, $23,703; Washington, $76,151, and Westmoreland, $100,957.

A million and a half dollars will be spent for experiment "to determine feasibility." If experiments work out, $30,000,000 will build five seadromes, a few hundred miles apart.

IMPROVEMENT in airplanes will soon make landing places on the Atlantic as useless as they would be on the English channel, or Lake Michigan.

The Germans locate a floating supply ship in the southern Atlantic. Planes, landing beside it, are taken aboard, overhauled, refueled, and the plane catapulted on its way from the ship's deck. That seems to be the practical idea, although less dramatic than seadromes.

However, what do thirty millions amount to when you are on a paper money basis? To see the government encouraging a new idea is always pleasing, and seadromes will put men to work.

WELLES LEAVES SOON FOR CUBA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—Ambassador Sumner Welles said today he would return to his post at Havana Friday or Saturday for an indefinite stay. While his itinerary is still undecided, he added, he may visit President Roosevelt again at Warm Springs on his way back.

Welles said he left Havana last week for a conference with the President at Warm Springs and came to Washington at the President's suggestion that he confer at length with Acting Secretary Phillips and Assistant Secretary Caffery.

The continued refusal of the United States to recognize the provisional Cuban government has prevented Welles' return to his former place in the State Department, where he directed Latin-American policies. Mrs. Welles has decided not to return to Havana.

MRS. ROOSEVELT GOING TO W. VA.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt announced she will leave Washington on a midnight train tonight for Morgantown, W. Va., and will inspect the federal farm-factory project which she has been instrumental in planning at Reedsville, W. Va. Mrs. Roosevelt visited West Virginia several months ago.

The First Lady is a member of the committee arranging the housing and landscaping of the project, designed as an agency for the rehabilitation of miners. Some of these men, Mrs. Roosevelt said recently, have been idle for seven years.

Men from the CCC and miners are now engaged in clearing the site for the factory community. It is expected that idle hands will be given a home and work making furniture, twine and other materials.

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., Nov. 21.—(AP.)—A mill foreman was injured today as several of the largest of Fulton County's 50 tanneries succeeded in reopening their doors in spite of heavy picketing by workers, who have been on strike for six weeks.

Tannery officials estimated that 300 men came back to work.

BARUCH FIGHTS INFLATION PROPOSAL

Financier in Sharp Warning Against Consequences

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Bernard M. Baruch, whose advice on financial matters has been sought by every President since the World War, came out today with a sharp warning against any kind of inflation.

In an article in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post, Baruch characterizes inflation as "an enemy of mankind," as "an act of desperation," and as the product of "muddy thinking."

The appearance of the article at this time, when the administration is in the midst of its experimenting with the gold content of the dollar, and when the inflationists on Capitol Hill are girding for a fight in the next session of Congress, created something of a sensation in Washington.

Added interest was created by the fact that a week ago Baruch was invited to Washington by President Roosevelt for a conference. The invitation was extended because of reports that he was out of sympathy with the administration's gold-purchasing experiment, which already has pushed the dollar down to around 60 cents in terms of foreign currencies.

Baruch came to the White House and talked with Mr. Roosevelt for some hours. He went away convinced of the wisdom of the administration's policy.

Whether designedly or not, the Baruch article refutes and contradicts almost every claim made for the gold-purchase theory, which is accredited as the brain-child of Prof. George F. Warren. This theory is that commodity prices rise commensurately with the price of gold.

FOX SUBPENAED IN THEATER STOCK QUIZ

Lost Movie Empire To Bankers; Will Appear Thursday

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—Senate investigators announced today, as they resumed their inquiry into financing of General Theater Equipment, Inc., that William Fox, noted movie executive, had been subpenaed to appear Thursday.

Fox, who rose from poverty to become controlling director of a chain of 1,000 theaters, lost his movie empire to the giant theater holding company.

Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, made the announcement. Fox was subpenaed by the same committee more than a year ago, but never appeared, because of illness.

PROFITS BARED

The Senate committee received evidence that bankers who financed organization of the General Theaters Equipment Corporation in 1929 made paper profits of more than $4,000,000 within a few weeks by pool operations in the holding company's stock.

The evidence showed that while the pools were operating the price of the stock rose from $20 a share, which the bankers paid, to more than $60 within two months.

Murray Dodge, former vice president of the Chase Securities Corporation, which participated in the financing, said the profits were not actually realized.

FLETCHER IMPATIENT

Pecora charged a contract made by the bankers to withhold a large block of the stock from the market during the pool operations interfered with the law of supply and demand and made an artificial market.

Chairman Fletcher showed impatience at the slow progress of the inquiry and called an executive session for this afternoon to consider ways of speeding it up.

Pecora told newspapermen that hearings could not begin until after January 1 on Detroit and Cleveland banks, ending prospects of winding the inquiry up this year.

Charge Jones Benefited By RFC Loans to Firms

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—Evidence purporting to show that Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Corporation, was the beneficiary of loans by that agency to corporations in which he was secretly interested was disclosed yesterday to be at the bottom of the current Senate inquiry into RFC loans.

The investigating committee has asked Jones for a report on the charges and has requested him to speed up the report. Meanwhile members are studying the law to determine whether such loans would be illegal.

There is nothing in the law creating the RFC which made it illegal to lend money to companies in which directors were interested, and if such loans are unlawful it is because of some other general law, they said.

Preacher in Church, Thugs Invade Home

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—Two robbers forced their way into the home of the Rev. Carney V. Hargroves while he was in the church, next door, choked and beat a nurse maid and fled with $60, a suit and a watch.

The maid, Frances Miller, was struck a second time because she screamed for fear the intruders would harm the Hargroves baby.

Roosevelt Gives Thanksgiving Proclamation

International News Service.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 21.—President Roosevelt hailed the "passing of dark days" and predicted a brighter era to come in an unusual Thanksgiving proclamation issued today.

The document was longer than the proclamation issued annually at the White House. Mr. Roosevelt recalled the courage of the early settlers of the nation, and asked The Divinity to give the American people guidance to profit by the lessons of the past. Greed, selfishness and striving for undue riches, the President condemned as folly.

"I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do set aside and appoint Thursday, the thirtieth day of November, 1933, to be a day of Thanksgiving for all our people.

"May we on that day in our churches and in our homes give humble thanks for the blessings bestowed upon us during the year past by Almighty God.

"May we recall the courage of those who settled a wilderness. The vision of those who founded the nation. The steadfastness of those who in every succeeding generation have fought to keep pure the idea of equality of opportunity and hold clear the goal of mutual help in time of prosperity as in time of adversity.

"May we ask guidance in more surely learning the ancient truth that greed and selfishness and striving for undue riches can never bring lasting happiness or good to the individual or to his neighbors.

"May we be grateful for the passing of dark days, for the new spirit of dependence on another; for the closer unity of all part of our wide land; for the greater friendship between employers and those who toil; for a clearer knowledge by all nations that we seek no conquests and ask only honorable engagements by all peoples to respect the lands and rights of their neighbors; for the brighter day to which we can win through by seeking the held of God in a more unselfish striving for common bettering of mankind.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

FORD WELCOME TO TALK CODE

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT

International News Service.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Nov. 21.—President Roosevelt hung out the "Little White House" latch key for Henry Ford today.

The President has no official advice that the motor magnate seeks to come here. He has not asked Ford to come and Ford has not asked for an appointment.

At the same time, reports that the motor leader wished a conference with the President have persisted so stubbornly that the executive recognized their existence as reports. He made it plain that he would be glad to see Ford if and when he comes.

Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson probably will be here for a day or so beginning Friday. The NRA chief is to make an address in Atlanta Thursday night.

5 PLEAD GUILTY IN DOPE CASE

Five persons pleaded guilty to possessing, selling, and administering marihuana, the "loco weed," before Judge James H. Gray today.

Michael Erandas, of 72 Logan street, and Frank Mardo, of 1414 Hazel street, were sentenced to three years in the workhouse. Mrs. Carmen Gomez, of 1412 Hazel street, sister-in-law of Mardo, was paroled for two years.

Nick Mendes, an Indian, of 1311 Epiphany street, was sentenced to one year in jail, with the provision that he be paroled then if he can get transportation to his reservation in Oklahoma. John Taylor, Negro, of 1313 Hazel street, was paroled for one year.

Fenton Hayes, inspector of the State Department of Health, and City Detective Walter Monaghan brought the charges.

SOVIET ORDERS SLATED FOR PITTSBURGH

Mills Here to Share In Equipment Business

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The first conclusive information regarding how much money is likely to be spent in the United States by the Soviet government and the sections in which the orders will be placed, was obtained today from authoritative sources by Universal Service.

Briefly, the Pittsburgh area and Illinois, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin may expect to get most of the Soviet orders in 1934, because these have the heavy machinery, machine tools and precision equipment the Soviet Union needs most; but the South will benefit from purchases of cotton and cotton textiles; New England will get orders for cotton textiles and machinery; Montana will find a big buyer for copper; and Atlantic and Pacific ports will be affected by the revival of Soviet-American commerce.

BROOKHART ESTIMATES

Estimates made by Former Senator Smith W. Brookhart that $400,000,000 would be expended immediately were declared excessive. Orders for $75,000,000 to $100,000,000 may be expected, however, within a few months, it was said, provided satisfactory short-term credit arrangements can be made.

Purchases last year were $24,000,000.

In any case, the United States may be expected to replace Germany as first among exporters to the Soviet Union, with from 20 to 25 per cent of the more than $15,000,000 a month current Soviet purchases, and get a substantial share of the $1,000,000,000 in capital expenditures to be made in the next five years under a new economic program, which succeeds the first "five-year plan."

NO RED PROPAGANDA

MOSCOW, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—Alexander Antonovitch Troyanovsky, new Russian Ambassador to the United States, said today that no communist propaganda will emanate from the Soviet embassy in Washington.

His statement was made in response to a question asked in an American press conference. He exhibited a bit of amusement at the query and replied:

"Communism is not a thing that can be imported to one country by another. It is not a question of foreign relationship, but a domestic problem. In any event, I can assure you gentlemen there will be no Communistic activity on the part of any of our officials in America."

LINDYS ARRIVE IN AZORES

International News Service.

HORTA, Azores, Nov. 21.—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindberg, after a flight of approximately 1,000 miles from Lisbon, alighted on the waters of Horta Harbor at 11:25 a. m., eastern standard time, today.

Island officials immediately set out in launches to greet them.

Leaving Lisbon at 2:08 a. m., eastern standard time the Lindberghs passed over the easternmost island of San Miguel, veered slightly northward in their course to the island of Terceira and then turned southward again toward this island of Fayal, haven of transatlantic fliers.

Their future plans were not immediately known. Col. Lindbergh had given no indication, when he took off from Lisbon whether he intended to attempt a transatlantic crossing to New York via Bermuda, or meant to survey the Azores group for a trans-ocean air line and then return to Portugal.

All-American Dressers Of Filmdom Chosen

By DAVID P. SENTNER

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The all-America sextet of well-dressed movie stars was nominated today.

They may talk about 10 or more best-dressed women in Hollywood but, at the most, there are only six.

So says Gwen Wakeling, creator of styles for movie stars. She was former designer for C. B. DeMille, movie director, and is now fashion creator for Joseph M. Schenck and Darryl Zanuck, Hollywood's new producing team.

Her list of the six best-dressed women in Hollywood is:

Constance Bennett, Marion Davies, Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford, Lilyan Tashman and Hedda Hopper.

The stylist listed her reasons for selecting the six movie stars named.

"Constance Bennett's judgment in clothes is as good as any studio expert. Even when her gowns are theatrical they are in good taste because she never permits herself to be overdressed.

"Marion Davies excels in the femininely youthful type of clothes, and shows taste in never affecting the type of things which do not become her.

"Norma Shearer would be my choice as the best-groomed woman on the screen. That is her own talent, to be immaculate is innate.

"Joan Crawford more than any single actress affects the trend in styles. Whatever she would choose to wear on the screen would start a vogue. And while she is a bit daring, what in others would seem bizzare seems perfectly natural to her electrical personality.

"Lilyan Tashman is entitled to rank in any group of best-dressed women—but she is inclined to over-dramatize herself in clothes.

Baby Lindbergh Waits For 'Mama' and 'Daddy'

By DOROTHY DUCAS

International News Service.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., Nov. 21.—Jon Morrow Lindbergh, 1 year and 3 months' old son of the flying Lindberghs, has not forgotten how to say "mam-ma" and "dad-dy" in the exactly four months up to today since his famous parents flew to Europe.

He still murmurs the words, as he looks out of his nursery window in the Morrow home here, where his grandmother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, or his other grandmother, Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, has cared for him during Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh's trip.

Whether he knows the faces that formerly answered to those names is a matter of speculation. His nurse, Betty Gow, who tended the other Lindbergh baby, thinks he does. No one can say for sure until the Lindberghs return, which the household is confident will be in time for Christmas.

This was learned today from friends of the family, who said also that Jon, who has looked from birth remarkably like the martyred child, whose kidnaping and murder stirred the world, is well and happy in his guarded home.

He celebrated his first birthday less than a month after his parents left on July 21, but, of course, he was too little to know about birthdays, or to notice the absence of the pair. Christmas will be different, predicted the friends. Then his parents will want to be present, to watch his reactions.

It could not be ascertained how many toy airplanes Jon has in his nursery, but—said a friend—if one year and three months is not too young for metal toys, there are bound to be not a few!

COUSIN'S TESTIMONY PAINTS M'CREADY AS PROFLIGATE

MENTAL TEST LIMITED TO RUM ANGLE

'Playboy' Admits He Now Is on 'Diet Of 3.2 Beer'

The picture of a profligate, who dissipated hundreds of thousands of dollars, who scattered checks whether he has the money in the bank or not, who refuses to talk business, and only reads to see his own story in the newspapers—that's a sketchy portrait of Harrison R. McCready, the Fox Chapel playboy, as painted by his cousin, in Common Pleas Court today.

McCready lingered in the corridors, reading the newspaper reports of him, as his counsel fought inside the courtroom to upset a $150,000 trust he set up in 1930 for his first wife, Margaret McCready Welfer, and their daughter, Margaret Luella McCready.

'ON BEER DIET'

McCready announced to reporters that he was "on a 3.2 beer diet," drinking nothing more.

Worley wasn't the only witness, however, to tint the picture. Yesterday it was begun by his own attorney, Charles J. Margiotti, and Mrs. McCready No. 1, while today one physician appeared as a witness and half a dozen others waited.

Testimony of unusual behavior of McCready as a boy, narrated by Worley, was halted by Judge Frank P. Patterson. The court told Margiotti and Oliver K. Eaton, representing the first wife and child, that only the mental functions of the playboy as affected by alcohol could be included in the application before the court.

Margiotti agreed to amend his petition, so that he could prove, he said, McCready's mental unfitness.

Worley told of McCready's transfer to him of property worth $125,000, including the Fox Chapel home. McCready is now dependent on $200 a month rental from the mansion, Worley said. But recently he bought $800 worth of furniture.

RENTS MORE ROOMS

Finding his two-room apartment too small, he rented two additional rooms to hold the furnishings, the cousin said. Worley is holding the property as a grantee, he explained, to prevent his losing it.

Judge Patterson made the ruling on testimony limitation after Worley told how the playboy, as a boy, was very stubborn, refused to associate with others, was expelled from Peabody High School, and refused to play as other young men played. He did what he wanted to do, Worley testified. Judge Patterson asked:

"Did he ever do anything he didn't want to do?"

"No."

Patterson asked the counsel if they planned to show McCready's mental incapacity, adding:

"You cannot do it under your bill of complaint. The man's youthful habits and mental conditions have nothing to do with this case."

Margiotti said he would amend the bill, so that witnesses could prove the playboy was "mentally unfit."

Worley testified that McCready started drinking about eight years ago.

WANTED TO FILL GARAGE

Explaining that he didn't think McCready would know the consequences of such a business venture, the physician testified that the playboy did not act normally for his age. He said:

"I tried to persuade him to become interested in athletics and other normal activities of men of his age, but he would not be interested. Once he told me he had only one car and a four-car garage and needed some more cars to fill it.

"McCready is interested only in himself."

Mrs. Welfer, as far back as September 6, 1930, swore to an affidavit asking for the appointment of a guardian for her husband, and that the papers were served on McCready while in an East End sanitarium. Margiotti said yesterday in opening the case.

Margiotti read that McCready spent over $200,000 of his $750,000 estate in two years in lavish fashion and that he would produce witnesses to show that he is unbalanced.

On the stand Mrs. Welfer said that the trust fund was agreed to just two days after the papers were served on McCready. The petition for the appointment of a guardian for McCready was never filed.

STRATOSPHERE BALLOON SAFE

In landing they lost some photo plates, Fordney said, and some other accessories, but did not go into details. He said they were fortunate in preserving all essential equipment. The balloon was not seriously damaged.

State police accompanied Fordney back to the landing spot and will guard the ballon.

The place is more or less protected from sightseers because of the marshy ground and visitors had a messy time of it.

Volunteers were recruited to drag the balloon and its gondola to the end of Lanning's Wharf road, about two miles from the farm and about a mile from where it landed.

The naval air station at Lakehurst sent a truck to the spot to transport the bag and gondola to Lakehurst.

A telegram from Washington to the airmen stated that an Army transport plane would be stationed at Bellanca Field, New Castle, Del., "Hoping to contact you there for return trip to Washington."

Before Maj. Fordney arrived here the two airmen were objects of a wide search over land and sea

Three Coast Guard airplanes took off from Base 9 early today. A seaplane was ordered to fly 70 miles to sea and patrol an area between Atlantic City and a point off Long Island, N. Y. Two land planes started a search over a triangular area extending from Cape May to Vineland and eastward to the coast.

At daybreak, state police and hundreds of volunteers plunged into the woods.

Licensed to pilot almost anything that flies, from gliders to dirigibles, Seitle and his companion took off from Akron, O., at 9.27 a. m. yesterday and were reported numerous times on their flight across three states.

SETTLE'S WIFE 'THRILLED'

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Nov. 21.—(AP.)—Mrs. T. G. W. Settle, wife of the commander of the stratosphere balloon, said she was happy and thrilled "to death" at the news that her husband had landed safely near Bridgeton, N. J.

Mrs. Chester L. Fordney, wife of the balloon's mathematician, was equally "thrilled."

Both said they knew the balloon would land safely.

They prepared to motor to New Jersey at once.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—The mother of Lieut. Commander T. G. W. Settle, on hearing this morning that her son had landed safely after his stratosphere flight, told reporters it made her "extremely happy" after a night of anxious waiting.

Only a short while before, newspapermen had been by her side with the word that there was nothing definite to report; but this did not flag her spirit. She had spent a wakeful night, explaining:

"I couldn't sleep unless I knew he was safe."

Litvinoff Lauds Stratosphere Trip

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—With the stratosphere height record set by three Soviet balloonists still unbroken, Maxim Litvinoff today telegraphed to Lieut. Com. T. G. W. Settle a hope that "our countries continue to contest the height in every sphere of science and technique."

Sister Aids Defense Of Nurse in Killing

Closing of Banks Cited to Support Girl's Plea

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., Nov. 21.—(AP.)—The trial of Frieda Wilhelmina Weltz, charged with murdering her former employer, Francis J. M. Grace, goes into its final stages here today.

District Attorney J. Frank Murphy, who announced after the defense case was completed yesterday he had three or four rebuttal witnesses, predicted the case will go to the jury tonight or tomorrow.

Miss Weltz, who allegedly shot Grace to death in the garden of his summer home September 9, admitted under cross-examination she had several hundred dollars in San Francisco banks at the time. She previously testified she called on Grace seeking financial aid to recover her health which she charged was wrecked after he had attacked her and induced her to take measures to avoid motherhood.

JOINT ACCOUNT

The bank deposits she declared were held jointly with her brother, William F. Weltz, of Connellsville, Pa. She insisted most of the money was his and that she had no right to draw it from the banks.

In support of Miss Weltz' contention that she was forced to seek financial aid from Grace, her sister, Miss Meta, of Connellsville, Pa., was called to the stand by Attorney John Duggan, Jr., of Pittsburgh, Pa., chief defense counsel.

The sister, a school teacher, testified that in 1930, when Miss Weltz said her health was wrecked after Grace had allegedly attacked her, all the banks in Connellsville except one were closed.

FINDS NURSE WEAK

Miss Weltz' sister told the jury that when she arrived at Santa Cruz, September 14, five days after the shooting, she found the nurse "weak in her walking and apparently unable to think." Miss Weltz had testified she took a heavy dose of a drug after the shooting, hoping it would cause her death.

Mrs. Margaret Kenney, jail matron, called by the defense, admitted she and Sheriff A. T. Dresser worded a telegram to the Connellsville relatives the day after the shooting telling the brother and sister "not to come."

Dr. William A. Newbold, of San Francisco, and his wife, both friends of the defendant, testified they found her in a dazed condition when they visited her in jail three days after Grace's death.

EINSTEIN TO AID EXILE BENEFIT

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—Dr. Albert Einstein, who has been reticent since coming to America as guest professor at Princeton University, will let his violin speak for him at a public concert here December 15.

The concert, to be held in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria, with tickets selling probably at $25 each, is a benefit for persons driven into exile by the Hitler government of Germany. Dr. Einstein himself has suffered confiscation of his property in Germany.

The tentative program for the concert lists Toscha Seidel as first violin; Dr. Einstein, second violin; Leon Barzin, viola, and Ossip Giskin, 'cello. Seidel and Dr. Einstein are to play a double concerto by Bach.

Ruth Judd's Husband Faces Drunk Charge

Dr. Judd, residing at a veterans' home in West Los Angeles, was arrested Saturday while walking near the home, records showed. He pleaded not guilty.

GIRL GIVES DOG TO BOY

Crippled Bobby Thomas, who felt sort of bad last week-end when he couldn't find his lost dog, Skippy, can have a new dog today if he wants one.

The new dog he can have is a year-old fox terrier, the pet of R. J. Grove, of 3073 Eastmont avenue, Dormont. Strangely enough, his name also is Skippy.

International News Service.

PAULSBORO, N. J., Nov. 21.—Still suffering from shock and hysteria, Mrs. Audrey Smith Clark, former stage beauty, today was under police guard in a Woodbury hospital while authorities were prepared to lodge charges against her for the fatal shooting of her husband, Sheldon A Clark, 35, son of a wealthy Chicago sportsman and vice-president of the Sinclair Refining Company.

Clark, an officer in the Marine Corps during the World War and employed as a maintenance engineer by the refining company, was killed in the basement billiard room and bar of his palatial home here after an argument with his wife, in which he struck her on the head with the weighted end of a billiard cue, police said.

Although County Detective W. Clayton Apgar and Police Chief W. J. Mattson, said Mrs. Clark had confessed the shooting, no charges were lodged against the former showgirl who Clark married in 1925 in Richmond, Va. The couple has two children, Sheldon III, 6 years old, and Harry, 4.

According to George Johnson, 35, a boilermaker and friend of Clark, who was playing billiards with the heir to the Clark fortune when the shooting occurred, the argument between Clark and his wife started when the latter asked if Clark would be at home for dinner.

Johnson, who was held in $1,000 bail as a material witness, told police Clark informed his wife he would not be home. Mrs. Clark, according to Johnson and Mrs. Lavinia Brown, cook and housekeeper, who summoned the police after the shooting, became angry and left the room.

The housekeeper said she heard the couple exchanging angry words then heard Mrs. Clark scream. Mrs. Brown told police:

"Then I saw Mr. Clark with a broken billiard cue in his hand, and I could hear Mrs. Clark weeping in the dining room. Mr. Clark went on back to the billiard room."

Johnson said Clark returned to the room and resumed his billiard game. He continued:

"We played a few minutes more when the door of the room opened and Mrs. Clark came in. She had a bloody towel around her head. She stood there and stared sort of wildly. Then she said:

" 'Sheldon, you've killed me.' "

"Then she pulled out a pistol and before I had time to move or he had time to do anything, she pointed it at him and fired."

The bullet struck Clark in the heart. As he fell, police quoted Johnson as saying, Clark murmured

When police arrived they found Mrs. Clark in the children's bedroom, in a hysterical condition. She was taken at once to Underwood Hospital at Woodbury where a police guard was stationed over her.

Dr. H. L. Sinexon said Mrs. Clark's injuries were not serious.

Reynolds Threat Brings Pen Term

WILKESBORO, N. C., Nov. 21.—(AP.)—John Thomas Lanier, slender and bespectacled jobless textile worker of Winston-Salem, yesterday was sentenced to five years' imprisonment in the Atlanta Penitentiary for attempting to extort $10,000 from Richard J. Reynolds, tobacco heir, by threatening to kidnap Mrs. Reynolds.

Actor Shares Wife's Estate of $700,000

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—The estate of Daisy Canfield Moreno, wife of Antonio Moreno, motion picture actor, was valued at approximately $700,000 in Superior Court yesterday. Mrs. Moreno was killed February 23 in a motor car accident.

As there was no will, the estate was distributed between the husband and three children.

Hungarian Youths Cry 'Phooey' at Fete to Otto

BUDAPEST, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—A crowd of 60 students, hurling stench bombs and shouting "Phooey!" raided a legitimist banquet held here last night in honor of the 21st birthday of Prince Otto of Hapsburg, claimant to the throne of Austria-Hungary.

Speaking at the meeting, Baron Friedrich Wiesiner, attorney of ex-Empress Zita, mother of Otto, declared Austria was still a monarchy, because Emperor Charles withdrew from control of the country only on the condition of a plebiscite which was never held.

Jackie Coogan Blasts Kidnap-Murder 'Clue'

International News Service.

SAN JOSE, Nov. 21.—The pillow slip found near the San Mateo Bridge and at first believed to have been used by the kidnapers of Brooke Hart to blindfold their victim, before throwing him into Lower San Francisco Bay, was traced today through its laundry mark by grim coincidence to Jackie Coogan famed several years ago on the motion picture screen as "The Kid" and one of young Hart's friends at the University of Santa Clara.

The pillow slip, bearing laundry mark C-354, was traced to Coogan through a Santa Clara County laundry.

Coogan, now a sophomore at the university, said his laundry mark was 354 and that he remembered taking a pillow and a pillow slip to the California-Santa Clara football game "for a soft seat" late in September, but that the pillow evidently was lost from an automobile while crossing a Bay bridge.

Coogan was amazed when deputy sheriffs informed him the pillow slip had been found near the scene of the kidnap-murder tragedy. He told officers:

"Yes, that's my laundry mark, but gosh—honest—I don't know anything about the kidnaping."

'PROFS' WAITING SETTLE DATA

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—The height attained by the Settle expedition into the stratosphere was "amply sufficient" for the scientific purposes of the flight, Prof. Arthur H. Compton, of the University of Chicago, said here today.

Prof. Compton said:

"Apparently the instruments were working correctly at the peak of the ascent. The altitude of 58,000 feet is amply sufficient. Naturally, I am much pleased."

Both Prof. Compton and Prof. Robert A. Millikan, of the California Institute of Technology, had instruments aboard, and through the recordings of these instruments the scientists hope to settle a dispute of long standing.

The disagreement has its basis in the composition of the cosmic rays. They also hope to establish whether electric particles in the cosmic rays are positive or negative.

Piccard Kin Plan Trip in Balloon

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 21.—(AP.)—Mrs. Jean Piccard, sister-in-law of Prof. Auguste Piccard, first man to penetrate the stratosphere, said today she and her husband plan to make a similar ascent next summer in the balloon used by Lieut. Com. T. G. W. Settle.

Expressing elation over the success of the Settle flight, Mrs. Piccard said the proposed ascent also will be made to study the cosmic ray.

Navy Sends Air Fleet To Assist Settle

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—The Navy today ordered five planes from here and two nonrigid airships from the Lakehurst, N. J., station to proceed to Bridgeton, N. J., to assist Lieut. Com. T. G. W. Settle, who landed near there in his stratosphere ballon.

Doris Duke Only Wants To Be Ignored

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The birthday present Doris Duke, richest girl in the world, wants more than any other today is—privacy.

Privacy, said a member of her household, so that she can celebrate being 21 and coming into the first third of the fortune left her by her father, the late James B. Duke, tobacco magnate.

Privacy so that she can light a cake with 21 ordinary candles, hear herself toasted by her closest friends—though not, one essays the guess, in ordinary wine—and dance the evening through, just like any other 21-year-old.

For she is, according to the member of the household, an ordinary girl, fond of horseback riding, flying and the movies, fond also of dressing up in nice clothes.

"Like any average girl," he said interviewed at the heiress' country home near Somerville, N. J., where, he said, Doris might or might not be planning to celebrate the birthday that falls just a week after tht other poor little rich girl's, Barbara Hutton, now Princess Alexis HMdivani.

At her town house, 1 East Seventy-eighth street, right on Fifth avenue, it was said "no plans" for a celebration have been made. But maybe that was said in deference to the wish for privacy. The protographers kept an all-night vigil outside Barbara Hutton's birthday party. The Somerville spokesman asked:

"Why all this rumpus about the kid's twenty-first birthday. There has been so much bunk printed about Doris, it's disgusting. Soon you'll be saying she bathes in a gold bathtub. Wont to see it? It's porcelain—plain white porcelain, like anybody else's.

"Let me tell you this: Doris has been brought up to know the value of money, just like any average girl. She's been taught not to waste it, and she doesn't waste it."

FAIR EXHIBITS' UNVEILING SET FOR TONIGHT

Unveiling of 12 special windows by business and social leaders tonight will officially open McCreery's special exhibition of scores of displays from Chicago's Century of Progress Exposition.

The ceremony will precede opening the doors to the public which will find approximately 100 exhibits throughout the 11 floors. An opening night feature will be dancing on the ninth floor.

EXTRA DISPLAYS

Entertaining, also educational, exhibits are included in the special show that has been enhanced by the addition of many extra displays by manufacturers. Decorations carrying out the architectural as well as color theme of the World's Fair have been arranged to emphasize the occasion.

One of the interesting displays will be the 19-foot model of the Rex liner, Italian steamship that holds the speed record in an Atlantic crossing.

Sound motion pictures of the exposition grounds will be shown continuously, presenting a picture story of what millions of persons saw at Chicago. Hundreds of photographs will further explain the story.

RAIL-PLANE MODEL

A model of the latest in railway transportation, the rail-plane, has been brough from the fair. The model shows the teardrop design that marks the new train that begins operation between Chicago and Denver December 1.

Special demonstrations as well as working models of varied subjects are being especially arranged for the visitors, it was announced.

FIVE BANKERS INDICTED

Four former officers of the First National Bank of Johnstown, indicted last Thursday by the Federal grand jury for alleged misapplication of $10,000 of funds of the bank, were named defendants in another indictment returned yesterday charging misapplication of funds of the bank and making false entries, involving $105,000.

They are David Barry, who was president and director; Jacob M. Murdoch and Harry Swank, vice presidents and directors, and Patrick F. McAneny, cashier and director. The alleged offenses occurred between November 21, 1930 and April 21, 1931.

Edwin J. Weber, former vice president and cashier of the First National Bank of Bridgeville was indicted, charged with embezzlement of $18,185.71 of its funds between February 2, 1931, and March 23, 1933. Both banks are being operated by conservators.

NEW AXLE CUTS AUTO BUMPS

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Bumps have been eliminated from automobile riding, according to announcement by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors Corporation.

A new type of front wheel assembly which allows each wheel to rise and fall separately to the bumps in the road is now a regular feature of all General Motors cars, Sloan said, doing away with the old type of I-beam axle. He explained:

"Engineers call it 'independent front wheel suspension,' but the simplest way to explain it is to say that we have put knees on automobiles."

Brewery Men Freed, Fox Must Pay Costs

W. M. (Puncher Proof) Fox, 5700 Northumberland avenue, was ordered to pay the costs, more than $50, when Judge John P. Egan directed a verdict of not guilty in larceny charges against four officials of the Independent Brewing Company, whom Fox had charged with taking 18 barrels of beer from the East Liberty freight yards April 5.

Baking Truck Driver Kills Self With Gun

Lawrence Kripp, 44, of 617 Industry street, was in South Side Hospital today with four allegedly self-inflicted revolver wounds in the head.

Kripp, a driver for the Haller Baking Company, was reported to have shot himself yesterday in the company garage, Sawmill Run boulevard and Bausman streets. Walter Morrow, sales manager, who found the victim, said Kripp had an excellent record and could not explain the act.

Two Horses Die In Barn Blaze

A two-story frame barn on the Louis Haag farm near School street, Reserve Township, was destroyed by fire last night. Two horses, trapped in the building, perished.

Two North Side engine companies were unable to reach the blaze with hose lines, but used chemicals and prevented the flames from reaching the Haag dwelling. The two city companies were summoned by an alarm sounded from the box at the end of the city limits.

Edgewood Man Ends Life After Illness

The body of James W. Yonker, 47, of 213 Race street, Edgewood, was found hanging in the cellar of his home last night, according to a coroner's report. His wife discovered the body. Yonker was said to have been in ill health four years.

AMAZING ODDITIES IN RIPLEY DISPLAY

Entertainment for Young and Old Next Week

Bewildering curiosities, amazing oddities—each and every one an inconceivable fact, folks, will be arrayed before your very eyes next week.

There's never been anything like it—Ripley's Odditorium. The Sun-Telegraph brings it here direct from Chicago's Century of Progress Exposition for the multitudes who were unable to attend the World's Fair.

It will be here—right on downtown Fifth avenue—in all its glory. Carpenters' hammers already are preparing for the 16 separate and distinct stages—curtains, lights and scenery—and the scores of specially constructed glass cases.

It is to be housed in the former Campbell Department store. A whole city-block long Odditorium, extending from 333 Fifth avenue through to Oliver avenue, will house this colossal exhibition.

From throughout the world, Robert L. Ripley has gathered "Believe It or Not" facts. You've read them as a daily and Sunday cartoon feature of the Sun-Telegraph.

Now more than 300 of these amazing inanimate curiosities will be seen. Add to this, the 25 human oddities and there you have Ripley's Odditorium. Here will be hours upon hours of entertaining and educational features.

These astounding curiosity-baffling facts have been viewed by notables of the stage, screen, sport world, business and political life, including Postmaster General James A. Farley, whose signature is among those prominent in the autograph book kept by Director C. C. Pyle.

The Odditorium will open next Monday. It will continue through the week. Doors will open at 11 a. m., except Thanksgiving Day and Saturday, when the opening hour will be 10 o'clock.

The admission for adults will be 40 cents, children 15 cents. But a popular price feature has been arranged for the children both Thanksgiving Day and Saturday, when 10 cents will admit them between 10 a. m. and noon. The entire Sun-Telegraph share of proceeds will be donated to Christmas charity.

The show will be going on all the time. The performances will be continuous. In this way, you will be able to drop in at any time, stay as long as you wish and in no way interfere with shopping tours, theater or other engagements.

Here's Your Chance

Boys and girls—men and women!

TWO HUNDRED TICKETS ARE TO BE GIVEN AWAY to the Sun-Telegraph readers who send in the strangest facts.

Just send your entries to the "Believe-It-or-Not" Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. All entries must be received before midnight, November 27.

One hundred tickets will go to the children. Another hundred will go to the grown-ups.

Expo Wonders to Be Shown on Stages And in Cases

Students to Visit Historic Places

Members of the "Know Pittsburgh Club" of the West View Junior High school were to visit the Block House and the Lincoln Room in the Monongahela House, and view the city from the Gulf Building this afternoon. About 20 were expected to be in the party, under supervision of Miss Della G. Vance, of the faculty, sponsor of the club.

PINCHOT ASKED HERE TO SPEAK

Gov. Gifford Pinchot has been invited by the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners' and Taxpayers' League to address a mass meeting in the Chamber of Commerce Thursday afternoon. He has been asked to speak on proposed legislation to have the commonwealth assume the costs of education and thereby relieve real estate of these taxes.

A telegram carrying the invitation was sent late yesterday by I. Leonard Aronson, president of the League, which is sponsoring the meeting.

In the communication the League president asked the Governor to designate an official representative for the commonwealth in the event the Governor himself should be unable to come to Pittsburgh on account of the Legislature being in session.

JUNIOR LEAGUE ART EXHIBIT OPENS DEC. 13

By PENELOPE REDD

The Junior League of Pittsburgh announces the most ambitious program of art exhibitions for the winter and spring season of 1933-1934, ever projected locally. The exhibitions to be held in the Junior League gallery on the mezzanine floor of the Clark Building will be free to artists and to art students, while other visitors will pay a fee for the benefit of various local charities.

Miss Redd

The Public Health Nursing Milk and Emergency Fund will receive the admissions from the first exhibition which will be on view from December 13 to January 6. This exhibition will present original drawings by the "prophets and patriarchs of the history of art" because the committee believes that "it is impossible to judge modern art without a knowledge of the old masters."

FAMOUS NAMES

To anticiate the import of the exhibitiin a few names such as Van Dyke, Holbein, Durer, Rembrandt, Watteau, Ingres, Goya and Millet, indicate the many that will be represented by choice items from famous American collections.

For the second exhibition flowers have been elected as the subject. Commencing with Chinese and Japanese examples, the theme will be traced through the occidental phases found in the seventeenth century Dutch masters and in the eighteenth century manifestations from France and England, to culminate in a felicious bouquet of nineteenth century French painters, notably, Manet, Renoir, Reden and Van Gogh.

The February exhibition will comprise 15 portraits of Pittsburgh personages isolated without fear or favor solely on aesthetic merits by the director of a New York museum and by an authority on American portrait painting, from some 50 portraits photographed by the Frick Reference Library in New York.

The other exhibitions contemplated promise one devoted to modern photography, another to canvases by the leaders of nineteenth century European and American painting, a novelty in the form of a show of Baroque painting, and a collection of Italian Primitives.

DUAL PURPOSE

The Arts and Interests Committee is responsible for this innovation in local art. Mrs. Raymond F. Moreland, chairman of the committee, said:

"We hope to serve a dual purpose in supplementing our contributions to local charities and in providing an opportunity for people to see and enjoy a little of the beauty that is our heritage from the past."

Mrs. McCook Reed, is assistant chairman, Mrs. Alexander L. Robinson, secretary, and Mrs. R. Greene Annan, Mrs. George L. Craig, Jr., and Mrs. Alan M. Scaife, complete the personnel. Will J. Hyett, Norwood MacGilvary and John Walker, III, are acting as an advisory committee.

Proceeds from the lecture, to be given under the joint auspices of the Zionist District, Hebrew Circle, Jewish National Workers' Alliance and other organizations, will go to the Hebrew weekly, Hadoar.

Hearst Named On Los Angeles Art Committee

Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21.—Signifying his interest in the art development of Los Angeles, William Randolph Hearst has just accepted membership on the classical arts committee, one of the many active groups now being organized to carry on the work of the Los Angeles Art Association.

Mr. Hearst has long been extremely interested in early European art and archeology, and during his extensive travels has assembled at his San Simeon home one of the finest private art collections to be found anywhere.

The particular committee on which Mr. Hearst's interest will be concentrated is the committee on classical arts, which has as its objective the bringing to Los Angeles of important study collections of the arts of the ancient world leading to the broadening of the interests of the American people in art as a leisure interest, involving painting, sculpture and the decorative arts as well as the establishment of a classical art library.

This committee, which has been appointed by President William May Garland, will hold its initial meeting Wednesday, November 22.

In Mr. Hearst's reply to Mr. Garland's invitation he says:

"Thank you for your kind letter and invitation to become a member of the classical art committee of the Los Angeles Art Association. Will be happy to accept."

Bronchial Troubles Need Creomulsion

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, and attacks the seat of the trouble.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Your own druggist is authorized to refund your money on the spot if your cough or cold is not relieved by Creomulsion.

M'NAIR PLANS TO ADVERTISE PITTSBURGH

William N. McNair, Democratic mayor-elect, today told the Pittsburgh Advertising Club that he plans to establish a Department of Adveristing in the city government to encourage the development of new industry in Pittsburgh.

The department would disseminate throughout the country information on the advantages of industry here due to the Pittsburgh system of taxation. He said:

"Pennsylvania has the best tax system of any state in the union and Pittsburgh has the best in the state."

CITES TAX LAWS

Citing that Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania do not indulge in income, machinery or other similar levies, McNair declared:

"This method of ours of favoring enterprise and development throuhgout taxation is a 'folkway' and can never be changed.

"Folkways" he explained as customs of communities and sections that grow up through the habits of years.

McNair addressed the club in serious vein, laying aside for the moment msot of the wise-cracking for which he has became noted of late. Ht he spiced his talk with illustrations whose aptness threw the club into roars of laughter.

Of the advertising department he proposes, he said:

"I've often wondered why Pittsburgh doesn't advertise for new industry. People don't know we have as advantageous a position as we have.

PRAISES PITTSBURGHH

"Praising Pittsburgh is like doing any of a number of things one isn't supposed to do—like riding in street cars—when he's elected to office.

"Pittsburgh has wonderful location for light manufacturers. I feel they'd come here and locate their plants here if they knew what advantages they had, and that the system won't be changed.

"But if any of you fellows apply for the job as head of this department, you've got to pass an examination in economics."

McNair, scheduled to speak on "Penetrating Pittsburgh's Smoke Screen or Ghosts in Our Closet," lost his prepared speech. He explained:

"I didn't know this was to be my subject, so I guess the speech wouldn't have been much good, anyhow."

At the luncheon, McNair showed a letter from Former Secretary Newton D. Baker, addressed to "Dear Billy," congratulating him on his election and saying:

"There are a lot of pitfalls in any administrative office and if at any time before you take over you think it would be pleasant to talk with me, I would be most happy if you would run up here and spend a day with me."

ADMIRES BAKER

It is Baker's idea—once applied in Cleveland—of taking the graft out of the police force that McNair hopes to apply in Pittsburgh. Baker and McNair have been friends for many years.

At an earlier speech today, to a class in economics at Pitt, McNair said of his proposed graded tax plan for city and county—five mills on land to one on improvements:

"'Buck' McGovern would have as much money to throw out the county window as ever."

McNair expects to leave town tonight for a rest, but, he says, part of the time will be spent working against the city manager bill at Harrisburg.

McNair mentioned his vacation last night while speaking before the Employe Pharmacists' Association of Greater Pittsburgh in Moose Temple. He said:

"I'm going away on a vacation. They say I talk too much, and that I ought to go away somewhere. It's the orthodox thing to do, but I never have felt better in my life."

Again, before the druggists, he advocated free river trade and an extensive building program to restore prosperity.

2 JOBS FOR EVERY MAN

He asked for supporters of his ideas which, he said, would provide not only a job but two jobs for every man. He said:

"What I need is followers. I've been preaching these things for 20 years, and I've never had a follower. I receive hundreds of letters every day, but I have yet to get one from anybody declaring himself to be my follower and asking for literature on these things."

McNair told about a bill relating to graded tax pending in the Legislature, and later, when he was asked why he didn't go down to Harrisburg to support it, he replied:

"Jimmy Coyne's running the Legislature. I'm not."

The possibility of the passage of the city manager bill has been giving McNair no little concern. He says so frankly and regarding his proposed trip, says:

"I expect to stop at Washington and then at Harrisburg and see that the city manager bill doesn't go through. I never have advocated that measure."

A FACSIMILE OF THE BALLOT FORM FOR USE AT THE MINES

A sample ballot for the captive mine elections tomorrow and Thursday—under the supervision of federal men. Each district of the United Mine Workers has a slate and, of course, the independent candidates vary at the different mines involved.

Miners Ready to Vote For Parley Delegates

Company Officials Prepared to Fight Against Union

Employes in 30 captive mines in the Western Pennsylvania bituminous field are preparing to go to the government-supervised polls tomorrow and Thursday to elect representatives in negotiations with the companies on wages and working conditions.

On the eve of the balloting, company officials were more determined than ever not to grant union recognition, but the organized groups of the United Mine Workers of America are determined they should.

Under the presidential agreement with captive mine operators there will be full and complete recognition to both a majority and a "substantial" minority of employes. By this agreement the operators point out that they are not compelled to recognize the organization represented by the individuals chosen by their employes. United Mine Workers' spokesmen, on the other hand, insist they have the assurance of both President Roosevelt and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson that the miners' union will be recognized.

LABOR BOARD RULES

Two executives of the National Labor oBard are here directing the activities of 15 Federal election supervisors. They are Dr. S. M. Leiserson, secretary, and Jesse I. Miller, assistant to the chairman. As to the issues involved, they have nothing to say, apparently desiring to leave this important problem up to the board entirely. Dr. Leiserson said:

"We are here only in the capacity of election officials. Any dispute arising after the election has been held is up to the board."

Said Mr. Miller:

"There will undoubtedly be many points for the board to decide. We cannot make decisions in our capacity of election officials."

One of the major points of dispute arising in the pre-election talk among the miners was, how is it possible to determine who belongs to the majority and the minority groups, inasmuch as the election is being held by secret ballot?

UNION MEN'S VIEW

William Hynes, president of District No. 4, and a candidate with two other district officials and three international officials, following a conference with the federal officials last night, declared:

"In the majority of our mines there will be no minority group. We are organized 100 per cent United Mine Workers, but there are some mines where the company is fostering the Brotherhoods by paying the men to join. If the companies refuse to recognize the check-off of union dues, I don't see how either a majority or minority can hope for any sort of recognition.

"It will all come out after the election, however. We are going to the polls without any ballyhoo or wild talk about what we will or will not do, and then we'll see how sincere these companies really are."

Separate ballots were prepared for each mine. Fifteen mines of the Pittsburgh district will vote tomorrow, and 15 in the coke region will vote Thursday. Results of the election will be posted at the mines as soon as possible after the polls close at 6 p. m., but the final results will be tabulated at national labor headquarters in the William Penn Hotel.

The polls will be kept open under government supervision from 9 a. m. until 6 p. m. Certified copies of the election results will be sent to Washington.

Reed to Address Railway Club Here

Senator David A. Reed will address the Railway Club of Pittsburgh at a meeting in the Fort Pitt Hotel Thursday night at 8 o'clock. His subject will be "Today in Washington." F. I. Snyder is president and J. D. Conway, secretary of the club.

MEAT STRIKERS VOTE ON RETURN

Meat packers were extending deliveries today as additional strikers returned to work.

Trucks, under police escort, left many plants this morning, without interference by pickets.

At Swift & Co.'s South Side branch, all of the workers, except four, were at work today, according to Walter Schaub, superintendent.

All except one driver, of 35 employes, were back at the South Side plant of Armour & Co., those in charge asserted. Additional employes returned at the Pittsburgh Provision and Packing Company, Herr's Island.

A meeting of striking employes of Fried & Reineman Packing Co., Millvale, was held to vote on whether to continue on strike. Later a delegation conferred with company officials. Neither side would make a statement. A similar meeting of workers of the Oswald & Hess Co. was scheduled for tonight.

At the William Zoller Company plant, 15 outside men were brought in, it was learned, as activities were increased.

Judge George V. Moore began a hearing this afternoon on the injunction application of the Hess and Zoller companies to restrain the Packing House Industrial Workers Union from interfering with their operations. A temporary restraining order had been granted last week.

SCHOOL LOAN PROPOSED

Resolutions urging that the state assume larger responsibility for the support of public schools and suggesting that the Board of Public Education request a loan against the $9,000,000 school tax were adopted last night by the Squirrel Hill Board of Trade. Either plan, it was pointed out, would affect a reduction in the 1934 school tax levy.

Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of schools, addressing the meeting said further reductions in teachers' salaries and costs of supplies are impossible. Another speaker was Congressman Henry Ellenbogen, who said legislation was needed to prevent unreasonable deficiency judgments and to provide other relief for home and property owners burdened with mortgages.

Fear Fayette Girls Victims of Racket

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 21.—(INS.)—Fears that more Fayette County girls might have been lured into the New York-New Jersey "hired girl" racket were expressed today as police pressed their search for two 15-year-old Balsinger girls.

Friends of the girls, Pearl Jordan and Jennie Loretta Johnson, said they had told of promises they are supposed to have received for jobs in the East.

GOLLMAR ADDS TO SHERIFF RACE LEAD

Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar had increased his substantial lead toward retention of his office by seven votes, as Return Board tabulation advanced through the boroughs today.

Gollmar topped his Democratic opponent, John Heinz, by 697 votes in addition of official figures for 472 districts and unofficial figures for the rest of the county.

Gollmar ..... 93,538

Heinz is also estimated by watchers to have picked up a net gain of 87 in the recount of 10 boxes so far completed by the recount board.

The question of disposal of unstolen votes in the "hijacked" Eighth district of the Seventeenth Ward will be considered by the judges as soon as attorneys bring it up, Judge W. Heber Dithrich said yesterday. Counting of these votes would give Heinz 137 net gain.

Thirty ballots were thrown out for being voted with stubs, double marks, and an erasure, in recount of the Third district of the Twelfth Ward.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. M'GANN

Mrs. Frances E. McGann, widow of John McGann, after whom McGann's Corner in the West End was named, died yesterday in her home, 1715 Crafton boulevard, Crafton.

Requiem mass will be celebrated Thursday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Philip's Church, with interment in Calvary Cemetery.

Mrs. McGann was a daughter of the late Capt. Thomas and Catherine Terney Welsh, of the West End. She leaves five sons and three daughters, James A., Thomas L., John W., Byron G., Paul C., Constance and Catherine McGann, and Sister Mary Gregory McGann, of the Mercy order, and a sister, Mary A. Welsh.

PLANS MAPPED BY DEMOCRATS

HARRISBURG, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—Democratic members of the Legislature decided at a meeting last night to sponsor a far-flung program of social legislation. During a dinner meeting the liquor control question was dodged.

Joseph F. Guffey, Pittsburgh, drew hearty applause with his prediction that the Democratic party will take control of the state government in 1935 and will enact legislation to create old age pensions, abolish the poor house, provide unemployment insurance and set up a schedule of minimum wages.

He said that should the Supreme Court rule again that old age pensions are illegal, it will be the duty of the Democratic party to change the Constitution so that old age pensions are legal.

North Ireland Keeps Pro-British Regime

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—Continuance in power for the fourth term of the pro-British government of Prime Minister Lord Craigavon was assured yesterday by country-wide general nominations.

For 27 of the 52 Parliamentary seats the candidates of the government Unionist party had no opponents, making a Unionist majority certain regardless of the results in the polling November 30.

Assessor Spends Own Money to Aid Family

E. S. Norton, a county poll tax assessor, performed a good deed a few weeks ago and believed he was successful in hiding it from his fellow workers. It came to light today with the receipt of a letter by Leo A. Riordan, in charge of the assessors.

The letter was from a woman residing near Indianola, expressing her thanks for the kindness Norton had shown when he visited the community some time ago on his regular rounds.

Riordan learned Norton had found the family destitute, and out of his own limited funds, had purchased a week's food supply for the family.

'MRS. INSULL' IN HOSPITAL

International News Service.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—A "mystery woman" referred to by nurses as a "Mrs. Insull" is under treatment at the American Hospital for facial and body bruises and injuries received in some unknown fashion, it was learned today.

Dr. Lawrence Fuller, physician attending the patient, refused details as to the woman's dentity. The patient was booked under the name of "Miss Clarke," and her occupation was given as an actress.

ONE-VOTE WIN CONTESTED

Election of W. B. White as tax collector of Springdale on the Democratic ticket by one vote is being contested. Attorney George E. Alter, representing the petitioners, yesterday obtained an order from Judge Samuel H. Gardner, of Common Pleas Court, asking for a recount. John Armstrong, Republican, on the face of the returns lost to White.

Attorney William V. Swearingen also presented a petition for a recount of the votes cast in the Ninth District of Penn Township, to settle a local contest for offices.

BRIDGE TITLE GAMES SET

Entries for the Western Pennsylvania Championship Contract Bridge Tournament are being received by the Pittsburgh Contract Bridge Club, for play Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the William Penn Hotel. The tournament will be under the personal direction of Russell J. Baldwin, director of the American Bridge League.

Players in the contract mixed pair championship will compete for the Grace Lear trophy in two sessions, Thursday. The Team of Four championship match for the R. J. Henderson trophy is set for Friday and the open contract pair championship for the E. Hall Downes trophy is booked for Saturday with a playoff Saturday night if necessary. All three championships will be played as separate events and will require separate entries.

Among the prominent who will probably play are Capt. Fred G. French, Charles Goren, Mrs. Olive Peterson and Milton C. Work who won the team of four state championship this year.

HOLD KINGSLEY ANNIVERSARY

Men and women prominent in civic and welfare work will attend the fortieth anniversary of the founding of Kingsley House, Larimer avenue and Auburn street, next Tuesday night.

Principal speakers will be Willian H. Mathews, director of the Association for the Improvement of the Condition of the Poor, New York City, and Miss Mary van Kleeck, of the Russell Sage Foundation, New York City. Mr. Mathews is a former head resident of the Kingsley House, the first of its kind in Pittsburgh and one of the first in the world.

Kingsley House was formed as an organization November 28, 1893, with R. D. McGonnigle as president. The work was started in a building at 1707 Penn avenue. The cornerstone for the present building was laid April 8, 1923.

Junior Patrol

Learn to keep secrets, fellows! When a friend tells you something and you promise not to tell anybody else, DON'T TELL. Most people, it seems to us, just can't keep a secret. When they find out anything, or learn something about somebody else, they just have to tell somebody about it. Such people soon become known as "gossips," whether they like it or not. That isn't a good reputation to have, usually, and we hope every Junior Patrol member will escape it.

A secret is a secret only as long as no one else knows it. If you tell someone, they will tell someone, and so it goes until the whole world knows it.

Now here is an answering letter from Eugene Wurm, of 732 Stanton avenue, Millvale. You remember that Eugene told us about the bird bath and feeding station his father keeps in their back yard and we asked him how he kept the bath from freezing during the cold weather. Here is his answer:

"I have seen my letter in Wednesday's paper and I appreciate it very much. You ask me what we do if the bird's water freezes for them in this cold weather. That's easy. My dad gets up early every morning and pours hot water upon the ice in the pan, the hot water melts the ice, and my dad spills the old water away and pours in fresh water. Then they have their regular morning feed.

"Well, Junior, I have four new members who want to be in my patrol so I enclose four application blanks for my new members. We already have five members and I can get the other five easily."

Thanks for telling us how you do it, Eugene—you bet we'll send your cards and emblems soon.

And here's a letter from Billy Lightbody, of R. F. D. No. 2, Freeport, Pa., who is already a captain but he is sending in three more pledges for his patrol. He writes:

"I want you to know that our patrol is getting along fine. We were much pleased over our badges and cards. I hope our new members are fair and square. I live on a farm and have many pets. I may send you my picture some time."

Okay, Billy. And when you send us your picture how about sending pictures of your pets too? We're sure you do have a fine Patrol, and we're anxious to hear more about it. Write as soon as you can again.

STATE LIQUOR BOARD PLAN ADVOCATED

were clashing suggestions from several members, the most serious redrafting of the bill being proposed by Representatives Joseph G. Steedle, of McKees Rocks, and Clinton A. Sowers, of Philadelphia.

AMENDMENTS READ

Sowers and Steedle virtually read as amendments the bill they had presented last night, substituting private liquor stores for the state stores provided in the McClure bill.

They also set up 10 zone licensing commissions to have control over these stores, hotels and restaurants. The Commissioners would be named by the Governor, each commission consisting of four members, two Democrats and two Republicans.

The four would be picked from a list of five names submitted and certified by the Republican and Democratic party chairmen. One member must be a lawyer.

McClure set the floor space of a restaurant or hotel dining room at 500 square feet, which was agreed to by the opposition. McClure fixed 10 as the number of rooms a hotel must have to be eligible, and the seating capacity of dining rooms or restaurants shall be 50. Sowers' figures were eight and 40, respectively.

SHOWDOWN TOMORROW

There was a probability that the House would not reach a vote on any of the amendments until late tonight, but the session will be continued until a decision is reached, as a showdown on the bill is scheduled for tomorrow.

The Senate may be held in session through Friday in an effort to pass the bill finally.

Reading of the amendments followed an unavailing fight by Sowers and Steedle to force their printing before consideration. Representative A. J. White Hutton, chairman of the House Committee of the Whole, ruled the amendments need not be printed, and was upheld, 110 to 88, on a test vote.

Then it was decided that all amendments would be read before any were voted on, and the House was off on a wordy marathon.

An effort was made in a conference of Republican members this morning to obtain an agreement on the McClure amendments, but this failed.

PINCHOT CONFERENCE

The conference followed a meeting between the Governor and Republican leaders, at which an attempt was made to agree on the personnel of the Liquor Control Board. No decision was reached, and adjournment of this conference was taken until 5 o'clock this afternoon, when the subject will be taken up again.

Last night and this morning it seemed that an agreement had been reached to name John D. Pennington, former prohibition administrator, and Robert K. Cassatt, head of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, as two of the members. But when the Governor refused to agree to former Gov. John K. Tener, of Charleroi, as the third member, a new shuffle was called for.

If the Democrats are able to obtain representation on the board then it is possible Mrs. Miller or Hornbostel will serve with Pennington and Cassatt, the need for the new shuffle having been brought about before the Democrats were brought into the picture.

Sweatshop Ban Urged By Probers, Republican Member Defies Grundy

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Nov. 21.—Senator Bertram G. Frazier, of Philadelphia, an organization Republican, last night defied Joseph R. Grundy and sided with the Pinchot group in bringing in a majority report on the sweatshop investigation, condemning the conditions of employment in Pennsylvania factories.

The majority report represented a liberal viewpoint, and recommended enactment of eight measures to improve labor conditions in the state. The minority, or conservative, report recommended the state do nothing until 1935 when the permanency of the NRA would be determined.

The majority report was signed by Clarence J. Moser, Allentown; Judge Horace Stern, Philadelphia; Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor; Senator Frazier, and Representative Thomas J. Gallagher, Allegheny, Democrat.

The minority report was signed by Senator G. Mason Owlett, Tioga, chairman; Senator Richard S. Quigley, Clinton, Republican; Representative Roy W. Shreiner, Dauphin, Republican, and Representative Eugene J. Gorman, Lehigh.

It was significant politically that the majority report was a liberal report as a result of the signature of Frazier. Had Frazier sided with the Republican state organization members of the commission, the minority report would have been the majority report.

As it was, he held true to the pro-social legislation stand of the Philadelphia organization made last spring in the Legislature and the Republican state organization was forced to take a back seat with a minority report.

Frazier's action did not make the Philadelphia delegation in the Legislature any more popular with the upstate and rural Republican legislators. In fact it served to widen the rapidly growing breach between the metropolitan and upstate-rural Republican legislators.

The eight measures recommended by the majority report are:

1—Enactment of a minimum wage law for women and children employes, with industry itself determining the minimum wages.

2—Reduction of the maximum number of hours women may be employed from 10 to 8 a day and from 54 to 44 a week.

3—Amending the act of 1913 to provide that it shall also apply to so-called industrial "home work," not, however, to be construed to include domestic service in private homes.

4—Reducing the maximum hours of work for minors under 16 years of age from 9 to 8 a day and from 51 to 44 a week.

5—Prohibiting the employment of minors between the ages of 14 and 16 during the period when public schools are in session.

6—Ratification of the proposed amendment to the Federal Constitution already ratified by 15 states which provides that Congress shall have the power to regulate and prohibit the labor of persons under 18 years of age.

7—Enactment of a law providing more effective remedies for the collection of unpaid wages and permitting the State Department of Labor and Industry to assist for that purpose.

8—Enactment of a law pro-Department of Labor and Industry of industrial establishments before they start operations in Pennsylvania and annually thereafter.

The minority report asserted that 288 complaints were received, involving 171 of approximately 15,000 manufacturing establishments in Pennsylvania, and of these 171 factories, at least seven could not be found by the Department of Labor and Industry upon subsequent investigation.

Noting that the complaints covered only six-tenths of 1 per cent of the industry of Pennsylvania, the minority report asserted that on this small basis the majority report presumed to recommend legislation for all 100 per cent of the state's industry. The minority report continued:

"There is not a legislative proposal offered by our colleagues on the committee that does not seek to do what the federal government already is doing or has done. There is not one of those proposals but would add to the burden upon the taxpayers of this state. Why litter the statute books of Pennsylvania with laws designed to do what already is being done? Why saddle upon the taxpayers of Pennsylvania more jobholders to duplicate the work that the federal government is now doing? . . . You can't justify such procedure, and you haven't the right, especially in these times, to put upon the overloaded taxpayers of this state a single additional dollar that you cannot justify.

"Upon the indisputable fact that there is no need for the enactment of any of these proposals at this time, and that the purposes designed to be served by each are now being met, fully and effectively, we record our vigorous dissent from the recommendations contained in the majority report. We recommend that this committee be continued until the next regular session of the General Assembly, by which time the permanency of the NRA will be determined."

Commenting on the minority report, the majority group stated:

"It would be idle to deny that the NRA has, at least for the time being, corrected many of the evils which had existed, and that, if another survey were now to be made by the commission similar to that which it made in the summer months, a quite different picture would be presented. But the NRA, the constitutionalaity of which has not yet been determined, is at best necessarily restricted to interstate commerce. Moreover, by its express terms, it is merely a temporary expedient designed to meet a national economic viding for the registration in the emergency. Its duration is limited to two years from the date of its enactment, or it may be terminated at any time sooner at the will of the President or of Congress if the emergency shall meanwhile have ended."

Obviously, the majority report stated, the "ephemeral, casual and uncertain status of the NRA cannot be accepted as a substitute for laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania which would express the definite and permanent policy of the state governing the industrial employment of women and children within the state, and treating the subject from both the social and economic standpoint. It also noted that the federal administration itself has several times expressed its approval of such state legislation as the majority group proposed.

MINISTERS ASK STATE TO PAY RUM DAMAGE

Methodist Episcopal ministers of Pittsburgh want the state to pay all liquor-damage bills.

At their weekly meeting they adopted resolutions which set forth that:

"We believe that if the sale and distribution of alcoholic beverages are licensed by the state, the state should be legally responsible and liable for damage to person or property resulting therefrom."

The resolutions further state:

"We appeal to political leaders to enact such legislation as will protect the home, the highways and the moral interests of citizens of the commonwealth from detrimental influences of the traffic in intoxicating liquors.

"We oppose the unrestricted distribution of alcoholic liquors; the sale of such beverages for revenue and publicity propaganda through the newspapers, magazines, radio, movies and billboards."

Pinchot Promises Drys Saloon Is Doomed

HARRISBURG, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot told a delegation of 250 dry leaders of Pennsylvania yesterday that he would "veto any legislation that opens the way for the return of the saloon."

Headed by members of the committee of nine directors of a statewide organization that led the fight against repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment by Pennsylvania, the delegation called upon the Governor to protest proposed amendments to the administration's liquor control bill, which, they said, would permit drinking places tantamount to the saloon.

The committee announced that they did not approve the administration measure, but objected particularly to the changes proposed to permit sale of liquor in restaurants from 7 a. m. until 2 a. m. the following morning and to change the floor space requirements of restaurants from 1,000 square feet to 500 square feet. Pinchot's bill permits sale for consumption on the premises between noon and midnight.

NEW RUM BILL INTRODUCED

HARRISBURG, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—Representatives Steedle, Allegheny, and Sowers, Philadelphia, last night introduced a liquor control bill patterned after the old Brooks high license law.

It provdes for 10 zone liquor commissions of four members each, appointed by the Governor for two-year terms.

Other bills introduced in the House:

Myers, Philadelphia, requiring that deputy sheriffs be paid by the counties in which they are employed and prohibiting repayment to the counties by corporations.

Harmuth, Allegheny, appropriating $5,000,000 to the Department of Public Instruction for the aid of financially handicapped school districts.

NEW RECOVERY BILLS REACH ASSEMBLY

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 21.—Gov. Gifford Pinchot's recovery programe to put Pennsylvania in step with the NRA was displayed before the Senate today, embodied in 11 bills, four of which were moving toward enactment.

Nine of the administration recovery bills were introduced in the upper body last night and in rapid-fire order three of them were reported out of committee and passed on first reading. The Coyne (Allegheny) bill authorizing cancellation of contracts where costs have risen under the Blue Eagle already is on the calendar.

The three new measures on the calendar today were the Mansfield bill authorizing creation of "authorities" by political subdivisions to erect public works; the Buckman bill authorizing municipalities to accept loans for public works projects and issue bonds for repayment; and the Chapman bill permitting municipalities to borrow from any federal agency.

Other recovery legislation introduced last night would authorize banks and building and loan associations to invest in Home Owners' Loan Corporation bonds; authorize the Department of Labor and Industry to co-operate with the national employment system; require purchase by governmental subdivisions of NRA manufactured materials solely; establish a $500-a-day fine for NRA code violators in intra-state commerce, and authorize the Departmen of Supplies to act as Pennsylvania's civil works purchasing agent.

The Mansfield bill permits two or more political subdivisions to join in creation of a "public works authority." By such means, Pennsylvania municipalities may sponsor construction projects which will not be entirely within the boundaries of a single municipality.

It permits the "authorities," after incorporation, to borrow funds from the United States government, and issue revenue bonds to federal authorities or to the public. With these funds a wide variety of public works can be built by the Authority, which can either operate the project itself or lease it, and collect rent or tolls. When the debt to the federal government is paid and all bonds are retired, the Public Works Corporation dissolves.

Health Sleuths Open War On Spitting

Dr. W. W. McFarland, director of the Department of Public Health, today sounded a warning that, due to malnutrition causing a lowered resistance to disease, spitting in public places has assumed alarming importance in spreading disease.

Sanitary officers have been assigned to special duty in an effort to enforce the city ordinance against this habit more rigidly, he added, and requested the public to co-operate in this campaign.

WOMAN DUPED ON PENSION

Mrs. Magdeline Meyers, of 1103 Hall street, North Side, complained to city detectives today of being fleeced by a man posing as a dispenser of Old Age pensions. According to Mrs. Meyers, the man said that for $25 he would manage immediate payment of her pension.

He took the money and sent her to 307 City-County Building, where she found that she had been duped. Police are now searching for the man, who is described as being about 45, 5 feet, 8 inches in height, and weighing 160 pounds. He was dressed in a dark coat, brown suit, and light hat.

LAURA WHEELER DESIGNS

ROSE STAR ONE PATCH PATTERN 534

Famous One Patch Quilt

This is the famous Laura Wheeler one-patch quilt. Simple to cut—simple to make—exquisite when finished—it has all the ideal qualities that the needlewoman looks for in a quilt. In design it resembles the rose windows of the old cathedrals, and it takes no imagination to visualize it if carried out in similar beautiful colors. As shown, each block is made of the same materials. However, it is very handsome when made of scraps of material with each rose star in different colors. In the pattern, color suggestions for doing this and for making the quilt as shown are given.

Pattern 534 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Infection Is an After-Danger of 'Shingles'

A fever blister is an annoying thing and sometimes quite disfiguring to the skin. Many call it a "cold sore." One form of blister is often confused with a cold sore, yet in reality it is a different affliction. I refer to that common disorder known as "shingles."

Dr. Copeland

When it affects the lips, shingles is an ailment that resembles a cold sore. But usually it is found in some other part of the body than the common location for a cold sore.

Shingles is an acute inflammatory condition of the skin, characterized by a group of blisters, each about the size of a small pea. As a rule, such blisters, when they occur, are found along the lines of distribution of certain nerves.

For example, the effects of shingles are commonly observed on the skin overlying the spaces between the ribs. This is the pathway of the so-called "intercostal nerves." The space is referred to as the "intercostal space" and it is extensively supplied by these nerves.

If you have ever had shingles, you will agree with me that it is one of the most distressing of afflictions. Though the blisters appear harmless enough, the disease is accompanied by severe neuralgic pain. This travels along the pathway of the nerve and if located on the left side of the chest, is often mistaken for heart pain.

The pain appears first, but it is soon followed by the rash. The attack may last from one to several weeks. In some instances the ailment may be mild and entirely disappear within a very few days. In other cases the pain is so severe as to require strong sedatives to control it.

The victim of shingles describes the pain as "burning," "drawing" or "tugging." It may persist for some time, even after the rash has disappeared.

Shingles is not common in children and when they do have it, it usually causes little or no pain. There is consolation in knowing that one attack of shingles usually confers immunity from further attacks.

Another problem that must be faced is whether or not the disease may leave unsightly scars. In many instances the eruption may be extremely disfiguring for a week or two and then the blisters rupture, dry upon the skin in yellowish brown crusts, eventually falling off. Providing no infection has occurred within the blisters, no permanent trace or scar is left behind.

Every effort should be made to protect the inflamed area from injury and infection. This is best accomplished by applying dusting powders, such as zinc oxide, starch or talcum. Application of calamine lotion is often beneficial in this disturbance, but your doctor will advise whether it or something else should be used.

Old Time Burlesque Back in Variety

George Jaffe, manager of the Variety, is presenting "Burlesk Revue" in his first attempt to revive old-time burlesque. It has plenty of slap-stick, and an abundance of girls who do oriental and other dances. There are two acts and 50 scenes, typical of an old-time "girlie, girlie" show. Heading a large cast is Lola Bartrum, "Miss New York of 1931," a singer and dancer. Two of her numbers are "Stars" and "Miss New York."

Diane Barton and Bebe Tobin, oriental dancers, also are featured. Joan Maith, prima donna, and Frances McAvoy, dancer are prominent. Sammy Clark impersonates Jimmy (Schnozzle) Durante, and Ray Goss is a fast hoofer. Featured comics are Eddie Kaplin and Harry (Shuffle) LeVan. Other principals are the Mack Sisters, Kirk Brown, Albert Kaye, Jean Carroll and Johnny Barry.

Verdi's "Aida" Finely Sung By Fortune Gallo's Crew At Nixon on the Nile

By GEORGE SEIBEL

They were all there last night, when Fortune Gallo and his operatic myrmidons gave "Aida" at the Nixon Theater—they were all there, Isis, Osiris and Horus, Ptah and Ra and Anubis, all the deities and sacred beasts of the Upper and Lower Nile, with a procession of Pharaohs from Rameses to Uahabra—but where were the people of Pittsburgh?

Impresario Fortune Gallo rendered a real public service by bringing a company here to sing Verdi's triumphal opera at a top price of one-fifty, but it seems the public was afraid this would be more than it was worth. Those that came rose en masse to applaud the fine performance and the individual work of the principals.

Mr. Seibel

"Aida" is an opera that gives everybody a chance. From the "Celeste Aida" sung by Radames, finely vocalized by Aroldo Lindi, who also looks very Egyptian, to the touching last prayer of Amneris, sung by Elsa Hottinger, who excelled in the scene when the priests pronounce death upon Radames the traitor, this "Aida" was presented by an excellent cast.

Chief Capaulicon as Amonasro, the father of Aida, was the outstanding figure both vocally and dramatically, but high praise is also merited by Bianca Saroya for her Aida, which rose to heights of thrilling beauty at times.

ORCHESTRA FILLED PIT

Harold Kravitt as the High Priest and Natale Cervi as the King were fully adequate and impressive, but the surprise of the evening was the fine orchestral work of the musicians who filled the pit—there were 28 of them—and who responded heroically to the baton of Carlo Peroni.

Verdi's music in this opera is not without its pitfalls and ambuscades—Peroni gave a fine and flourishing interpretation, with due regard for the langourous and oriental qualities involved. But the score in the main is triumphal and sonorous, full of gorgeous and superb passages—and Peroni got every inch of steam out of his 28 virtuosi.

The chorus also did nobly in the great ensemble scenes, in the processions and assemblies. Nor must the ballet be forgotten, in which Lucian Prideaux and Lydia Arlova, looking like mummies painted with silver and gold, executed a very Tu-tankh-amenish pas de deux.

There was also indubitable local color in those four Nubian slaves who jigged so nimbly in the Theban court for the delectation of the populace and the army. They were a credit to the voodoo cult in Philae or Haiti.

VERDI AT A BARGAIN

Really, it was a most remarkable performance for Fortune Gallo to present at a bargain. It is hardly fitting to talk of bargains in connection with art, and this performance of "Aida" was artistic.

And it was also undoubtedly a bargain. The people who were not there missed something.

The music of Verdi is wine to the ear under any circumstances, and when it is played and sung with so much enthusiasm and virtuosity as last night, there is every reason for rejoicing from Palermo to Squirrel Hill.

The Nixon Theater should have been filled from pit to dome. Maybe it will be tonight, when that wicked necromancer, "Faust," sells his soul to Mephistopheles, for the chance to sing in Gounod's opera and present a casket of jewels to the fair Marguerite.

Olden Days

Mary Astor will come to the Stanley screen Thursday in "The World Changes," which runs from the good old days to the present.

King of Fijis For Film

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 21.—Titled foreigners are thick in Hollywood, but RKO scores a coup in signing up a reigning king to act for the movies.

This native chief, whose grandfather was the last cannibal monarch of the Fijis, plans to leave for Hollywood in December to take part in "The Sea Girl," a picture in which Joel McCrea and other RKO stars will be his fellow players.

An invitation from James B. Shackelford and George C. Drumgold will bring the island king to Hollywood. The film men headed an expedition to the Fijis, and they were guests of Ratu Pope Seniloa during their stay. Upon their return to the film capital they wrote asking him to appear in the picture. His acceptance has just been received.

King Ratu will be unique among royalty visiting Hollywood. He stands 6 feet 6 inches tall, weighs more than 200 pounds, and has a big shock of fuzzy hair. For state occasions he wears a tuxedo jacket and a high silk hat, but goes barefoot.

* * *

For quick-wittedness, Clark Gable would award the palm to his tailor. They've made the MGM star a Kentucky colonel and, for a gag, Clark asked his tailor what kind of a uniform he should have.

"Well, I'm not sure," said the needle expert, "but I guess it should have plenty of elbow room in it."

* * *

Richard Dix is down on his back again, and this time it's bronchial pneumonia. The star has two nurses in attendance, and his condition is serious though not critical. Rich succumbed to his illness shortly after the death of Hugh Trevor. The two men were bosom friends for years. Rich got Trevor his screen test, and gave him his first part in pictures. The pair were supposed to go to Palm Springs together on the day Hugh had a relapse from an appendicitis operation. Dix chartered an airplane and flew back to Hollywood when he heard of Trevor's critical state.

* * *

The lowdown on the Eddie Robinson-Warner Brothers dispute, they'll tell you, is that the star was anxious to go right ahead with the filming of "Napoleon," while the studio wants more time for research and preparation. Eddie has won his point about not appearing in "Upper World." The studio has given up the idea. On the other hand, they're looking for another story, acceptable to the star, to precede "Napoleon."

* * *

Dick Powell's proposals are the talk of the town. The total has risen to 30 now, with letters still coming in . . . By way of belated correction, Fifi Dorsay did not take Dolores Del Rio's role in "Wonder Bar." Dolores still has the lead opposite Jolson. Fifi has another part.

Notes About New Films

* * *

Paul Muni plays the part of Aline MacMahon's son, with Mary Astor as his wife and Guy Kibbee as his partner, in "The World Changes," photoplay beginning Thursday in the Stanley. The story is about a prairie family the son of which becomes a pioneer meat packer.

* * *

Ann Harding, Robert Young, Sari Maritza and Nils Asther are featured in "The Right to Romance," photoplay opening Thursday in the Warner. Miss Harding plays a famous plastic surgeon married to Robert Young, with whom Sari Maritza is in love.

* * *

"Beauty For Sale," with Otto Kruger, Madge Evans and Una Merkel and Florine McKinney, will open Thursday in the Fulton. It is a story of the experience of three beauty shop operatives.

* * *

Mae West and Cary Grant have the featured roles in "I'm No Angel," coming to the Davis Thursday. In it West is a dancer who falls in love with Cary Grant.

* * *

Perfect Camera Face Claimed for Girl

Jean Muir, a newcomer to the screen, is proclaimed as a girl who has the perfect camera face. By that a number of things are implied. They are that she can be shot from any angle, and it's all the same; the cameraman doesn't have to worry about lighting; the gauze usually used to make the eyes look soft and misty can be dispensed with; there's no worrying about the makeup on her mouth, for it's all right most any way it's put on; the eyebrows are just where they should be; the head, hair and colorings are also right. Jean Muir has her first important role in "The World Changes," with Paul Muni.

Piccoli to Be Seen In Harvey Movie

The Teatro dei Piccoli, under the direction of Vittorio Podrecca, a company of 28 puppeteers and 800 marionettes, worked three weeks in Jesse L. Lasky's "I Am Suzanne!" featuring Lillian Harvey and Gene Raymond. The Piccoli are continuing their tour of American theaters as part of their world circuit. At the conclusion of their work for Fox, Mr. Lasky presented Podrecca with a framed parchment siged by himself, Rowland V. Lee, Lilian Harvey and Gene Raymond.

O'Brien Settles Estate And Goes to Work

After settling the estate of his father, the former chief of police of the San Francisco police, George O'Brien, Fox Film star, returned to Hollywood to prepare to work in his next picture, "Heir to the Hoorah," from the play by Paul Armstrong. Mary Brian has been announced as his leading woman.

Nigel Bruce Is Cast In Mystery Film

The noted British actor, Nigel Bruce, will have the leading role in Fox's "Murder in Trinidad," the John Vandercock mystery story. Mr. Bruce's first American film was "Coming Out Party," with Frances Dee and Gene Raymond.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

There are three leading tenors in the San Carlo Opera Company, now playing an engagement in the Nixon. They are Aroldo Lindi, Dimitri Onofrei and Sydney Rayner.

Although born in Sweden, Mr. Lindi's musical training was obtained in Boston. There he sometimes added to his income by appearing in the chorus of various visiting opera companies. In this way he carried a spear as one of the warriors in "Aida." Later it was his fortune to assume the leading tenor role in Verdi's opera at La Scala in Milan, under Arthur Toscanini. It is stated that he acquitted himself with so much honor that he was soon in demand by all the leading opera houses of Italy, where he sang the role more than 200 times.

Dimitri Onofrei is a Roumanian by birth. He studied in Italy and made his debut in Rome. It is recorded that he is at home in French, Italian and German operas.

Sydney Rayner is an American who hails from New Orleans. He is the leading tenor of the Opera-Comique in Paris, and is enjoying a three months' vacation before returning to France at the end of December.

Friendly rivals in their profession, Lindi, Onofrei and Rayner are close friends off the stage and are referred to by their associates as "the triplets."

* * *

Ralph Morgan, former Pittsburgh stock actor, boarded a train in Hollywood a few hours after completion of his role in "7 Lives Were Changed" so as to be in New York in time to witness the debut of his daughter, Claudia, in the play, "Thoroughbred," last week. He will make a personal appearance in a Broadway theater and return to Hollywood within 10 days.

Floating Island Hero In Family

A floating island for use of trans-Atlantic aviators is the hero of "F. P. 1," film in the Family Theater, based on the idea of having floating platforms as landing places. The initialed title, in the style of naming airplanes, means Floating Platform No. 1, and the matter of getting it into place forms the action of the drama, which, of course, includes romance. Conrad Veidt and Jill Esmond head the cast of this novel picture.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

Lucky Lou.

THEY DIDN'T always call him Lucky Lou. That came later. For years, he was just plain Lou Schmidt, and around the race tracks, he had about as much distinction as the sparrows around the stables. He was there, but it didn't mean anything.

He made a book, of course. And if your bet wasn't too big, he'd take it. Sometimes he made a little change, and sometimes he didn't.

I don't think he had any family. If he had, Freddie Rich would have known, and Freddie says no. He lived by himself in a small flat in Harlem, and spent a great deal of his evenings in the pool parlors to be found thereabouts.

Then his whole life changed. The whole business just turned upside down, and made Lou a pretty robin among the sparrows. It made him a big shot, a person everybody wanted to say hello to on the street.

What caused the change would make you laugh. He had his fortune told. Yes, sir. That's all that happened. He got nice and plastered and one of the gang took him to see Madame Zaza. And Madame Zazo took him for a buck—a solitary dollar—and changed his life.

Lou Schmidt didn't believe in fortunes. But Madame Zaza said that she saw all, knew all, and would tell him all about his past, present and future.

When she said that there was a dark woman in his life, Lou grinned and said it was his landlady. She told him that she could see a trip across water, and that he would get a letter in a few days telling him of a death.

Lou shrugged. The woman could see he didn't believe, and, while she wanted to call him an infidel and a no-good bum, she wanted the dollar even more. So she went on in her mysterious fashion, and finished off by telling him that his lucky number was 430, and letting it go at that.

Lou staggered out, muttering that he had been clipped, and forgot all about the future until the next morning. He was in the drug store getting a nice juicy bromo and the clerk became conversational.

"Am I in tough luck?" he was saying. "Here I've been playing the numbers for two years, the same number, Mr. Schmidt, and yesterday, when I don't play, the number comes out. Can you beat it?"

Lou smiled.

"Kid," he said affably, "don't be a chump all your life. You can't win at those things. They're rigged up for kids like you. Save your pennies. You'll come out on top that way."

"Nope," said the clerk. "I'm gonna play 'em. You get $5.40 for every cent you play, if you guess the right number. I'm bound to win some day. I'm bound to."

"Here," he said. "You may be right kid. Take this buck. Play it for me on 430—on the nose. I gotta hunch."

The kid was still laughing when Lou walked out. But when he saw the newspaper late that night, he almost fainted. For Lou Schmidt was $540 richer . . .

There was no holding Lou after that. And that's when the gamblers around town began to call him Lucky Lou. Within six months, nobody remembered his last name; he was Lucky Lou to everybody.

The money came in hand over fist. There seemed to be no end of it. And, when the racing season closed in New York, he opened a swell apartment fronting on Central Park. It was an easy place to find. All you had to do was look for apartment 430. That was Lou's.

The more dough he made, the more eccentric he became. In that apartment, you could indulge in any form of gambling that appealed to you. But Lou had several rules and regulations that made his gambling house different from any other.

In the first place, you had to buy one chip for $430 when you began your play. It made no difference how much more or less you bought in other markers you purchased; that $430 chip had to go with your buy.

Then there were many other oddities in that gaming house. All checks issued by Lucky Lou carried the one number "430". When hat checks were issued, they called for "430 A," "430 B," and so on. It was all very strange—but Lucky Lou was sticking as closely as possible to the number that had brought him all his fortune . . .

Then one morning an old lady was on her way to church in Brooklyn. Why it had to be an old lady—and more especially, Brooklyn—I do not know. But that's the way it happened, and that's the way I'm passing it on to you.

She was going to church and the sun wasn't quite up yet. A faint bluish light spread out fanwise in the east, and down at the horizon it brightened to canary yellow. The old lady hurried, because it was cold, and her breath made white plumes in the air as she went across the vacant lot.

At first she wasn't sure, so she went back a few steps to make sure. Then a little frightened sound came out of her and she ran to the corner to look for a cop. She found him, trying to get warm in a grocery store doorway, and she told him that she saw a man propped against a signboard in the lots. He looked more dead than drunk.

Within an hour, the lots was full of cops, some with gold shields. A couple of photographers took pictures and cursed the cold and the body and the old lady who found him so early.

And that was the end of Lucky Lou. Who killed him is none of my business, and, I hope, none of yours. He's dead, and that's all there is to it. Whoever killed him had a bad eye, though. 'Cause the first shot went right through that swell watch he wore.

NOVEL DESSERT FOR THANKSGIVING DAY

Cranberry Shortcake Wins $5 Award in Recipe Contest

With Thanksgiving a little more than a week away, thoughtful housewives have been sending in more and more recipes designed to help other women make this year's Thanksgiving dinner the best they have ever had.

Decidedly out of the usual is Mrs. Emma Bauers' cranberry shortcake, which the judges awarded first prize today. If father or Sonny don't like pumpkin or mince pie, they'll appreciate this really fine substitute.

Don't worry about what to have—just watch Prudence Penny's prize recipes and you'll be all set, with a variety of fine recipes, for Thanksgiving Day and a horde of hungry appetites.

One or many, send in your best recipes to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, for every day she awards the 11 finest recipes she receives a first prize of $5 and ten $1 prizes to the rest.

FIVE-DOLLAR PRIZE WINNER FOR TUESDAY

MRS. EMMA BAUERS,
Chicago street.

CRANBERRY SHORTCAKE

Two tablespoons sugar.
One tablespoon butter.
(These two rubbed together.)
One egg well beaten.
Two cups of flour, with two heaping teaspoons baking powder sifted with it.
Bake in two pie pans. When you put the shortcake into the oven, put one quart of cranberries, one teacup of water, and one cup of sugar on to cook; boil for seven minutes. The cake will be baked in 20 minutes or less. Put on a large platter, butter lightly, spread thickly with cranberries. Put other cake, also buttered, on top, and cover with the rest of the berries. Serve immediately with this sauce, one cup powdered sugar, one heaping spoonful butter rubbed well together; add white of one egg, beat well, then add two tablespoons of cranberry juice.

TEN ONE-DOLLAR PRIZE WINNERS

MRS. BERTHA BRODMERKEL,
240 Hazel drive, Mt. Lebanon.

STUFFED EGGPLANT

One medium-sized eggplant.
One cup raw mushrooms.
One-half cup chopped onions.
One cup minced ham.
Four tablespoons butter.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon pepper.
Cut slice from top of eggplant, or cut in half lengthwise. Scoop out meat to within half an inch of outer skin. Peel mushrooms. Chop mushrooms and eggplant center coarsely. Saute in butter with onions for 10 minutes. Add ham and seasonings. Fill eggplant shell and sprinkle top with buttered bread crumbs. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees) until thoroughly brown. Serve with strips of pimento arranged crosswise on top of shell. May be prepared early, covered with wax paper, and put in refrigerator until ready to use.

MRS. J. M. DI CRISTY,
351 Saline street.

OYSTER STEW

One pint of oysters.
Four cups of milk.
Four tablespoons of butter.
Two teaspoons salt.
Pepper if desired.
Drain liquid off oysters. Pass liquid through a fine strainer or through a double cheesecloth over strainer in order to remove pieces of shell. Heat milk in double boiler, then add your oyster liquid and salt. Scald the milk and add oysters. Reduce the heat and allow oysters to cook until the edges begin to curl. Add the butter and serve hot with crackers. For oyster soup, thicken milk by adding two tablespoons of flour.

MRS. J. L. MERKLE,
2721 Brighton road.

CAULIFLOWER PUDDING

Salt and pepper.
Butter, size of egg.
Three eggs.
Three tablespoons cream.
Three tablespoons bread crumbs.
Two tablespoons Permesean cheese.
Cook cauliflower until tender, drain, season with salt and pepper to suit one's taste. Mix butter with the yolks of three eggs, add bread crumbs, cream and cheese. When thoroughly blended add the whites of three eggs beaten stiffly to mixture. To this add the cauliflower which has been broken into small pieces. Bake in a buttered casserole which has also been lined with bread crumbs. Bake until contents forms a custard. Slightly browned.

MRS. FRANK J. SHERMAN,

MARROW DUMPLING SOUP

Two pounds beef.
One marrow bone, cracked.
Four carrots (two diced, two grated).
One small stock celery, chopped up.
Two potatoes, cut fine.
One can tomato soup.
One onion, chopped fine.
Salt and pepper to taste.
Wash meat. Place in pot with about three quarts of water. Add all the vegetables. Cook till meat is tender. Drop in marrow dumplings and let cook for 20 minutes.

DUMPLINGS

Two cups flour.
Two eggs.
One teaspoon nutmeg.
One-quarter allspice.
One-quarter teaspoon pepper.
Take marrow from bone. Work well into flour. Mix in eggs and spices. Make small balls the size of a marble. Drop into soup.

MRS. WALTER NICHOLAS,

TUNA FISH CASSEROLE

One package noodles, boiled.
One can Tuna fish.
Two or three pimientos.
Two beaten eggs.
Add enough milk to moisten the above ingredients and bake about 25 minutes in a medium oven. Onion may be added if desired.

ANNE BAUER,

DUCHESS POTATOES

One cup cold mashed potatoes.
One-fourth teaspoon paprika.
One teaspoon minced pimiento.
One-fourth cup evaporated milk.
Grated cheese.
Salt.
Put potatoes in double boiler. Add milk. Beat. Add seasoning and beat well. Put mixture through ricer into greased baking pan. Sprinkle with cheese and bake till brown on top. Delicious with fried chicken. Serves two.

MRS. J. R. BEAL,
1200 Third avenue, Beaver Falls.

CHOCOLATE NUT LOAF

Two and one-half cups Swansdown cake flour.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
One cup butter.
Two cups sugar.
Five eggs, well beaten.
One cup walnut meats, coarsely broken.
Three squares Baker's unsweetened chocolate melted and cooled.
One cup buttermilk or sour milk.
Two teaspoons vanilla.
Sift flour once, measure, add salt and soda and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat well. Add nuts and chocolate and blend. Add flour alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in greased loaf pan 12x8x3 inches in slow oven (325 degrees) for one hour. Cover top and sides of cake with Mocha chocolate icing.

MRS. H. R. SWANK,
Laughlintown.

BAKED CABBAGE

One large head cabbage, cooked till soft.
Two tablespoons butter.
One cup milk.
Salt and pepper to taste.
One-half cup stale bread crumbs.
One level teaspoon butter.
Make two tablespoons butter, flour, milk, salt and pepper into white sauce. Place bread crumbs and teaspoon of butter in skillet. Brown slightly. Place cabbage in baking dish and salt. Cover with white sauce and sprinkle with browned bread crumbs. Place in hot oven and bake about one-half hour. Serves five.

MRS. CLARA FAIRFIELD,
1401 Monterey street.

SOUTHERN SUPPER DISH

Fry six or more slices of bacon. Remove to dish and keep hot. Into bacon fat turn two cups cold boiled sweet or white potatoes (diced) and three sweet green peppers (finely chopped). When vegetables are brown add one cup milk and cook until milk is nearly all absorbed. Fold mixture over like an omelet. Turn out on hot platter and garnish with bacon.

MRS. N. A. HEINZMAN,
Beaver.

ALMOND CAKE

Sift four cups flour, one teaspoon baking powder, and one and one-half cups of sugar. Rub two cups of lard into this, then add one beaten egg and four tablespoons of almond paste. This makes a stiff dough. Roll into a long roll and slice into cakes about one-inch thick. Put a scaked almond nut in the center of each and bake in a slow oven until a delicate brown.

"AMERICAN" MARCHES AHEAD!
—from Maine to Florida!

FOUR great forces in the oil industry combine! And from this union comes an even greater service to the people of this territory.

American Oil Company, and subsidiaries
Pan American Petroleum & Transport Company, and subsidiaries
Mexican Petroleum Corporation
Lord Baltimore Filling Stations, Inc.

Companies of vast resources, efficient personnel, fine and extensive facilities, outstanding products, large sales volume and extraordinary good-will—united to bring the unusual merit of distinctive products and distinctive service to the entire Atlantic Seaboard, from Maine to Florida, and elsewhere.

Foremost among these distinguished products are—AMOCO-GAS, the original special motor fuel; Orange AMERICAN GAS, the finest of regular gasolines; and AMOCO Motor Oils—the "big three" of quality in their respective fields.

Among motorists of Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio and North Carolina—where the American Oil Company is a foremost oil organization—these three great products have captured vast popularity. Now they move—northward through Northern New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine—and southward to South Carolina, Georgia and Florida—to bring new fuel economies to new friends.

It's a success story written by millions of motorists on the road. And as "AMERICAN" Marches Ahead into new territory*, the approval of these millions marches with it.

Young People Should Not Marry Without Love

Is it safe to marry without love?

Will love come later if you do?

Dear Miss Robinson—

Will you please help me to make a decision?

There is a man with whom I have gone, off and on, for a year or so. He wants me to marry him. Now I don't love him, although I do like him.

He really is a fine fellow. I can appreciate that. I respect him. He is clean, decent and ambitious, and he likes the same things I like—books, music, good plays. And I know that he really is deeply in love with me. He has shown it in many ways.

He has a good job and a good future, and my family are very fond of him. He is square, and I know that if I did marry him he would be square with me.

But, someway, I just can't get excited about him. I don't miss him when he is away. I can go for days without ever even thinking of him, unless he phones me, or comes over. I'll admit he is interesting, but, so far as I am concerned, that is all. He is about six years older than I. I am 24.

When he asked me to marry him, I was genuinely surprised. I had always thought of him as just a friend, and I told him so. He was disappointed, but not discouraged. He kept on coming to see me, a little oftener than before.

It wasn't long before he asked me again. I told him then that I felt just the same, that I didn't love him and didn't want to marry him. In fact, I told him that I didn't feel it would be right to marry anyone, I didn't love.

SORRY FOR MAN

Then he said that he didn't care about that—that if I would just say "yes," he would take a chance on making me love him. He said, further, that he was sure I would learn to love him, once we were married.

And then he told me that he simply couldn't live without me; that he had learned to love me so deeply that I was just part of his life, and that even if I didn't love him, he would be happy if I would marry him. He said that even "half a loaf" would be better than nothing.

I felt awfully sorry for him. Yet—I am afraid. Suppose I married him and didn't learn to love him? What then? Do you think it would be a safe chance to take? Would love come, if I did marry him?

I know he is a grand person. I know he would be square with me. But if I don't love him now, knowing that, would I ever love him?

Shall I marry him?

PEGGY.

Marry without love? No—no—NO! Not at your age, Peg. If you were nearing middle age—if you had ceased to crave romance or adventure and were both only looking for a quiet haven—then it might work. But never, never, while your heart is still young and secretly waiting for The One Man.

SECRET COOLNESS

For it isn't a question of not "being excited" about him. If you don't love this man, there is some very real reason why you don't love him. You may not be able to put that reason into words—but your heart knows what it is.

Your heart knows that there is something in him which you either distrust or dislike. And that secret coolness would flare into open hate if you were once tied to him.

Indeed, I think that you unconsciously have revealed one very good reason for not loving him, in your letter—his colossal selfishness and conceit.

He's urging you to marry without love. But does that show any real concern for your happiness? It does not. It simply shows that he wants to have his own way, and is willing to take a chance on your wretchedness to get it. It also shows that he believes himself to be irresistible.

How would he feel if any young woman tried to force him to marry her without love—threatened to die if he didn't? Do you think he'd agree? I'll say he wouldn't! He'd be disgusted and furious. Yet he is using the same tactics with you!

So—tell him to go peddle his papers, honey.

And don't worry about his not being able to live without you. "Men have died, and worms have eaten them, but not for love!"

Liking the same things may make persons friends, but we have observed persons who had a poor opinion of each other's merits and tastes become chums in hating a common rival.

They are thick as thieves at panning parties, and you had better bow out gracefully if you will not join their anvil chorus. Your presence with praise or silence is not welcome.

The only hold some persons have on more important persons is the comfort they bring by knocking them through envy or fear.

Given in Marriage

A Sequel to Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Helena Brixton Objects to 'Second Choice'

Helena Brixton was running true to form, I reflected, as from Lillian's displeased rejoinder I gleaned that Mrs. Brixton must have made some particularly feminine and petty objection to Mary's wish that Carolyn act as her bridesmaid

"For the love of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, Helena, act your age," she went on. "You sound exactly like a boarding school freshman who thinks she's been slighted in some election for office in her sorority. 'Second choice,' my off eye! As if there ever could be any matter of second choice with Carolyn. Do you want me to tell you again, in words of one syllable, that because of the smallness of the wedding Mary had planned to have but one attendant? And of course that one was Marion, who for years has been like the sister she never had."

I knew the battle was won, even before Lillian swung one arm high above her head, as she listened to what her friend was saying. When she spoke again, there was mischief as well as mirth in her smile.

LILLIAN EXPLAINS

"What do I want you to do?" she said. "Plenty, and then some! It's a job you'll love, too, or you're not the same old Helena I used to know, who'd rather go shopping for pretty gowns than anything else.

"The Grahams are providing the gowns for their niece's attendants, and they don't want to spare any reasonable expense. Now, let me tell you the idea. The decorations are autumn leaves and laurel—the whole house is a bower of them—and those little bronzy chrysanthemums that have a touch of rosecolor, you know? Then, to top everything, Phil is sending over just bushels—Madge doubts the quantity, but I know him—of those exquisite roses—you know, the ones with the real rose color tips shading almost to bronze, through ivory?

"I thought that would get you where you live," she said. "Now put your massive mind on this. Mary's gown is that ivory white that blends with everything, and Marion's is the rose color that's exactly like the tips of the blossoms. She's going to carry a cluster of them. Of course Carolyn and Avis will carry the same thing, and I want you to find some of that changeable silk that will bring out the lighter bronzes of those roses."

There were some more high-pitched exclamations, and Lillian grinned at me.

"Gramercy for the watercress," she said. "But you're the lady who will have to do the selecting. How early can you get into New York; and when had you planned to meet Carolyn?"

There was another wait, and Lillian's eyebrows narrowed in a way that I knew meant she was concentrating upon Helena's transportation problems.

OUTLINES PLANS

"All right. Suppose I telephone the first thing in the morning to the shop where the gowns for Marion and Mary were made, and ask them to hold the day for you, saying that the two gowns must be ready tomorrow night? Better bring an old gown of Carolyn's that fits her, which they can rip up and get her measurements. When's she leaving Whitney—eleven? Oh, that will give loads of time.

"As soon as you've bought the material, telephone Avis Arlen—here's the number—and tell her to meet you at the shop. I'll see that she's ready to start, and I'll have all arrangements made with the shop for the gowns.

"Is there anything else you want to know, darling? That's what I thought. I'll give you leave to take your revenge in any way you wish, when I see you. Telephone me if there's anything you need.

"Oh; most important of all! Put the shop wise not to let Avis Arlen know her dress will be finished tomorrow night. I want her to get it the next morning, the day of the wedding, so that she won't be out here too early.

"Yes, we've thought of that. She probably will outkick a Texas steer because of the color of the gown. But that's where your diplomacy will come in. Ta, ta, darling! And good luck!"

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Invitation to Dance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am writing to you for your decision. We are five married couples and we get together about once a month at someone's house for a good time. But when it comes to dancing, some of the men have to be asked. I want to know if it is correct for the ladies to ask them to dance? A says it isn't, but I think it is all right because we know each other very well. A.

What lazy husbands . . . I'm afraid they are feeling the depression! Now that Leap Year is over, perhaps they will mend their ways, and do their social duty by asking the ladies to dance, and not have to be urged in this contrary-to-convention manner. I agree with A, that it's out of order for the ladies to take the initiative about this invitation.

A Tip on Tips

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly inform me whether it is proper for a lady to tip, while she is dining with a gentleman? S.

No, this would be inappropriate. The gentleman who is her host would take care of all of these details of his hospitality.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Good Vulnerable Sacrifice

Senor Jose B. Capablanca is probably better known to the world at large as a Chess player than as a player of Contract Bridge, for in the former game he once held the world's championship. In recent years, however, he has been recognized as Cuba's leading Bridge player.

In a recent Duplicate game at a bridge club in New York, he demonstrated the spirit of daring which characterizes his game by taking a sacrifice on the hand below when vulnerable. By most Bridge players vulnerable sacrifice bidding is wisely regarded as virtually taboo, as the danger of the sacrifice amounting to more than any possible gain by the opponents if they play the hand at their own bid is too great. However, this timorous policy unquestionably is overdone.

The hand and bidding were:

South, Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| Pass | 1 ♣ | Pass | 1 ♡ |
| 2 ◇ | 2 ♠ | 3 ◇ | 4 ♣ |
| Pass | 4 ♡ | Pass | Pass |
| 5 ◇ | Double | Pass | Pass |
| Pass | | | |

When the hand went down it was apparent that Senor Capablanca must play very well in order to hold the set to two tricks. West's Opening lead was the heart Queen, which to South's relief East did not overtake. Had East taken this trick and then led a club the sacrifice would have been in vain. When the Queen held, the prospect of limiting the set to two tricks and thus making the sacrifice profitable appeared bright, depending only upon the trump situation. When West continued with another heart, South trumped and led the Queen of diamonds, which was won with the Ace in Dummy. Another heart was led and ruffed in the South hand. A low diamond was then led to the Dummy and the last heart led and ruffed by the Declarer. A low spade was now led, which was won with the Ace, and a spade returned. West, as Senor Capablanca had expected from his Opening bid, won this trick as well as another spade, but then was forced to lead a club, which permitted Senor Capablanca to win the trick with the King and thus hold the penalty to 2 tricks or 500 points.

Inasmuch as the value of four hearts bid and made at Duplicate is 620 points, South's sacrifice was a profitable one.

TODAY'S QUESTION

After I opened the bidding my partner raised me to game, which my right-hand opponent and I both passed. Thinking my left hand opponent had also passed, my partner and I exchanged hands so that we could see what each other held. At this point we discovered that the hand had not been passed out and that my left-hand opponent wished to make another bid. Was he entitled to a penalty?

Answer—He may exact a very strict penalty. All the cards both you and your partner hold have become exposed cards. He may therefore bar you from further participation in the auction, and if he wishes to make a bid by which he or his partner becomes the Declarer, all your and your partner's cards must be spread upon the table and become subject to call. This means that the Declarer may force you to play any card which does not constitute a revoke, making you discard Aces and other high cards whenever it is legally possible for you to do so.

Cooking Peas

It sometimes happens, when cooking peas and similar vegetables in a steamer, that only the bottom layer gets cooked because many of the perforations are blocked by the peas. To prevent this, put one or more pie funnels in the steamer first. This insures plenty of steam over the top as well.

Household Hints

If you're boiling a ham and want to give it added flavor put half a cupful of vinegar and half a cupful of brown sugar, together with some cloves, and you'll have a ham that is a ham.

Taffeta should be washed by squeezing gently in lukewarm, soapy water, using soap flakes. Rinse in warm and then in cold water, press in dry cloths till only damp, then with a moderate iron press all seams on wrong side and iron the remainder of the article on the right side.

A glass pitcher filled with sweetened fruit juices and stored in the ice box can be converted quickly into punch by adding iced water and ice.

If you do not like too thick a mayonnaise dressing, but prefer one fluffy and delicate, add whipped cream, in equal proportion to the mayonnaise. If you are making a French dressing, a piece of garlic rubbed around your salad bowl prior to mixing will give it a highly seasoned flavor without making it too strong.

"GIVE YOUR CHILDREN A LIQUID LAXATIVE"

NRA

Did you know a laxative that works just right for you, can work havoc with a child?

Read this, Mothers!

Doctors urge the use of a liquid laxative for children; preferably one with senna. A liquid laxative can be easily regulated to suit. The natural laxative action of senna does not weaken the bowels.

Druggists report increasing demand for liquid laxatives. Mothers are rapidly discovering the advantage of the liquid form. Thousands of cases of ill-health—and half-health—in boys and girls are being cleared-up by stopping all use of laxatives of adult strength.

The preparation widely favored for child use is California Syrup of Figs. It is a fruity syrup with the right amount of senna for gentle stimulation of a child's bowels. It gives the right kind of help.

If the bowels aren't moving regularly and thoroughly, don't give any medicine that drains the system dry. Give a liquid senna preparation like California Syrup of Figs. A little every day, and reduce the dose each day. At the end of one week — stop. You'll be surprised how long it will be before the bowels need any further help. It may be months.

Be sure you get the real California Syrup of Figs, with "California" on the label. If you get the right preparation, and use it the right way, you can absolutely end all worry over constant sluggish spells, bilious attacks, constipation.

Druggists all keep California Syrup of Figs, ready for use. It is highly recommended for regulating children, and to undo the mischief done by habit-forming laxatives.

Today there's a tea that's not for a debutante—something unusual in this season of many buds. Mrs. W. Harry Brown, who has opened her home at Fifth and Murrayhill avenues for the winter, is entertaining there today for Mrs. George Barnett, of Washington.

It's interesting to have this old Pittsburgh home with its hospitable rooms open once more. It is typical of the period before huge apartment buildings came into being.

And now for news of what the debs will be doing this week. There'll be no coming out parties this week, but there will be some deb entertainments.

The first comes Thursday when Mrs. Richmond F. Ball will give a luncheon in her home for Pegg Griffiths and Maria Wilson. On Friday, Mrs. Robert Keeney will entertain at a luncheon in the Edgeworth Club for Louise Collier.

Then on Saturday Mrs. W. Harry Brown will entertain at a dinner in the Pittsburgh Golf Club for Analana Beeson and Katharine Ward; and at the same club and the same time Mrs. B. R. B. Townsend will also give a dinner, with hers in honor of Betsy Liggett. And after the dinners, all the guests will join in the club's dance.

Dining Dancing

* * *

* * *

Mrs. Arthur E. Braun entertained the Ogontz Alumnae Association yesterday afternoon in her home, Morewood Heights. And in addition to making bandages for the Tuberculosis League Hospital, the members folded Christmas seals, which will soon be in the mails.

* * *

The Robert L. Clauses have been at the Hotel Shoreham, Washington. Joining them there was their daughter, Mary Elizabeth Clause, a student at Miss Madeira's School.

* * *

Added to our musical affairs of the winter are the Shapiro Quartet chamber music concerts, to be given Sunday afternoons at 3:30 o'clock at the Hotel Schenley, beginning this Sunday.

* * *

For the first time in its history Sunday night, the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra was practically a sell-out. And now for the first time in its history, it looks as though the Mendelssohn Choir was going to sell out for its "Children's Crusade," to be sung tonight in Carnegie Music Hall.

'Crusade' Tonight

New Brighton Girl Weds In Church

In Christ Episcopal Church yesterday afternoon Miss Helen E. Douglass, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Douglass, of New Brighton, married Dr. Justus D. Duve, of Oakdale, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Duve, of Tulsa, Okla. The bridegroom's parents were here for the wedding.

The Rev. M. F. Ashton, rector of the church, officiated. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore her mother's wedding gown of white satin and rose point lace and a messaline veil. She carried a white prayer book with a streamer marker of lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Charles Worthington Ross III, of Frederick, Md., was the matron of honor, wearing flamcrepe with a turban of silver cloth and net with a tiny nose veil. She carried a silver cloth muff with a spray of rose buds. Mr. Ross III, was the best man.

The mother of the bride chose a gown of blackberry lace and rust crepe having deep cuffs of silver cloth. Serving as ushers were H. W. Douglass, Jr., brother of the bride, and Robert N. Delaney, of Oakdale.

After a motor trip Dr. Duve and his bride will be at home in Oakdale, about December 15.

Duquesne Alumni Plans Series Of Affairs

Alumni of Duquesne University plan a series of luncheons, dances, fraternity dinners and class reunions both before and after the "Homecoming Day" game with Geneva College at Forbes Field, Saturday afternoon. Leonard P. Kane, is general chairman.

Both men and women graduates will be present at the pre-game luncheon at Webster Hall, 12:15 o'clock Saturday. At 6:30 following the game a number of class reunions and fraternity dinners will be held at Webster Hall. An informal dance is planned for the same place at 9.

Emerson Club to Give Dance for Duquesne Team

The Emerson Club of Sacred Heart Church, East End, will entertain the Duquesne University football team at an informal dance Monday evening in the Guild Hall, Center avenue.

James Gorman, chairman, has appointed as his aides, Miss Margaret McConaughy, Miss Catherine Moore, Miss Gertrude Novak, Miss Mary Dawson, Miss Emily Clancy, Charles Murphy, Frank McKenna, Joseph Merk, Wilbur White, Howard Sweeney and William Clair.

Students of University School to Give Play

Students of the University School will present a play, "The Eve in Evelyn," a comedy by Glenn Hughes, Friday night at the school, to be followed by a reception for parents of students, friends, members of the faculty and their wives and alumni.

Appearing in the play, coached by Russell Robert Koop, class of '32, and directed by H. M. McGuire, head of the English department, will be Miss Virginia Gale Rabe, Colvin E. Wright, Miss Helen Robinson, Robert E. Stockton and Paul L. Swoger.

PAJAMAS FOR THOSE THAT LIKE THEM

By PRUNELLA WOOD

RUMOR had it that there was to be a dearth of dress-up pajamas for addicts to wear about the home in place of tea gowns and suchlike. But there are plenty of models to be found by searching about, among them the ones sketched on this page, and aptly called "bar suits."

Only a ninny would suppose that post-Prohibition libations would splash less disastrously than those of the extra-legal days, and bars that have become house pets are not going to be put out in the cold. So why not bar suits? Especially models that are inexpensive as well as becoming and comfortable.

Like all the rest of the newest costumes, high lustered fabrics are respected for hostess pajamas, too. No matter what a garment is, it must look as elegant as possible. But in spite of this, it is likely that this winter we shall not go neighboring in pajamas, but keep them strictly for home consumption. They are too informal, no matter how high styled they may be, or of whatever high hat material.

Myers Urges People Begin To Think

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Additional chairs had to be moved into the already full auditorium after yesterday morning's lecture had begun at the Twentieth Century Club, which attests to the popularity of William Starr Myers, of Princeton, who was there to give the first of his political current events talks. And it was a new note this forceful speaker sounded in his plea that the American people begin to think; to try to understand their country's problems and to uphold the hands of their President in his fight against the inflationaries.

Several times Mr. Myers praised President Roosevelt, saying he was one of the three presidents the United States has had who understood the office of president (Woodrow Wilson and Theodore Roosevelt were the others) and that he and Calvin Coolidge and Thomas Jefferson were the cleverest politicians ever in the White House.

Mr. Myers said he knows of no instance in history where inflation had not made the rich richer and the poor poorer and had not itself got out of hand. People who are advocating inflation are like a man playing with dynamite in a crowded street, he said. He insisted that it is unfair of Congress to put so much responsibility on President Roosevelt without indicating any policy.

Later in his talk he said although Congress "may go haywire" next January he believes there are enough gold Republicans and gold Democrats to uphold a veto, if the people will only show that they want it. Inflation means the confiscation of thrift, he declared.

Speaking of what he called "the silver ballyhoo," Mr. Myers termed William Jennings Bryan "the great apostle to the morons" and said the total silver production last year was exceeded by the production of peanuts and about equalled by the production of men's suspenders.

Voters' League Units List Meetings

The Twenty-third Ward League of Women Voters will meet tonight in the Schiller School, Chestnut street. Mrs. John O. Miller, chairman of the county government committee, will speak on "Our Civic Responsibility."

The Wilkinsburg League meets this afternoon in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel to hear Montfort Jones, professor of banking at the University of Pittsburgh, speak and Martha Eaton Brickman, soprano.

A new league, recently organized in the Twenty-second Ward, will have its first regular meeting at the home of Mrs. L. W. Blanchard, Arch street, tomorrow.

The monthly conferences of all leagues is set for Thursday at the Congress of Clubs, central committees meeting at 10:30 o'clock. The courts committee will take up the study of the Orphans Court under the direction of the chairman, Mrs. Bessie Kann Sack. "Sore Spots in the World and World Population" will be the subject considered at a joint meeting of the international cooperation committee and the immigration committee under the leadership of Mrs. David Alter and Mrs. H. K. Griffin.

The child welfare committee will have for its speakers H. L. Latimer, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind. At 3 this committee will make a tour of the Workshop for the Blind, South Craig street.

The education committee under the leadership of Mrs. Stuart L. Henderson will discuss what has been done and what can be done to change sources of income for the public schools. Members of the newly organized committee on women in industry will meet at the same hour with Mrs. Charles Arnold, chairman. Luncheon at 12:15 will be in charge of Mrs. Bessie K. Sack, with E. O. Tabor as speaker. His subject is: "Eve Steps In."

Council Reports to Be Given Vassar Alumnae

Don't Merely Coddle It with Half-Way Measures!

A cold is nothing to trifle with! It may end seriously. A cold, being an internal infection, calls for an internal treatment. It also calls for a COLD remedy and not something good for a number of other things as well.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is direct and internal—and it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is taking chances with a cold. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is sold by all druggists, 30c and 50c. Accept no substitute.

35 Years of Club Relived In Wilkinsburg Pageant

The 35 years of its life were lived over again yesterday by the Woman's Club of Wilkinsburg, when at a luncheon and with a pageant in the College Club it celebrated its anniversary. Two hundred members were present. The pageant was written by Mrs. Floyd H. Carson around a line, "the great common woman's heart of us all," from Mary Stewart's "Collect for Club Women," Mrs. James I. McLallen portraying the "Woman Heart."

Mrs. Frank H. Davis, president, presented the junior president, Mrs. J. R. Wylie, Jr., to her and Mrs. W. G. Reineman, as "the Recording Voice," called up the past, depicted in decades by members in period costume, who read from the minutes.

These old records show the growing interest, strength and widening horizon of the organization. Hospital, educational, civic and philanthropic work have always engaged the interest of the club and all through the minutes stress was laid on "cleaning up the town," resolutions including even the members' own front yards in the "cleaning up."

A short memorial service was made a part of the pageant. Music was furnished by Miss Miriam Young and Mrs. Robert C. Young. Past presidents and charter members participated in the pageant.

Carnegie Club Women To Visit Home Display

Members of the Carnegie Woman's Club will visit the Boggs and Buhl home display tomorrow. At the regular meeting of the club on Friday afternoon Mrs. J. W. Rehling will be leader and an address on the mining and game sections of South Africa will be given by Graham Bright.

Hostesses for the meeting, which will be in the Y. W. C. A., are Mrs. Rolla Lyons and Mrs. R. E. Gregg.

UNIVERSITIES' MERGER NEAR

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Negotiations looking toward a merger combining the University of Chicago and Northwestern University into one great educational enterprise today were reported to have reached the final stage.

Melvin A. Traylor, chairman of the Northwestern University merger committee, said the combination would be complete and not a co-operative union.

Details of the merger will be made public January 1, President Robert M. Hutchins, of the University of Chicago, said.

Although three proposals have been studied by a committee of three educators, it was reported the members favor a complete merger.

Waddell May Replace Morrow on Vote Board

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Nov. 21.—The Pittsburgh Registration Commission, revised during the last legislative session through the removal of two Democrats and their replacement by two other Democratic members approved by Joseph F. Guffey and County Chairman David L. Lawrence, is due for another overhauling, according to reliable information about the Capitol.

Mr. Shields

This time a change, if made, will involve the Republican membership, and it will result in the supplanting of John K. Morrow, chairman of the commission.

Mr. Morrow, if removed as a commissioner, will not be ousted from the state service, but will be given a position in some other department under the control of the Governor.

No specific charge has been made against Mr. Morrow's conduct of his office, but the Governor and his strategists in Allegheny County believe it would be advisable to strengthen the commission politically, if that can be done and at the same time give the commission efficiency.

There is a probability that the job will go to Robert Waddell, a young Republican who made a wide appeal during the recent municipal primary when he was a candidate for City Council on the McArdle ticket supported by the Citizens League. Mr. Waddell received more votes than any other candidate on the ticket except McArdle and William A. Magee. He made an excellent showing for a man new to politics.

After the primary he spoke for the election of Mayor John S. Herron on the Republican ticket.

* * *

Waddell's Help Seen In Pinchot Senate Race

It is figured that his background makes him a suitable man to become a registration commissioner. As coach of the Carnegie Tech football team he enjoyed a wide acquaintance, which was expanded in the campaign.

The Governor and those siding with him figure that Mr. Waddell is the type of young man who should be drawn into political activity, and they will do it, even if the regular Republican organization will not.

Consideration of a change in the commission points definitely to the fact that today Mr. Pinchot is considering a Senatorial campaign next year. The attachment of Mr. Waddell to his cause—and it is assumed he would be friendly, else he would not be appointed—can be viewed as a distinct gain if he will take the place.

Since the Democratic mayoralty victory there have been reports that the two Democratic members of the committee would make the point that they were the majority party representatives, and should have the chairmanship.

Mrs. J. Wood Clark, one of the members appointed during the last session, is understood to have a desire for the chairmanship, now held by Morrow.

Should Waddell be appointed, it is the intention of Mr. Pinchot that he, despite lack of experience, should become the chairman. It is considered that he would be a forceful person in that position.

* * *

Boxing Commission Decision Held Up

Gov. Pinchot today said that he had not come to any decision with respect to the appointment of a third member of the State Boxing Commission. Havey J. Boyle, Pittsburgh newspaperman, was not reappointed last week when the Governor sent nominations to state commissions to the Legislature.

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern and Judge Ralph H. Smith saw the Governor together yesterday, and the subject was then discussed. McGovern is vigorously supporting the re-nomination of Boyle, and told the Governor that any statements derogatory to the Pittsburgh newspaperman were without foundation.

Judge Smith, it is understood, said nothing disparaging about the work of Boyle, but he is understood to favor the appointment of Dr. William McClelland, former Pitt football star.

Mr. Pinchot did say that, while he had no present intention of acting on the clash between his two friends in Pittsburgh, there was the chance that "something might happen" which could cause him to move speedily.

The last time "something happened" to make the Governor move speedily on an Allegheny County appointment was in the case of County Court Judge Benjamin Lencher, and that action, significantly, was taken at the instance of Judge Smith.

MRS. GARAVINI TELLS STORY OF KILLING

Police to Seize Pistol Of Victim From Widow's Home

Mrs. Margaret Garavini's version of the downtown battle in which her husband, Andy Garavini, was fatally shot, today was in the hands of the homicide detectives.

The attractive red-haired widow, recovered from the collapse which visited her after she saw her husband shot outside the William Penn Hotel, visited detective headquarters to tell what she saw the night her husband, who was a hacker, and her ex-husband, Iggy Swartz, a gambler, tangled.

Lieut. Frank Ferris quoted her as saying:

"Andy did not have a revolver at the time of the shooting. We had been at the Hotel and were leaving when Swartz, who was talking with a woman in an automobile, seeing us, made an insulting remark. I couldn't quite hear what he said, but he came towards us. Andy reached for his pocket, where he carried a blackjack, and before I knew anything both were in a fight.

"Swartz drew a revolver and Andy tried to take it from him. They were very close, scuffling on the street, when the gun was discharged. As Andy fell, I became excited and picked up the revolver and threw it at Swartz. The gun had a pearl handle."

Mrs. Garavini explained that Andy carried his revolver only on special occasions. Lieut. Ferris said he would confiscate the Garavini gun, from the widow's home in Mt. Lebanon. The blackjack mentioned by Mrs. Garavini has not been found.

Garavini died without leaving a will.

A bond of $10,000 required would indicate the estate was valued at only $5,000.

Sleuth Opens Fire On 'Peeping Tom'

A Negro peeper detected peering into a Bartlett street home early today was fired upon by Special Patrolman J. N. McCullough, he reported to police. The Negro was looking into the home of Mrs. B. Mecklin, McCullough said. When the man ran and refused to halt, McCullough fired two shots, he reported.

'Radio Deal' Turns Out to Be Holdup

Seeking an automobile radio at a bargain price, two Swissvale youths followed an unidentified Negro into a secluded spot in Roberts street last night to complete the deal. There the Negro drew a revolver and commanded the two to give him their money. They did.

The victims, who said they lost $3.25, were Allen Evans, 17, of 304 La Blank place, Swissvale, and Edward Abel, 17, of 1210 Uptegraff street, Swissvale.

Discuss Finances, Swallows Poison

After discussing financial matters with her husband, Mrs. Sue Zona, 28, swallowed acid in her home at 406 South Evaline street, last midnight according to police. She was taken to St. Francis Hospital where it was said her condition is serious.

New Kensington Boy Hurt in 'Y' Fall

Ray Beatty, 12, of 1161 Fifth avenue, New Kensington, was in the Citizens General Hospital today with head injuries suffered in a fall at the Y. M. C. A. there last night, according to a hospital report.

WELFARE FUND TOTAL REACHES $1,490,476

Employes' Division Leads for Day With $24,724

Workers in the Welfare Fund drive at their noon luncheon today reported new contributions of $59,736, making a grand total thus far in the campaign of $1,490,476.

The meeting was in charge of the employes' division, which was also high division for the day in new contributions with $24,724.

A feature of the meeting was the report that 20 boys of the Soho Community House had contributed 41 cents, which represented their dues for the week. One boy was fined a cent for being late, accounting for the odd cent, their regular dues being two cents each.

Reports by divisions today were: Special gifts, William P. Snyder, chairman, $8,100; corporations, H. S. Wherrett, chairman, $950; Central, women, Mrs. J. C. Dilworth, chairman, $8,234; Central, men, D. M. Craig, chairman, $8,027; City Neighborhood, C. W. Ridinger, chairman, $2,178; County, neighborhood, W. B. Quinby, chairman, $826; Unit, Roy G. Bostwick, chairman, $6,696; Employes, James Rae, chairman, $24,724.

PLAN NEW BANK IN HAZELWOOD

A plan for the reorganization of the Hazelwood Savings and Trust Company has been placed in the hands of stockholders and depositors, according to D. C. W. Birmingham, president.

The proposition calls for the use of 16 per cent of deposits over $100 each for the purchase of stock in a new institution to be known as the Hazelwood Bank. An additional $80,000 in stock is to be subscribed in the community.

At the opening of the new bank, 40 per cent of deposits would be made available in cash and 34 per cent would be held for liquidation in the old bank. The cash freed would be approximately $800,000.

RFC FUNDS GO TO 13,400 DEPOSITORS

Bank of Pittsburgh Frees $2,775,000 Frozen Cash

The Bank of Pittsburgh N. A. today started making one of the first distributions under the deposit liquidation plan of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, announced last month.

Arthur R. Atwood, receiver for the institution which closed its doors September 21, 1931, announced that the bank is ready to pay an additional 10 per cent to depositors. This is the third payment and brings the total to 70 per cent.

The distribution amounts to $2,775,000 and will be made to 13,400 depositors.

Checks for the payment were received from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation this morning, Atwood announced.

Notices were mailed all banks having deposits in the Bank of Pittsburgh and to 2,000 individual depositors today. Additional notices will be mailed to other depositors daily. The receiver requests that depositors await receipt of notices before calling for their checks since it would be impossible to distribute all checks at one time. Mailing of notices will be completed November 28.

Atwood declared that in making this payment it was necessary to borrow a large part of the funds from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. This loan must be paid off before an additional distribution can be made. Because of the nature of the remaining uncollected assets it will be many months before an additional distribution can be made, according to Atwood.

It is believed desirable not to sacrifice remaining assets at present but to wait for the effects of improved business conditions.

Atwood pointed out that the income from interest, rents and other sources is more than twice the cost of carrying on the receivership. The expenses include payment of all taxes on real estate owned by the bank.

Democrat Carrying Washington County

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 21.—(AP.)—With only four more districts to go, Edwin W. Patton, Democrat, leads his good friend and neighbor, Fred W. Brady, Republican, in the race for Sheriff of Washington County.

The return board has counted ballots of 181 of the county's 185 precincts, and Patton has a lead of 140 votes.

POLICE PLACED ON PROBATION

North Braddock's police have been placed on probation for the remainder of the year by Burgess G. Fenton Michell.

The Burgess summoned four policemen before a closed meeting of the Borough Council and reprimanded them for drinking while on the job. He also told them that not only they, but the rest of the borough's 18 policemen, would be suspended if they acted "in a manner unbecoming officers" before the end of the year.

EARLY BUYING HELD AID TO NRA

Business, Civic Leaders Join Move to Spur Holiday Trade

With Thanksgiving falling exactly 25 days before Christmas this year, Pittsburgh business and civic leaders, headed by former Gov. John S. Fisher, president of the Chamber of Commerce, today urged Christmas shoppers to begin buying before the Thanksgiving holiday.

Constituting the shortest length of time between the two holidays since 1922, the period allows only 20 shopping days before Christmas, they pointed out, urging extension to approximately a week before Thanksgiving.

In addition to assuring better service and the choice of complete stocks to the customers, the movement would enable merchants to give employment without delay to the thousands of unemployed looking forward to Christmas season openings. Fisher said:

"As a spur to business and a boon to the unemployed, it conforms directly with the principles of the NRA. I endorse it heartily."

The staffs of many stores are increased from 25 to 50 per cent during the Christmas shopping season, according to estimates, but customarily the additional force is not employed until after Thanksgiving. Extension of the shopping period, the success of which depends on the public's response to the appeal, would mean, in most cases, an extension of the employment period and provision of extra money to many to brighten otherwise barren Christmases in their homes, it was pointed out.

NRA'S APPEAL

The force of the NRA's terrific appeal will be borne out extensively this Christmas through the $200,000,000 worth of toys 1933's children will receive from Santa Claus, according to officials of the Toy Manufacturers' Association. They report a strong trend toward miniature blue eagles as toys and the wide use of the NRA insignia on dolls, tin soldiers, electric trains and other mechanical novelties.

A survey in New York, where a similar "Shop Before Thanksgiving" appeal is being made, reveals a trend away from strictly practical gifts among early Christmas shoppers—a trend hailed as "encouraging" by business men of that city. Dealers report toys leading in pre-Christmas sales with sporting goods second and perfumes, fancy stationery, silverware and jewelry running 15 to 20 per cent over November sales last year.

SANTA CLAUS PARADE

Officially opening the pre-Christmas season will be a "Santa Claus" parade Saturday with 15,000 marchers and numerous floats and displays, headed by Santa Claus and his retinue. The parade will form on the North Side near the north end of Manchester Bridge, move down Federal street, traverse the principal thoroughfares of downtown Pittsburgh and end at the City-County Building, where Mayor John S. Herron will extend official welcome to Santa.

Three competitive events — for drum and bugle corps, non-professional bands and mummers depicting humorous characters—will be features of the parade. Prizes totaling $200 will be awarded by the parade committee. Judges will be George Seibel, of the Sun-Telegraph; Kaspar Monahan, of the Pittsburgh Press, and Harvey Gaul, of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette. Frank W. Shea is director of the parade, which is scheduled to begin at 9 a. m. and designed to require no more than one hour to pass a given point.

Operator 13 by ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Weary Girl Hears Stranger Speak Pass-Phrase

(Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan production made for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies.)

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

HERE AND THERE SMALL DETACHMENTS OF THE OPPOSING ARMIES WOULD MEET, CLASH BRIEFLY, EACH RIDING MADLY—

Capt. Charles E. Cadwaladers' troops of the Sixth Pennsylvania Lancers galloped into Emmitsburg, riding out through the evening glow along a wet road curving westward.

The old town had not altered much in a hundred years—had grown very little—that is, it had shrunk like an old, old man who had been young when "The Old Line's bugle, fife and drum" sounded the marching music of the Maryland Line of the Continental Army. The Philadelphia cavalry that now rode into it were looking for rebel cavalry, reported near Chambersburg and riding South.

Everybody in Emmitsburg had felt the earth jarring with the thunderous coming of the Yankee lancers, and had run to doors and windows to watch them pass—a torrent of whistling, snapping scarlet pennants and plunging horses. Among these good folk was the beautiful and celebrated Lady Greensleeves, who stood with white hands clenched and stared at the avalanche of slanting lances driving northward through Main street.

Farther out on the Chambersburg road another person heard and then saw the lancers—a shabby young horseman in straw hat and hickory shirt, whose small gray eyes were wet with tears, and who emerged from the roadside bushes as soon as the lancers had passed, looked down a moment at their hoof-prints in the damp road and then spurred his horse furiously toward Emmitsburg, urging him to a head-long run.

Another person, also, heard, but did not see the passing Union cavalry; did not even know whether the galloping horsemen were Federal or Confederate. This person looked like a Negro boy hatless and bare-footed. She was Operator 13 of the United States Secret Service. She rode one horse and led another, and seemed to be very tired as she jogged along the mountain road through deepening sunset glory toward the Emmitsburg pike.

Darkening Eyes

The young man in the hickory shirt arrived in Emmitsburg before she did. As he passed the Morris house he saw Lady Greensleeves on the veranda. He looked at her. She was worth looking at. She did not appear to notice him.

At that instant a sound of distant galloping again broke the golden stillness of the street; the young man turned his panting horse into a narrow, shady lane and dismounted. There was a horse trough there. He let his horse drink a mouthful, then bathed his head and legs with a handful of drenched grass, pausing to watch another small patrol of lancers canter up Main street.

Lady Greensleeves also watched them. Lady Greensleeves' eyes were the light violet tint of a flower-de-luce, but they seemed to darken as the Federal horsemen passed. She looked after them—until they were out of sight, then turned and entered the open doorway behind her. Somebody presently drew the window curtains of the Morris house.

A little girl in the shadowy back parlor sat before a small piano and played and sang "Maryland, My Maryland" very, very softly.

When Operator 13 of the United States Secret Service rode wearily past Sainte Mary's College in Emmitsburg, she hoped to find the ancient village occupied by Yankee cavalry and already under martial law.

She saw no vedettes, no pickets, no cavalry, no provost marshal. There seemed to be nobody in the deserted street, through which poured the rays of the westerly sun, tinging puddles of rain water clear gold.

Read This First

Gail Loveless, at 20, became a spy in the Federal service and was designated as Operator 13. In the disguise of a quadroon laundress, she was sent to the headquarters of Gen. J. E. B. Stuart, Confederate cavalry leader, who was planning a daring raid into Pennsylvania.

Capt. Gailliard, leader of Stuart's spies, flirted with her, kissed her, fell half in love with her and was ashamed of himself. He and Belle Boyd, most famous Confederate woman spy, were convinced that "Lucille Lyndon," as she called herself, was a genuine colored girl, and harmless. But Vespasian Chancellor, Gailliard's colleague, suspected her. Eventually he exposed her as a spy. She stole Gailliard's horse, struck him in the face with his own pistol and fled.

Barred from flight in any other direction, she boldly joined Stuart's cavalry as it started north on its Pennsylvania raid. She cajoled Yellow Bob, Stuart's groom, into letting her ride one of the General's horses. She stole a farm boy's clothes to improve her disguise. Chancellor's "instinct" led him to a stable where Operator 13 had hidden in a hayloft. Gailliard, with Chancellor, persuaded the latter to go away.

Operator 13, taking Gen. Stuart's horses, rode away. Chancellor pursued and Gailliard followed him. The girl ambushed and trapped both, separately, and made them give her their parole, on pain of instant shooting. The three saw a group of blue-clad soldiers ride into a clearing below them and hang a man. Frantically, Operator 13 bade her prisoners get the horses and flee. Gailliard hesitated to kiss the girl.

Now Go On With the Story

The horror of that military hanging in the hayfied was still raw in her mind and she longed for forgetfullness in sleep. Operator 13 was deathly tired, scarce able to keep her saddle on Skylark and lead Lady Margrave.

As she rode to the postoffice the assistant postmaster waddled out on the veranda in fretful argument with a dingy fellow citizen who followed, dangling a paper bag containing dry prunes.

Indignation

So Operator 13 drew bridle to inquire for the Federal provost, but before she could open her lips the postmaster, continuing his argument, said stubbornly: "No, Clem, there's too much pomp and horsefeathers into this here war to suit me. I wuz over to Frederick, an' I seen that there fat Yankee general settin' pompious onto a hoss like a yeller-belly frog onto a lily pad. Well, let him set pompious. He can if he's a mind to. But he ain't a-goin' to lay down no millingtary law for me."

Clem expectorated, extracted a prune from the paper bag and munched it dubiously. "Martial law is millingtary law and ain't to be sneezed at, George," he remonstrated mildly. "Ef I wuz you I wouldn't wanta set onto no iron bunk in Fort McHenry. No, sir, not me."

"I ain't aimin' to set onto no bunk of no kind, shape or ma[illegible] ner nowhere, neither," retorted the postmaster. "I'm a deputy United States official, I am. So let the Yankees act pompious onto their horses if they're a mind to. I ain't a-going to turn no letters over to them nor anybody else, neither—I ain't."

They turned from the doorway to stare down at her.

"What you want?" demanded the postmaster.

Longs for Sleep to Forget Horror Of Hanging

Short Answer

"There ain't no provost here," replied the postmaster angrily, "an' we don't want none, neither."

"Kin yuh-all tell me whar am de Linkum sodgers, suh?"

"There wuz a passel of lancers went kitin' through before sundown, scarin' everybody," grunted the postmaster. "What you wanta know for?"

"I tell you there ain't no provost here. There's a yeller-belly frog settin' pompious over to Frederick. Mebbe he'll charge you 10 cents to take a peek at him." He waddled into the postoffice and banged the weather-beaten door behind him.

His crony, Clem, expectorated, shook his wizened head, fished out a prune, munched it toothlessly, reflectively, indicating the closed door with troubled thumb. "He's riled," he remarked "One o' them lancer officers wuz all for ransackin' the mail boxes, and George wouldn't have it. But I tell him he'll land into Fort McHenry ef he talks uppity to them Yankee lancers . . . What you want, Bub?"

A distant drumming sound on

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 21.

Well, the name of the new Russian Ambassador appeared in the papers and it just about took up all the paper. It's Alexander Antonovich Troyanovski. That's an alphabetic rhapsody in vowels and consonants. But they don't put much over on Mr. Roosevelt. He sent em a gun named Bullitt. That was just a kind of subtle hint.

Will Rogers

Mr. Roosevelt was rather undecided exactly what to do on the stabilization of the dollar, till the U. S. Chamber of Commerce came out and told him what to do. Then he knew exactly what to do. Do what the chamber said not to do. Mr Roosevelt knows he is right now Before he was in doubt.

Yours,

WILL.

M'GOVERN SEES HIRING FRIENDS GOOD POLITICS

If you stood in with the boss on that county road job out in Moon Township, you had it pretty soft, according to a group of 21 dismissed workmen who complained to the County Commissioners today.

Col. C. C. McGovern, chairman of the Commissioners, lives out that way and, according to the complainants, every morning, when his car is sighted, a warning yell goes up:

Immediately all adopt an air of activity until the McGovern car is out of sight, after which:

"They begin sleeping again."

These gentlemen were all working on the Stoops Ferry-Shoustown road. Yesterday the foreman, Duncan McCarter, dismissed 21 and retained, so the 21 cried, his North Side friends. This simply moved McGovern to explain:

"What the h—'s the difference? The boss down there probably laid off somebody and kept his friends. You'd do the same thing. That's the way it's done. If you didn't do it there'd be something wrong with your head . . . You men are not going to get any more work to complain about, as far as I'm concerned. It looks to me as if there's a state of Communism."

The complainants were far from timid in their report. They said one favored "workman" hadn't drawn a sober breath for six months; another hadn't touched pick or shovel since he came on the job.

And the session wound up with this sentimental tribute to Col. McGovern by one of the complainants:

TEACHERS' PAY CUT OPPOSED

Opposing any change in Pittsburgh's system of public education, the women's division of the Pittsburgh Council of Churches in a letter to Marcus Aaron, president of the Board of Education, today commended the board for its high standards and urged abandonment of any economic plan which would further cut teachers' salaries.

The letter, signed by Mrs. Harry G. Samson, expresses a desire to "assist and encourage" the board in every way possible. It further states:

"No one likes high taxes and we advocate every possible economy so long as it does not destroy the efficiency of an enlightened educational program or interfere with the fullest development of the children, who will be the citizens of the next generation, upon whom such great responsibilities will fall."

The letter also states:

MURDER JURY HEARS CRIPPLE

Peter Hanulik's mind went blank before he shot and killed his wife, Mary, and fired a bullet into his own head in a club in Tarentum, he told a jury today in Criminal Court where he is on trial for murder.

The crippled man testified:

"I worked late getting the barroom ready to reopen. I had taken a couple of drinks. I went to sleep. When I woke I felt sick and took more drinks. I felt worse. That's all I remember until I woke up in the hospital."

Hanulik's 12-year-old son, Henry, testified yesterday to finding his mother dead and his father unconscious in the barroom of the club, 236 West Sixth avenue, Tarentum, August 3. Two other Hanulik children, Bertha, 9, and Robert, 6, were in the courtroom.

Hanulik, recoverd, but is partly paralyzed.

Jailed and Fined On Liquor Charges

John Cancellieri, of Pittsburgh, was sentenced to serve three months in jail and fined $500 yesterday in Federal Court, when he pleaded guilty of violating the prohibition law by possessing and transporting five gallons of alcohol April 25. He had on three other occasions been fined for violating the liquor law.

Samued Callabra, Pittsburgh, pleaded guilty to violating the prohibition law and was fined $100.

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Sweeney Colgan, of 514 Commerce street, Wilmerding, who died Sunday, will be held tomorrow at 8:30 a. m. in St. Aloysius Church. Burial will be in St. Joseph's Cemetery.

William W. Kelley.

Funeral services for William W. Kelley, 75, who died Sunday, will be held at the home, 419 Second street, Pitcairn, at 2 p. m. tomorrow. Besides his wife he leaves two sons, Robert, of Ohio, and Frank Kelley, of Pitcairn.

Mrs. Annie D. Livingston.

Funeral services for Mrs. Annie Dunlap Livingston will be held at her home, 1031 Maple avenue, Wilkinsburg, tomorrow at 2 p. m.

Mrs. Livingston, who died Sunday, was the widow of John C. Livingston.

Stamford Funeral.

Arthur A. Stamford, son of Mrs. Alice Street Stamford, 492 Ella street, Wilkinsburg, died yesterday. Funeral services will be held at his home Thursday at 2:30 p. m.

CLEAR HUSBAND IN WOMAN'S DEATH

William J. McMeen, 56, rear of 154 South Eighteenth street, an orderly at the City Hospital at Mayview, arrested last night for questioning in connection with the death of his wife, Frances McMeen, 50, was to be released today.

Mrs. McMeen was found dead in bed in her home last night. The body was taken to the morgue, where an autopsy disclosed that she died of natural causes.

Homicide detectives said McMeen told conflicting stories when questioned about her death. First he told them, they said, that "I heard my wife dying sometime in the afternoon." He was unable to explain why a physician had not been called. Later he was alleged to have told the detectives he thought she was intoxicated.

The autopsy failed to reveal any evidence of foul play. Detectives then announced that McMeen would be freed.

WOMAN INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Mrs. Henry Vondera, 52, of 114 East Twenty-first street, Homestead, suffered brain concussion and severe lacerations on the scalp when an automobile driven by her daughter, Marie, and another, operated by John L. Weisburg, 34, of 3823 Beechwood boulevard, collided at Beechwood boulevard and Forward avenue, last night.

Dixmont Inmate Found Dead in Room

Charles Egan, 51, who has been in the Dixmont Hospital for the Insane since January, 1932, was found dead in his room today with his throat cut, according to a report to the Coroner's office. Hospital authorities said they believed Egan committed suicide.

1932 Injury Fatal To Emsworth Woman

Injured in an automobile accident in 1932, Mrs. Janes E. Hollister, 67, a widow of 247 Greenwood avenue, Emsworth, died yesterday in her home, according to a morgue report. An investigation was ordered when no history of the accident was received at the morgue.

"Where No Pests Are Pestering"

We know just how it feels. For during the last few years we've been treated to the same medicine, by some manufacturers so eager for business that they forgot the simple rules of good conduct. You scarcely entered their showrooms before anywhere from two to half a dozen salesmen pounced upon you, determined to make a sale at all hazards. None of that spirit enters into our selling at Harris'. We're anxious to wait upon you, delighted to have you buy. But when it comes practically to DEMANDING that you purchase, we absolutely renege. We emphasize that you are always welcome here, to shop, to examine, to compare, whether you buy or do not buy. The friendliness shown here emanates from a genuine desire to be hospitable to all who come here. They are our guests, and have the right to feel at home and call our salespeople by their first names (as they have done, in some cases, for a generation).

SOLEMN MASS OPENS SLOVAK MEETING

The Rev. C. J. Hrtanek, of Homestead, was celebrant at solemn requiem high mass which formally opened the twenty-second annual convention of the National Slovak Federation of America this morning.

He was assisted at the mass in St. Paul's Cathedral by the Very Rev. M. J. Yesko, V. F., of Brownsville, deacon, and the Rev. M. Rubicky, of Clairton, sub-deacon. Masters of ceremonies were the Rev. M. J. Fajdel, of Greenfield, and the Rev. J. A. Kushner, of Donora. The Rev. A. Suron, of Pittsburgh, and the Rev. K. Karabinas, of McKees Rocks, served as acolytes, while the Rev. Thomas Harnyak, of Fair Chance, Pa., was thurifer.

Immediately after the mass the delegates opened their business session at the Fort Pitt Hotel. Today's meetings will conclude with a banquet at which the organization officers will be the guests of honor.

More than 200 delegates, from all parts of the United States, registered yesterday for the conference, and they formed a welcoming committee for the Cleveland group of about 100 representatives, who arrived at the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Station at 8 a. m. today.

E. H. Shedlock is president of the Pittsburgh District Assembly in charge of convention arrangements.

NOTED ORGANIST DIES IN HOME

Prof. Charles Guthoerl, 69, for 43 years organist at St. Peter's Catholic Church, who died last night in his home, 2805 Sarah street, will be buried from St. Peter's Church Thursday morning.

He was educated in Munich, Germany, and was a member of the Knights of St. George, American Guild of Organists, Pittsburgh Musical Society, German Beneficial Union, Loyal Order of the Moose, Fraternal Order of Eagles and St. Peter's Society.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Catherine Babinger Guthoerl; three sons, Cyril Guthoerl, organist for Father Charles E. Coughlin, at Royal Oaks, Mich., Jerome Guthoerl, of Millvale, and Bertrand Guthoerl, at home; two daughters, Irma Guthoerl Killroy and Cleo Guthoerl, Pittsburgh organists.

Cardinal Hayes' Birthday Honored

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(Universal.)—His Eminence Patrick Cardinal Hayes, archbishop of New York, was 66 yesterday, and knowing his aversion to public observance of the anniversary, his friends gave him a surprise dinner and reception at the Centre Club last night. ## Trexler Auto Death Ruled Unavoidable

EASTON, Pa., Nov. 21.—(AP.)—A coroner's jury early today returned a verdict that the automobile accident in which Gen. Harry C. Trexler, widely-known Allentown businessman, met death was unavoidable.

Gen. Trexler died last Friday after being injured in a collision between his automobile and a parked truck.

Now the Eagle Will Pounce On Frozen Chicken

-By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER-

They overlooked the government's desire to thaw out frozen collateral. This is an elimination tournament between the blue eagle and the cold storage chicken.

Like Wilde, we know not whether bankers be right or wrong; all we know is that the walls are thick and that the bars are strong.

the unpaved street silenced her. Both turned to look; and saw a dozen horsemen—more couriers from anxious headquarters—coming at a lively gallop. It was a patrol from the First Maine cavalry, hurled forward at random, to get some news of the rebel raiders.

They wore sky-blue uniforms and yellow-lined cloaks; and there was much bright yellow on collar, sleeve and breeches. They pulled up with a clash of spur and saber in front of the postoffice. There was a civilian riding with the yellow-chevroned sergeant commanding them, and Operator 13 kicked her mud-smeared horse into motion, and leading Lady Margrave, pushed up close beside him.

"Capt. Rivett," she said under her breath.

Smart Troops

She said: "I'm Operator 13, Gail Loveless. You remember?"

He inspected her leisurely, then nodded almost imperceptibly, and without any change of expression, inquired; "What are you doing here?" his lips scarce stirring when he spoke.

"I'm dead alive in my stirrups," she whispered. "Can your troopers take these two horses to Maj. Allen?"

"No; we've orders to go forward. Have you seen Stuart?"

"That's where he said he was going. Everybody knew it in Chambersburg. I saw him pass eastward through the Gap with 2,000 sabers. Isn't there anybody to take my horses, Capt. Rivett?"

"The Sixth Lancers will be following us. Tell Col. Rush what you want. I'm sorry, ma'am, but we've got to ride on." He spurred forward, calling out to his sergeant: "Push on! This little darky saw the Rebel cavalry on the Gettysburg road! You better send a courier back to Frederick!"

A boyish trooper of the First Maine whirled his horse and went off to the southward on a dead run; the others, and Dick Rivett, galloped forward. In the windows of houses along the street curtains were drawn aside and anxious faces pressed against the panes. But nobody opened any doors to come out; and presently the window curtains were redrawn across pale, anxious faces, and silence settled over Main street once again.

Clem and his bag of prunes had disappeared; the postmaster did not even peep out of his dusty window; Operator 13, drooping in her saddle, touched Skylark with weary, naked heels and the two horses moved on down the empty village road called Main Street. Passing the old Morris house, she saw a lady and a child on the veranda. The lady was slender and golden-haired.

Coming now to a lane she noticed a watering trough. The only person in sight there was a young man in a hickory shirt wearing butcher's boots and a straw hat.

He was grooming a nice-looking nag at the horse trough, and as Operator 13 turned into the secluded lane he looked up lazily. But his small, clever eyes belied his indifference.

Terrifying Question

What he saw, apparently, was a ragged Negro urchin on a handsome sweating horse, leading another horse quite as handsome. He had seen the horses before, on the other side of the Potomac.

The clever, light-gray eyes swept the girl from her sweat-tangled kinky curls to her dark, naked feet in the stirrups; shifted to examine the two horses, then keenly reverted to the forlorn figure drooping in the saddle.

"Whose little nigger are you?" he drawled.

"I's Marse Allen's nigger, suh.'

"What Marse Allen?"

"Dunno, suh. 'Spec' he-all de onlies' Marse Allen what am."

"Are those his horses?"

"Yaas, suh."

Something in the man's small, light-gray eyes began to frighten her. He said in a stealthy voice: "Where did you happen to steal Gen. Jeb Stuart's two favorite horses?"

"Damn you, do as I tell you!" she gasped.

"Very well," he replied; "but please handle your pistol with care."

"If I have to kill you I'll do it," she whispered hoarsely. "Drop your bridle! Stand wide of your horse and mine!"

Then he began to laugh noiselessly, his shrewd smooth face eloquent with admiration and amusement. "Put up your shooting iron," he said under his breath, "and let us quit fooling and discuss the weather. I reckon it's likely we shall have a night of stars."

Shock of Relief

The passwords of the Federal Secret Service seemed to shock her. Then her lips began to quiver under the reaction; she could scarce find voice to stammer out the prescribed answer: "Yes, it—it will be a night of stars and bars. H-how many stars do you reckon will be shining tonight?"

"One hundred and seven!"

"Add one hundred and seven to thirteen—" began the girl, but her voice was out of control and ended in a sob; and slowly she waited in her saddle, sinking forward and laying her face against Skylark's disordered mane.

"You seem weary, ma'am," whispered the young man. He had come close to her stirrup.

"I've been badly frightened today," she murmured, "and I haven't had any sleep. I'm nearly dead on my horse. I've got to sleep."

"Bear up a little, ma'am. You are Operator 13, of course. Do you know who I am?"

"You are Federal Operator 107, but I don't know your name."

"I was with Jack Babcock and Pauline Cushman in Martinsburg," he explained.

"What are you doing here?"

"Trailing a Rebel Secret Service agent. What news have you of Jeb Stuart?"

"The Rebel cavalry is on the Gettysburg road." Her voice grew slightly hysterical. "Please tell me what I am to do with these horses."

"Can you keep your saddle for another few miles?"

"I've got to sleep, I tell you."

"Come with me," he insisted; I will guide you out of this."

"Let me sleep, first."

"I can't wait. I'm riding through Frederick, and I'll take you and your horses to Col. Dick Rush. A heavy patrol of his lancers rode through this town an hour ago, headed north looking for Jeb Stuart. When they return this way Capt. Cadwalader will see you safely to Knoxville. Do you understand?"

Gail Loveless strove to comprehend that Union cavalry really were between Emmitsburg and the eastward-rolling wave of gray-jacketed raiders.

"Get off your horse," said Operator 107, "and go and lie down behind those trees over there. The First Maine cavalry should arrive here soon with more of the Sixth Lancers. Pheasanton's troopers are swinging up from the southwest. You are perfectly safe."

Stupid as she was from exhaustion, something in his gray eyes seemed to keep her conscious and troubled.

"What is your name?" she asked.

"Josiah Bailey."

"And you were in Martinsburg with Pauline Cushman and John Babcock?"

"Yes; I held their horses ready between Darkesville and the river."

"Nobody mentioned you to me," she said. "I wonder why."

KAMONS ARSON DEFENSE OPENS

CLEVELAND, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—The state has rested in the trial of Louis J. Kamons, convicted Pittsburgh arsonist, on a charge of first degree murder growing out of the Ellington Apartment fire last year which took 12 lives.

Defense testimony was started immediately after the state ended the testimony by which it seeks to prove Kamons conspired with Ray I. Turk, operator of a store in the Ellington Building, to burn the store and collect insurance.

The principal witness yesterday was Dr. Nellie Kramer, former tenant in the apartments. Called by the defense, she testified that for 10 days before the fire she smelled escaping gas in the building and that as a result she "prepared to move." The defense is attempting to prove the explosion was caused by escaping gas and not by ignited gasoline in an arson plot, as charged by the state.

THAT EVENING AFTER THE PARTY
NEVER HAVE SEEN YOU MORE PEPPY—AND YOU WERE JUST ABOUT DOWN AND OUT WITH A TERRIBLE COLD YESTERDAY.
ISN'T IT AMAZING! I NEVER THOUGHT A A COLD COULD BE STOPPED LIKE BAYER ASPIRIN STOPPED MINE!

Almost Instant Relief From Colds in this Simple Way

If you catch a cold—don't take chances with "cold killers" and nostrums. A cold may be dangerous to take chances on.

This is recognized as the QUICKEST, safest, surest way to treat a cold. For it often checks an ordinary cold almost as fast as you caught it. Do this:

1. Take 2 Bayer Aspirin Tablets.
2. Drink Full Glass of Water. Repeat treatment in 2 Hours.
3. If throat is sore, crush and dissolve 3 Bayer Aspirin Tablets in a half glass of water and gargle. This eases the soreness in your throat almost instantly.

Your cold should be relieved quickly when you do this because the real BAYER Aspirin embodies certain medical qualities that strike at the base of a cold almost INSTANTLY.

You can combat nearly any cold you get simply by taking BAYER Aspirin as directed. Sore throat can be eased by gargling this way in two or three minutes.

Ask your doctor about this. And when you buy, see that you get the real BAYER Aspirin. It dissolves almost instantly. And thus works almost instantly you take it internally. And for a gargle, it dissolves completely enough for this purpose. Get a box of 12 tablets or bottle of 24 or 100 at any drug store.

Pigeons at Courthouse Must Find New Home

The hundreds of pigeons which used the tower and attic of the courthouse as their home for years must now look for a new place to nest, the courthouse having been barred to the birds at an expense of about $1,200.

Property and Supplies Director Ray Sprigle said windows and screens have been installed in the tower and garret to keep out the birds and the tower and rooms have been cleaned and will now be used for storage. He said hundreds of nests were found in cleaning up the attic.

Sprigle said he believes some of the county utility men deliberately left the birds into the attic by breaking windows and on occasions the cleaning force took home young pigeons for food.

He said that shortly after he took office one of the janitors offered him a basket of young birds, but at the time he did not give it any thought.

NEVIN ANNIVERSARY SUGGESTED FOR RADIO

Pittsburgher's Melodies Would Be Welcomed On Networks

By AIRCASTER

Evidently it hasn't occurred to any of the local stations that the networks and the nation would welcome a program from Pittsburgh—Ethelbert Nevin's home—on his birthday, Saturday, November 25.

The whole world knows and loves "The Rosary," "Mighty Lak a Rose," "Narcissus," "Venetian Love Song," "O, That We Two Were Maying," and many another famous Nevin composition.

Few seem to know these delightful verses for children set to a lovely Nevin melody. Perhaps I'm a bit soft about it because it was sung to me (with futility, perhaps), in the days when I was very young.

E'ry time that I do wrong
My Daddy always comes along
And says how good he used to be
When he was just a boy like me.

And then, if I'm as good as gold
And always do as I am told,
My Daddy dear will say, "Well done!"
But I won't have a bit of fun.

Ev'ry day and ev'ry night
For some fine day, when he is grown,
He may have children of his own.

And then, he'll want to tell them all
How good he was when he was small.
And so, I think the thing to do

His Home

Nevin was born in Edgeworth (Sewickley), November 25, 1862. He came of Scotch-Irish ancestry; a distinguished family.

He married Anne Paul, of Oakmont. They had two children, Doris and Paul.

Program producers are sound asleep if they overlook this opportunity to entrance the listeners of the nation, and reflect credit on our community.

Colonels

Call has gone out to all the colonels—Col. Will Rogers, Col. Vincent Lopez, Col. Irvin S. Cobb, Col. Clark Gable and Cols. Georgie Jessel, Freddy Rich, Mae West, Morton Downey and the other scores. They have been summoned to be on hand for a coast-to-coast broadcast over the CBS-WJAS circuits, a week from tonight, November 28, at 9:15.

In the interests of the NRA, every available Kentucky colonel will do his bit in this unique broadcast with Gov. Laffoon, of Kentucky, himself figuring in the grand finale.

* * *

No musician, however famous, may ride in Radio City passenger elevators while carrying a musical instrument. They must take the freight elevators.

Lucky for Harold Bauer, Paderewski and the dozens of piano teams that they don't have to tote their instruments.

* * *

Surprises

I never expected to live long enought to see:

NBC charging admission to sightseers in the new studios, as it began to do yesterday, to pay off the guides and keep down the crowds.

The best minds in radio thinking that the Byrd broadcasts could be successful. (Anyhow, those garbled remote pickups from the South Seas, Argentina and elsewhere, that sound like a zoo in an uproar, help us appreciate clear home transmission.)

* * *

When CBS announced "Easter Parade" as a number for the Byrd listeners, the announcer missed an opportunity. The ship was then among the Easter Islands, as I had figured it would be.

* * *

Auditions

Roughly calculated, the number of singers wanting radio jobs is about a million in excess of the number of jobs.

Yet, curiously enough, band leaders from all sections are asking the music corporation to provide them with young vocalists.

To help place such warblers, George Olsen comes forward with a plan for holding auditions. He opens them to college students only, and will begin them next Friday, at any hotel.

Winners of each week's auditions will go on the air, and then be recommended to orchestras in need of ditty-warblers.

* * *

* * *

George Beatty bills himself as "half-serious and half-wit." He has, by the way, say the production men, the best sense of pace of any of the newcomers to radio.

Mostly No

Strange how that Elmer Everett Yess business improves one night and flops the next—the last broadcast proving so much more real than the one immediately before. Maybe they're experimenting with writers, instead of casts.

* * *

Exotic Young Songstress

Gertrude Niesen, whose distinctive interpretations of modern tunes are heard over CBS-WJAS tonight at 11:15, and on several other programs during the week.

Junior Patrol

The Sun-Telegraph Junior Patrol program, featuring talented Pittsburgh children in songs and instrumental music, is heard over WCAE Wednesday afternoon at 4:45.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Just because we had an election for mayor and other important city and county offices is no reason why we should forget all about some of the minor offices for which there have been some heated fights—for instance the dog catcher of Versailles Township.

Joseph A. Craig, ex-mayor of Stewart's Hollow, won that coveted post, and to show his appreciation he wants me to tell every one not only how thankful he is for the wonderful support accorded him, but also that from now on his many supporters better watch their doys.

* * *

His dog, "Repeal," almost smashed the radio by trying to leap through it when the Alabama Wildcat was snarling verse.

The dog happens to be the Pitcairn High school team's mascot, and the student body might not be so friendly if anything happened to him.

He writes:

"No wildcats or else."

* * *

Mrs. Mary Cassidy, of McKeesport, received a most pleasant surprise when her request for a picture from the President brought a wonderful likeness of Mr. Roosevelt.

* * *

Jeannette, Greensburg, Zelienople and all points:

The American Weekly has not selected the winners in the title contest.

They have a staff working conscientiously. It takes time. An important decision has to be made. We'll make sure that you know about it when the day comes.

* * *

Do you remember those cryptic messages broadcast through your microphones asking Operator 13 to report to headquarters?

Well, the other day I received a letter from a young lady who works at a switchboard.

Her official designation is Operator 13. She says that she is ready to report to headquarters as urged but doesn't know where headquarters is. What do you do in a case like that?

* * *

Nothing gives me the heebie jeebies more than chain letters that direct you to pass on the message to five other people telling each of them in turn to pass the letter on to five others with the same directions. If you don't you are promised all kinds of tough luck. It's a job to do the copying and addressing and what's more I think there is a provision in some code that makes the sender of letters like this criminally liable. I'm not going to do it. So I'll probably worry for the next 24 hours.

ASTOUNDING ADVANCE in treatment of Coughs, Colds

Primary VITAMIN A has now been added to Smith Bros. Cough Syrup

DRIVE OUT that cough and cold faster! Avoid re-infections—"one cold after another"!

Those are not empty promises. It can be done NOW. Not with pills or gargles or external rubs! But with Nature's own "Anti-Infective" Agent. . . Primary VITAMIN A.

A revolutionary medical discovery now makes it possible to include Primary Vitamin A in Smith Brothers Cough Syrup. This vitamin is the same precious substance that Nature gives you in carrots, butter, whole milk . . . but in Smith Brothers Cough Syrup you get concentrated quantities of it.

What Vitamin A in Smith Brothers' does

Vitamin A in Smith Brothers Cough Syrup does two wonderful things:

It aids Nature in DRIVING the cough and cold out of the system faster. And it raises your resistance against re-infection with new coughs and colds.

That's completely different from merely drugging or "doping" a cough or cold! Nature herself leads you back to bounding, vigorous, "million-dollar" health.

The Vitamin A benefits are in addition to the fast cough relief that Smith Brothers Cough Syrup gives. . . It soothes the throat . . . loosens phlegm . . . clears air passages.

Please remember that the only cough syrup containing Primary Vitamin A is SMITH BROTHERS! Yet it costs you only 35¢. Today get a bottle. Fight coughs, colds with Nature's own weapon. New health will be yours! . . . (Smith Brothers Cough Drops also contain Primary Vitamin A.)

Note to Doctors: 10,000 A. D. M. A. units of Vitamin A (Biologically tested Carotene) have been added to every bottle of Smith Bros. Cough Syrup. For literature please write Smith Bros., Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Big Saving! No Cooking! So Easy!

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It takes but a moment to prepare, and costs very little, but it positively has no equal for quick, lasting relief.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup, made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's so easy! Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils and children love its taste.

This simple mixture soothes and heals the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

DOLL LADY

Is in Pittsburgh Again! This Year She Brings Gorgeous

"HONEY-SUCKLE"

"Honeysuckle" is 18 inches tall, just the right size the average little girl would like to cuddle up to. The word beautiful doesn't really describe her. She's more than beautiful—she's GORGEOUS.

"Honeysuckle" has flexible rubber arms and hands and rubber legs that can be washed just the same as you would wash your baby brother's or sister's. And WHAT A SMILE! And behind that smile are the most lovable, most roguish eyes you ever looked into. They open and close and she rolls them from side to side like a real flirt. By pressing her legs or by moving her body forward or back, she says "Ma-ma" in the sweetest voice you ever heard. She's dressed like a little queen in dainty organdy and lace, with bonnet and shoes to match.

Oh, we forget to mention her cute dimples, and just as this was written "Honeysuckle" looked up and seemed to say, "Yes; you forgot to tell them about my rubber panties."

"Honeysuckle" is really the DOLL OF ALL DOLLS, and she is going to be so easy to get for Christmas. Shall I save a "Honeysuckle" for you?"

Easy to Get!

Every little girl in Pittsburgh and vicinity can easily secure one of these wonderful dolls for Christmas. All they have to do is to take the subscription blanks out among their neighbors, relatives and friends and get them signed. There is no money to pay and no money to collect. Just get the blanks properly filled in, send them to The Doll Lady Department, Sun-Telegraph Pittsburgh, Pa., and you'll have "Honeysuckle" for your Christmas playmate.

ON AIR TODAY

Fire Chief Broadcasts Tonight

WCAE has the lion's share of music and comedy tonight, including Don Voorhees' Band and the Fire Chief.

Beginning with Sanderson and Crummit at 8, the melody and merriment on the Sun-Telegraph station, with a dramatic sketch and a current events discussion sandwiched in, continues until 1 a. m.

Wayne King's waltzes are heard over WCAE at 8:30; Ben Bernie and all the lads at 9; Ed Wynn and McNamee at 9:30, and "Lives at Stake" at 10.

"Two Men and a Maid" at 10:30; Jerry Sears' Orchestra at 10:45; John B. Kennedy at 11; and from 11:15 until the signoff various dance bands, including Rudy Vallee's, complete the schedule.

* * *

Banshee

The pioneer station's studio staff presents "What Would You Do?" at 7:30; another Crime Clues thriller begins at 8; "Adventures in Health" at 8:30, and something new in radio dramas, "Cottingham's Last Banshee," at 10:30, completes the KDKA-NBC schedule of plays.

* * *

Gloria Stuart, leading lady of Eddie Cantor's new movie, is featured on the "California Melodies" program, heard over WJAS at 9.

Lopez

Freddy Rich's entertainers are scheduled over CBS-WJAS at 10, and Vincent Lopez and his orchestra at midnight.

* * *

Jack Hammerschmidt, soloist in the Pitt Glee Club; Kit Hall, songstress; Sally, the Campus Gossip, and other Pitt personalities are heard over WWSW at 9:30.

* * *

My Maryland

President Roosevelt, in Georgia, greets Maryland over a Columbia-WJAS network in a five-minute speech some time between 4:30 and 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Panthers' Great Defense. May Set Record for Jock. Tackles Outshine All Foes.

Scoring Change Advocated. Hockey Netmen Protected. Famous Fight Recalled.

ONLY 13 POINTS SCORED AGAINST PITT

As the end of the football season draws near, with the Pitt Panthers again claiming their share of the spotlight, the great defensive work of Dr. Sutherland's fine team is an angle that commands attention, apart from the success of the eleven on the offensive side. If the Blue and Gold gridders should manage to keep Carnegie Tech from scoring on Thanksgiving Day in the final game of the campaign, they will have presented to their coach his best defensive record since he took over the reins at Pitt in 1924.

Johnny Meredith

Until this year, Jock's best defensive team was that of 1928, which held all opposition to a combined total of 15 points—nine by West Virginia and six by Carnegie, with seven other opponents failing to score. To date in the present season only 13 points have been chalked up against the Panthers in eight games. Six of them came in the Navy game against a team of substitutes, and Minnesota earned the seven other points.

In connection with the great line that has made such a remarkable showing on defense, it is no secret that Coach Sutherland thinks the tackle play of Frank Waltor and John Meredith has been above that of any opponents met this year. Walton, in particular, has been brilliant. Against Nebraska last Saturday, he played probably the greatest game of his career. In the opinion of his coach and teammates, he was even greater than against Notre Dame in 1932 or against Duquesne this season. The Tiger's speed under punts was particularly surprising. Meredith's work has been consistently fine.

COMMENDABLE STAND FOR SQUARE DEAL

While it is regrettable that any such action should have been found necessary, after the assurance given by German athletic officials several months ago that there would be no discrimination against Jewish athletes in the Olympic Games of 1936 in Berlin, the Amateur Athletic Union, in annual convention here, must be given credit for a right and proper step in recommending that American athletes be withheld from the Berlin games unless competition by German athletes of Jewish faith or heritage is both permitted and encouraged.

It is a commendable stand for a square deal, and in taking it the A. A. U. is expressing the sentiments of American sports followers in general. The Olympic carnival is a world meet for all races and creeds, aiming to promote friendship and good will among all peoples, and to deny equal rights to any group would be contrary to American principles and to the spirit of the games. The meet should not be held in any country not guaranteeing these equal rights to all.

COLUMBIA BANKING ON DISTRICT BOYS

Not only are two boys from this neighborhood, Joe Ferrara, of Pittsburgh, and Paul Jackel, of McKeesport, doing big things for Columbia University at present as tackles in Lou Little's fine line, but the Lion coach admits he is building high hopes on them for next year.

Little classes Ferrara and Jackel as two of his best bets for the reconstructed team of 1934, and that's why he has been giving them as much work as possible, aiming to speed their development for a tough season to come, along with Larry Pinckney, Bill Nevel, Al Barabas, Al Giampa, Jim Davis, Harry Chase, Tom Tomb and several others who will be back in school next fall. Columbia will have a very difficult schedule in 1934, opening with Yale, and following with games

BUTCH VICTOR OVER BURNS AT MOOSE

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Scoring partial knockdowns as he rushed out of his corner at the start of both the first and second rounds, and doing the cleaner hitting throughout, Mose Butch, of Oakland, won over Charley Burns, of Johnstown, in the main bout of 10 rounds at the Moose Temple last night. Referee Joe Zivic's vote decided the fight after the judges had split, Freddie Lux scoring for Butch and Jock Simco for Burns.

The crowd was with Burns and hooted the award, mainly on the strength of a desperate rally by the visitor in the last round, in which he flailed away earnestly but ineffectively as Butch countered with solid punches. Burns' light hitting was apparent throughout. He landed often, but without being able to hurt his opponent. They took turns holding the upper hand, with Burns the flashier, but with Butch doing the damage. Burns weighed 127 pounds and Butch was a pound lighter.

SEMI-FINAL A PIP

The semi-final 10-rounder was the fight of the night before the best crowd of the season so far at the Moose. It was between those two Negro middleweight rivals, Billy Holt, of Homewood, and Anson Green, of Homestead, and ended up with Holt getting the referee's decision, while Judge Lux voted for Green and Judge Simco for Holt.

It was a slugfest all of the way, with Holt dropping Green with a left hook at the bell at the end of the first round and Green forcing Billy to cover and hold on with a heavy bombardment in the fourth. Green was the aggressor in most of the rounds, but Holt went close and forced him around the ring throughout the final session.

Green fought the best bout he has put up here and really merited the decision. A return bout would be a swell idea, judging from the ovation tendered the pair at the finish bell.

Johnny Durso, local lightweight, won over Charley Blozevich, of St. Michaels, on a technical knockout when the referee called a halt because of a cut eye in the fourth round. It was a good battle, as was also the opener, in which Whiz Lazor, of St. Michaels, was unable to respond to the bell for the fifth round against Jack Dalcherone, Springdale middleweight, after being floored for counts of nine and four and being saved by the gong in the third round.

ONE FOR THE BOOK

One for the book was recorded when the referee led Burns from the ring and out of sight at the end of the fifth round of the main bout to replace tights which had ripped. There is nothing in the rules which permits a fighter to leave the ring under his own momentum after a bout is under way without suffering the penalty of a technical defeat.

VANCOUVER BEATEN

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 21.—(AP.)—The Calgary Tigers started off their new Northwest Hockey League season here last night with a 3-1 victory over the Vancouver Lions.

A. A. U. Notes

The all-too-serious note of the A. A. U. convention was beautifully broken last night at the annual dinner after Toastmaster Bill Haddock introduced a Polish delegate, who mystified Avery Brundage and other big guns with his credentials.

Called on for a speech, the Polish member denounced the metric system and doubted whether any given delegate could tell a metric from a yard. Jumping from metrics into the proposed boxing changes, the speaker almost caused a riot when he referred to the Boston delegation as a "bunch of fanatics from New England who are trying to start trouble."

The speaker quickly changed the subject, but he waded in deeper as he informed his simon-pure assemblage that it was miles behind Europe in boxing. He said the boys in Europe, instead of picking up cauliflower ears and cuff buttons for slugging each other in the ring, were taking their pay in cash. Of course, this was a fine talk to an A. A. U. gathering.

The unusual speaker, with great histrionic ability couched in Polish-English, then sailed in for a eulogy of Chancellor Hitler. Before harm could come to him, Toastmaster Haddock explained to the delegates that Luke Barnett's speech would not go into the records. Luke stole the show. The great entertainer was thought to be genuine by most of the guests.

The Pittsburgh delegates were ready to throw their support to Bill Haddock in the event that the sheriff were nominated, but Bill would not allow this. He chose to second the nomination of Brundage.

Lawson Robertson, University of Pennsylvania track coach, looked like a Shakespearean actor in his neat tuxedo. Many of the visiting firemen brought their uptown clothes along and they were all rigged out for the dinner.

JONES PRAISES WARBURTON

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—For the particular interests of Notre Dame followers who remember his wild returns of punts which paved the way for the Ramblers' defeat by Southern California last year, Irvine Warburton, cotton-topped welterweight of the gridiron, is still on the loose.

Only this season, "the Scooter" as his opponents have dubbed him, has done a lot of other things besides stage wild runs—if that isn't enough.

This mighty mite, who has difficulty tipping the beam at 147 pounds and can't for the life of him stretch his height to five feet seven, was giving a big halfback a personal lesson in blocking when Troy's head man, Howard Jones, showed up for practice against Notre Dame University.

Jones said:

"That's what I like about him. Show me one player who has done more for his team than has Warburton. He beat California single-handed, the pictures show half a dozen players tried to tackle him on that 59-yard run. He got almost no help in his 43-yard run to a touchdown against Stanford."

From Coach Jones, such a remark about a player, not to mention a junior, was precedent setting. Few senior stars ever rated that much. So the files were dug up for the season. In every important game Warburton's work stood out.

SEATTLE VICTOR

SEATTLE, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—The Seattle Seahawk opened their Northwest Hockey League season here last night by defeating the Edmonton Eskimos, 3 to 1.

SERVICE GAME TOPS EASTERN GRID CARD

NEW YORK, Nov. 21. (AP.)—Your real dyed-in-the-wool Eastern football fan annually sees to it that he is sitting in the stands when Army plays Navy and Harvard collides with Yale but the schedule-makers have crossed him up this time. They'll be playing both games this Saturday, the one at Philadelphia, the other at Cambridge, leaving Mr. John H. Fan in a dilemma of considerable magnitude.

The renewal of these two bitter rivalries, among the oldest and most spectacular of the sport, overshadow all other games on the Eastern program.

The service duel at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, brings Army and Navy together in a regularly scheduled encounter for the first time since 1927 and their famous break over eligibility rules.

After a lapse of two years, the schools buried the hatchet to the extent of playing charity games in 1930-31-32 paving the way for the announcement in August last year that an agreement had been reached and that Army and Navy would resume athletic relations in all sports.

NAVY TOUGH

Navy hasn't been able to beat the Cadets since 1921 and will be the under-dog again this week with defeats by Pitt, Columbia and Princeton over-balancing triumphs at the expense of Penn and Notre Dame. Army, on the other hand, is one of the country's three major outfits so far neither beaten nor tied and with big-time triumphs over Illinois, Yale and Harvard to its credit.

However, neither Head Coach Gar Davidson nor the Cadets themselves expect anything but a tough, evenly-played contest. Navy was beaten, 20-0, last year, but the Tars have come far under Coach Rip Miller this year. Despite a gruelling schedule, they played their best game of the year against Princeton last week, outplaying the undefeated, untied and unscored on Tigers for the first half and going down only in the fourth quarter when they were worn down by Princeton's almost unlimited reserve power.

Navy's hopes have been somewhat dimmed because of the fact that neither Gordon Chung-Hoon, fleet halfback, nor Dave Miller, varsity end, injured in the Columbia game 10 days ago, are expected to be in shape to play. Miller probably will start a backfield composed of Larry Becht, Red Baumberger, Buzz Borries and Bill Clark. Baumberger and Borries are speed-boys, Clark a fine defensive player and magnificent kicker, and Becht a heady field general.

YALE HAS EDGE

Yale and Harvard, meanwhile, have settled down to steady work for their fifty-second duel. The advantage in physical condition probably will rest with Yale for the Ells were idle last week, while Harvard was engaging in a close battle with Brown before hanging up its first major victory of the campaign.

Pro-Jewish Resolution Adopted by A. A. U.

Following is the text of the resolution adopted by the A. A. U. convention pertaining to Jewish participation in the 1936 Olympic Games in Berlin, Germany:

WHEREAS, sport in the greatest, if not the only true, democracy in the world, all therein being equal irrespective of race, color, religion or social or financial conditions, and

WHEREAS, both the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States of America and the American Olympic Association were founded and exist upon these basic principles, and

WHEREAS, the Olympic Games of 1936 were awarded to the City of Berlin by the International Olympic Committee, and

WHEREAS, it is our understanding and belief that, at the time of such award, the German Olympic Committee, representing itself and also the organizing committee of the 1936 Berlin Olympic Games, accepted the games upon the basic principles of sports competition as herein referred to and reiterated its continued adherence to said principles as late as June of 1933, and

ASKS ENCOURAGEMENT

WHEREAS, it is believed and is common and universal knowledge that the German Olympic Committee and the Berlin Organizing Committee, under and by reason of the decrees and directions of the Government of Germany, have violated the code of the Olympic Games and the fundamental ideals of sports competition in that they have deprived Germans of Jewish descent or belief from the rights of Olympic competition, if not by direct restriction, certainly, indirectly, by the withdrawal from them of the rights of German citizenship and of a reasonable opportunity to train, prepare for and take part in sports competition in general and in the Olympic Games in particular.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the Amateur Athletic Union, as a member of the American Olympic Association, about to be assembled at its quadrennial meeting in Washington, D. C., instruct its delegates thereto to call upon said American Olympic Association to resolve that the American Olympic Association through the members of the International Olympic Committee to the United States of America, namely, Col. William A. Garland, Gen. Charles E. Sherrill and Commodore Ernest Lee Jahncke, Jr., give notice to the International Olympic Committee and, through it, to the German Olympic Committee, to the Berlin Organizing Committee and to the German government that neither the American Olympic Association nor the members thereof, nor the American Olympic Committee to be organized for the Olympic Games of 1936, will certify any athlete of the United States of America for competition in the Olympic Games of Berlin until and unless the position of the German Olympic Committee, of the Organizing Committee of Berlin and of the German government is so changed in fact as well as in theory so as to both permit and encourage German athletes of Jewish faith or heritage to train, prepare for and participate in the Olympic Games of 1936;

POSITION STATED

AND WHEREAS, the relations between the athletes of Germany and of the United States of America have been, are and should continue to be friendly, cordial and co-operative, and the desire and expectation of American athletes to compete in the Games of 1936 has been and is keen and enthusiastic;

THEREFORE, BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the Amateur Athletic Union urge upon the American Olympic Association that there be impressed upon the International Olympic Committee and, through it, upon the German Olympic Committee, the Organizing Committee and the German government that the plea of the athletes of the United States be taken not as one of threat or bitterness, but as one of concern and desire that a way be found for Germany to satisfy the world, that all and not merely some of the fundamental principles of the democracy of sport and of the Olympic Games are and will continue to be dominant.

JEWS WELCOME --GERMANY

International News Service.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Germany today officially took notice of the American Amateur Athletic Union's action in adopting at Pittsburgh a resolution demanding that Germany lift restrictions on Jewish athletes.

In an interview with International News Service, a high official of the Federal Athletic Administration of Germany said:

"We regret that the American A. A. U. saw fit to take such action, in view of the fact that at the Olympic Congress in Vienna, Germanly assured Jewish members of foreign teams a hearty welcome as guests just as Germany adheres to all other Olympic rules and customs.

"Moreover, Jewish athletes have not been excluded officially from the German Olympic team nor have they been ousted officially from sports clubs."

Last Rites Held For Frank Kelly

Frank Kelly, brother of Bernard Kelly, former local manager of boxers and now boxing promoter at Fairmont, W. Va., who died Saturday as a result of an injury received in an automobile accident two weeks ago, was buried from his home at 1706 Beaver avenue, McKeesport, this morning.

A solemn high mass of requiem was said in St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church. Burial was in the LaSalle Cemetery.

PIRATES CANCEL SUNDAY FRAY

The Pittsburgh Pirates, of the National Professional Football League, are through playing in Pittsburgh for this year and Paul Moss, former Purdue all-America end, is through playing with the Pirates.

The Pirates arrived home from their disastrous invasion of Philadelphia yesterday and President Art Rooney announced that the game scheduled for Forbes Field next Sunday with Warren Heller's Reading team had been canceled. The Pirates will be idle until they play the New York Giants in Gotham on December 3.

Moss, a fine pass receiver, turned out to be a poor defensive player and accordingly has been released.

Reilly Stopped By Steve O'Malley

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 21.—(AP.)—Steve O'Malley, hard-hitting Bellaire, O., youngster, knocked out Frank Reilly, of Fairmont, in five seconds of the first round last night. The fight was scheduled for 10 rounds. O'Malley weighed 140, Reilly 139.

Mike Mitchell, 176, of Bellaire, lost a six-round decision to Tony Di Piero, 171, of Pittsburgh, and Paul Oger, 155, of Brownsville, got the decision over Johnny Popicg, 155, of Wheeling. Mitchell was floored twice in the fourth round.

Marty Becker, 147, of Wheeling, won a decision over Parise, 148, of Martins Ferry, in another six-rounder.

GERMANY GETS WARNING ON OLYMPICS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Avery Brundage, ending five years as president of the organization, will be re-elected today by the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States in the last day's session of the forty-fifth annual convention of the body being held in the William Penn Hotel.

The Chicagoan was nominated in a caucus held last night at the conclusion of the banquet. The election today will be a mere formality as the action taken last night was unanimous.

William S. Haddock, president of the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U., who was considered as a favorite to succeed Brundage, seconded the nomination. As quickly as Haddock had taken this sportsmanlike step in deference to the guest of his city, a motion that the nominations close was passed.

BRUNDAGE ACCEPTS

Brundage, meantime, had retired for the evening. Previously he had stated that he was not a candidate for the office as he felt that his five-year term was long enough and he was eager to step aside. But G. T. Kirby, caucus chairman, appointed a committee to inform the chief executive of nomination. The committee returned with news that Brundage would accept, under certain conditions. The chief stipulation requested that the four vice presidents to be appointed would be members who would be sure to share the burdens of the president. Accordingly, a committee of seven will be named to nominate the vice presidents.

The long-time incumbent was an athlete of much prominence almost 20 years ago. Avery Brundage, a graduate of the University of Illinois, won the A. A. U. decathlon championship in 1917. He has devoted much energy to the duties of his office since he took the chair.

SPORTS WEEK PLANNED

A resolution recommending the observance of a National Sports Week was approved after a lengthy discussion on the convention floor this morning.

Delegates from every district are to petition their Congressmen to vote for the setting aside of a part of the Federal Civil Works fund to assist in the financing of nationwide observance of such a week, and the support of President Roosevelt and the Governors of all states is to be solicited.

Thirty different reports were read and accepted, and title meet awards, as announced yesterday, were approved. The men's senior track and field championships will not be awarded until several bids received have been given further consideration.

The harmony centered in the caucus nomination of Brundage was in contrast to the wild scene on the floor of the convention late yesterday afternoon when the delegates passed a resolution recommending that no United States athletes be certified for

CUBS GET KLEIN FOR THREE PLAYERS, CASH

MARK KOENIG, HENDRICK IN BIG DEAL

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—The Philadelphia Phillies, of the National League, today announced the trade of Charles (Chuck) Klein, slugging outfielder, to the Chicago Cubs, for three players and an unannounced sum of cash.

Chuck Klein.

The three players given by the Cubs were Pitcher Ted Kleinhaus, recently obtained from Atlanta, of the Southern Association; First Baseman Harvey Hendrick and Infielder Mark Koenig. While the cash consideration involved was not revealed, it is believed to be around $100,000.

His career dates from a few weeks before the 1927 season ended, when Evansville, of the Three-Eye League signed him up. The next season he was with Ft. Wayne, of the Central League, where he batted .331 and caught the eye of the Phils' scouts.

They paid $7,500 for him about midway of the 1928 campaign and his fence-busting attributes have turned in better than .337 averages for the Phils since that time. His all-time average is .357.

He won the National League batting crown in 1933 with a .348 average, connecting safely 226 times in 650 trips to the plate. In his four and a half seasons with the Phils he hammered out 163 homers and has batted in 607 runs.

In addition to baseball, Klein is somewhat of a basketball player, does considerable bowling and spends much time out of season hunting and fishing.

M'PHAIL PROUD OF TRADES

CINCINNATI, Nov. 21. (AP.)—Talking more earnestly than ever about "more youth, more speed, more punch" Larry MacPhail, ex-officio leader of the Cincinnati Reds, came back confident he has made a good start along the road he wants the team to go.

He returned from Galveston, Tex., where he attended the meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues. There he swung trades that brought Tony Piet and Adam Comorosky from Pittsburgh in exchange for Red Lucas and Roettger, and got Pitcher Glenn Spencer from New York in return for George Grantham.

But there still has been no decision as to whether Donie Bush will lead the team as manager next year, MacPhail said, hinting that he is still, though possibly hopelessly, fishing for Jimmy Wilson from the Phillies. He said:

"I believe we have made a start in the right direction. Of course, we are sorry to loose Lucas. He might win 20 games and a pennant for Pittsburgh next season. That's the gamble they are taking and they had to give us plenty to get him. However, the things we must have if we ever are going to get out of the cellar are more youth, more speed, and more punch. They are what, I believe, we got in those deals."

The Reds, he said, never would have got Piet had they not been a second-division crew.

GRID CONTEST FUN BEGINS

Entrants in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's all-America football team contest, with 10 all-America blankets being offered as prizes, are urged not to submit their answers until all of the weekly ratings have been published.

From these weekly lists, appearing in the Sun-Telegraph every Saturday, will be selected the All-America Board of Football team.

Already some teams have been submitted, but the contestants cannot do themselves justice at this early date. A blank will be published in due time upon which the names of players may be inserted.

Watch the ratings for the next few weeks. They may contain many names unmentioned so far.

Amateurs Battle At Bank Dinner

A card of five amateur boxing bouts, all of which went the limit, enlivened proceedings at the Bankers' and Bank Clerks' Mutual Benefit Association party at the Keystone Club last night.

Dukes May Get Miami Bid Today

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 21.—The athletic committee which is to select an opponent for the University of Miami in a New Year's Day football game is to meet today to decide whether the opponent shall be Duquesne, of Pittsburgh, or Mercer, of Macon, Ga.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE MOON PARADOX—The moon does not dispense any light of its own, but merely reflects the light of the sun. When the moon is only half visible its light is one-ninth that of the full moon. The reason for that is that the roughened surface of the moon presents varying angles of reflection. The part lying west of the moon's meridian is of a more highly reflective character and that part is obscured when the moon is only half visible. The ratio has been established with the aid of the selenium cell which is very sensitive to light.

TROUBLE MARS SOCCER PLAY

By TOM BIRKS

Last Sunday's soccer trouble at Glendale, where, according to the referee's report, the W. W. Riehl club, of Castle Shannon, lost the game rather than take a trimming from the crowd, indicates that the West Penn Commission had better swing into action without delay

Every season, in soccer, and also in football, occasions arise of teams and spectators becoming bad losers, and in many cases the visiting teams and officials have to fight themselves out of bad situations.

This far-fetched rabid fan idea will have to be checked at once, especially in soccer.

It is true that poor officiating is the cause of many a rumpus, and the sport is suffering with incapable officials calling plays that tend to throw highly-excited fans off their balance.

The Glendale affair was a Keystone League game. The officials of the circuit should call a special meeting and act without delay to prevent another occurrence of this sort. Drastic penalties will make hot headed team followers think twice before causing trouble.

Soccer Notes

Bobby Whiteford, the old Braddock star, and one of the greatest fullbacks that ever donned a shoe in this district, has a son playing with Coraopolis. The boy scored two goals last Saturday and paved the way for the first defeat of the Arsenal eleven.

Pat O'Connor came back from Penn State will glowing accounts of Bill Jeffery's great team. The Nittany Lions play Springfield for the intercollegiate title next Saturday.

Buff Donnelli and Mike Bookie teamed up last Sunday to score four goals against Clan Douglas in the West Penn cup game. This is the first time that the combination has clicked this season. Watch Curry from now on.

When Dante Villani steps on the field at Heidelberg next Sunday for Morgan, he will be playing on familiar territory. Dante was a featured member of the Green and Gold and is very popular with the crowd.

Arkansas Tackle Admits Ineligibility

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Nov. 21.—(AP.)—Admitting he played with the University of Nebraska last year, but transferred only his junior college credits here, Ulysses Schleuter, a reserve tackle, was declared ineligible to play football with the University of Arkansas by atheltic officials yesterday.

The disclosure resulted from an investigation into the eligibility of Arkansas players, which was requested by Dr. J. S. McIntosh, chairman of the athletic council of Southern Methodist University, who called attention of Arkansas officials to rumors that a former Nebraska player was being used by the Southwest Conference leading Razorbacks.

Schleuter, however, has played only 10 minutes in Arkansas' four Conference games this season.

DUKES PREPARE FOR GENEVA CONTEST

By JESS CARVER

Anyone who thinks the Dukes are taking their game with Geneva's Covenanters lightly had better take another think and that goes for the Coveys, too.

A year ago, it took a last minute field goal by Sil Zaninelli to enable the locals to beat the Beaver Falls eleven after a hard-fought battle. The Genevians have been beaten twice so far this fall, losing to Davis-Elkins and St. Thomas, but you will note, please, that no school has been able to defeat either eleven. It certainly is no disgrace to be taken over by elevens of the caliber of Cam Henderson's Hurricane or Jack Harding's Tommies.

DUKES IN FINE SHAPE

At any rate, the Dukes will put in some good licks this week as they prepare for the invasion of the Genevians. The game here Saturday will be the feature attraction of Duquesne's annual Homecoming Day celebration and should attract a fine crowd. The Dukes have been idle since the battle with Pitt, and the squad is in fine physical shape.

It is Coach Layden's earnest hope that his lads will beat the Covenanters by a decisive score. Such an occurence will not hurt the Dukes' chances of grabbing off an attractive post-season game one little bit, and it is no secret that the Dukes would like very much to arrange such a fray.

Buddy Overend, who handles athletic affairs out at Carnegie Tech, returned from Washington yesterday and vigorously denied that athletic relations with Georgetown University would be broken off as a result of the trouble that attended last Saturday's Tech-Hoya battle.

NO GAME IN '34

The Hoyas will not be on the Tech schedule next fall, but the break in gridiron relations will not be permanent. There was no intention, according to Buddy, of carding the Hilltoppers for next fall, even before Saturday's affair.

The usual Monday holiday at Tech was declared off yesterday and the varsity given a long workout in preparation for the game with New York University this week.

Mister Joseph Morvoldi Morbito, who did quite a neat trick of fullbacking for the Plaid during his undergraduate days, has been scouting the Violets this fall and has become more and more impressed by the play of the New Yorkers each week. In fact, it is Joseph's contention that unless his alma mater is on its toes Saturday, it will get its well known ears kicked off.

"Those birds are plenty tough. They gave Fordham more football than the Rams wanted and then came back last week with a fine game against Rutgers. They are big and tough and like to dish it out. Personally, I'm glad I'm a scout instead of a player."

PITT SQUAD LOAFS

The Pitt Panthers, with nothing to do for the remainder of the season but play Tech (and that will be no pink tea, either), enjoyed a day of rest yesterday but will start preparations for the Tartan fray today.

Coach Jock Sutherland, who seldom, if ever, expresses his opinion as to the all-America qualities of any of his players, has come out flat-footedly in praise of Tiger Walton, the husky right tackle, and Muggsy Skladany, Walton's pal at end.

It is Jock's belief that Walton is about the best tackle in the country today and that Skladany has it head and shoulders over any other end.

SAUER BOOSTS WALTON

Walton got away to a poor start this fall, but since the Notre Dame game, or rather, including the Notre Dame game, the Mayor of Seventh Avenue has been raising the roof with all opposition.

His play against the Irish was sparkling. He was aces up against Center. In the Duquesne fray, he was a tower of strength, and on Saturday, he caused Nebraska more grief than all the Huskers' opponents had all season. Sauer, the Huskers' fullback, went up to the Tiger after the game and said:

"Walton, I've played a lot of football, but you are the best tackle ever I hit and you also are the finest sport we ever met up with. No kidding, it was a pleasure to play against you."

Maxie Announces Engagement at Night Club

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(INS.)—Maxie Rosenbloom, light-heavyweight boxing champion of the world, formally announced his engagement to Beatrice Blinn from the floor of a night club in Harlem early this morning.

Tendered a hearty ovation when he was introduced from his ringside table, where he was sitting with Miss Blinn and David Rosenheim, the boxing champion arose and said:

"I thank you for this reception and want to introduce you at this time to my future wife, Miss Betty Blinn."

NEWSIES WANT FRAYS

DUKES ARRANGE 20 FRAYS FOR FLOOR TEAM

The Duquesne University varsity basketball team, practically intact from last year, when it won the city and district titles and made a strong bid for the Eastern gonfalon, will play through a 20-game schedule this year. The Dukes' schedule was announced last night by Graduate Manager John Holohan.

Temple, Bucknell, Ashland, Adrian and Thiel are newcomers on the card for the season. All, save Temple, have been met in the past. Ten games will be played at home and as many abroad.

Coach Chick Davies has had his squad out for the past two weeks and already the men are rounding into form. The schedule follows:

December 15—Waynesburg at home.
December 19—Ashland at home.
December 29—Adrian (Mich.) at home.
January 9—Westminster at home.
January 12—Pitt at the Stadium.
January 16—Geneva at home.
January 19—Carnegie Tech at Tech.
January 27—Thiel abroad.
February 3—Westminster abroad.
February 6—Pitt at home.
February 9—Thiel at home.
February 13—West Virginia at home.
February 19—Villanova abroad.
February 20—Temple abroad.
February 22—Bucknell abroad.
February 27—West Virginia abroad.
March 2—Carnegie Tech at home.
March 6—Wash-Jeff abroad.
March 9—Geneva abroad.
March 14—Wash-Jeff at home.

NEW YORKERS HOLD SKATING LEAD

LONE ST. PAUL STAR FORCED TO QUIT

Dominating the sprints for the second straight night, the New York City team of Al Krux and Bobby Lamb held a substantial lead in the Duquesne Garden seven-day ice skating marathon at the finish of the sixty-first hour, at 1 o'clock today.

The New Yorkers had 650 points, as compared to 510 for Boston, in second place, 440 for Detroit, in third place, and 360 for Pittsburgh, in fourth place.

At 1 o'clock all teams except the Los Angeles duo had negotiated 3,867 laps, or 393 miles. Los Angeles trailed by 20 laps.

St. Paul dropped out of the race at 2:30 this morning when Carl Bartholomew, who set a new world record of 50½ hours for endurance skating, collapsed and was carried from the ice. Bartholomew was compelled to skate as a one-man team when his partner, Everett MacGowan, was injured in a sprint just before the race got under way.

Bartholomew was sleeping soundly today, and it was not expected that he would awaken before tomorrow.

Bill Minster, of Windsor, put on an "iron man" act last night when John Tobias, his partner weakened, and slept from 10 o'clock last night until 8 o'clock this morning. Minster kept his team in the running without aid during those strenuous hours of sprinting. The standings at 1 o'clock today:

| TEAM. | Laps. | Miles. | Points. |
| New York | 3867 | 395 | 650 |
| Boston | 3867 | 395 | 510 |
| Detroit | 3867 | 395 | 440 |
| PITTSBURGH | 3867 | 395 | 360 |
| Syracuse | 3867 | 395 | 320 |
| Chicago | 3867 | 395 | 290 |
| Windsor | 3867 | 395 | 170 |
| Los Angeles | 3847 | 393 | 80 |
| Montreal | 3867 | 395 | 80 |

PEDEN-LEPAGE LEAD

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—Points separated three teams tied for the lead in the international six-day bicycle race here as eight teams neared the 2,000-mile mark today.

The combinations of Peden-Lepage, Van Kemper-Audy, and Horan-Zach, all shared in first place honors, but the former team maintained a point advantage following early morning sprints, with 501. The standings:

| Teams | Miles | Laps | Pts. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Peden-Lepage | 1889 | 9 | 501 |
| Van Kempen-Audy | 1889 | 9 | 435 |
| Horan-Zach | 1889 | 9 | 292 |
| Rechman-Winter | 1889 | 8 | 500 |
| Rush-MacDonald | 1889 | 6 | 264 |

Britain Starts Work On Yacht Cup Boat

GOSPORT, England, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—The first step toward construction of the new America's Cup challenger, T. O. M. Sopwith's yacht Endeavour, was taken today when the lead keel, weighing between 80 and 90 tons, was moulded with a watchmaker's precision.

Bisons Scrimmage For W.-J. Game

The squad was told it would be the last scrimmage before next Saturday's contest. Rhubright tore through the reserves' tackle for 40 yards and then scored on an end run.

J. Coulter Joins Hershey Ice Team

Jeff Coulter, who starred as a member of Pittsburgh amateur ice teams several seasons ago, today left to join the Hershey, Pa., team of the Eastern United States Hockey League. Before coming to Pittsburgh, in 1927, Jess played with the Winnipeg Millionaires.

Browning Tosses Gus Sonnenberg

After 50½ Hours on Ice

CARL BARTHOLOMEW . . . QUITS ICE SKATING MARATHON AT DUQUESNE GARDEN AFTER RECORD-BREAKING SOLO EFFORT

Carrying bravely on alone since his partner, Everett MacGowan, of St. Paul, was incapacitated during the opening sprint Sunday morning, Bartholomew, holding the fort in the hope of getting a new partner out of the field, finally was forced to retire from the seven-day ice skating marathon in Duquesne Garden at 2:30 this morning. He had been on the ice continuously for 50½ hours, setting a world record, while the two-men teams were alternating in three-hour stretches. Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture shows the Deni brothers, Bill and John, giving Bartholomew a welcome rubdown to ease the aches of his long grind.

DORAIS NAMED AS POSSIBLE O. S. U. COACH

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 21.—(AP.)—The Ohio State Journal said last night that Charles (Gus) Dorais, gridiron tutor of the University of Detroit, is said to be slated for the post of head football coach at Ohio State University for next season.

From L. W. St. John, director of athletics at Ohio State, came a prompt denial of the report. He said:

"It looks like it's made out of whole cloth. Nothing has been done about the coaching situation."

With a chance to finish higher in the Western Conference standing than any Ohio State team in the last seven years, a badly battered and bruised Buckeye squad relinquished its customary day of rest yesterday and started preparing for the Illinois encounter here Saturday.

It appeared doubtful if trainers and doctors would be able to have Ted Rosequist, giant tackle, in shape for the game. He suffered a sprained ankle at Wisconsin last Saturday.

Western Briefs

MINNEAPOLIS.—(AP.)—The Gophers used the chalk talk as their only football activity yesterday after receiving plaudits for their scoreless tie with Michigan. The Gophers, Pug Lund particularly, enjoyed an open-armed welcome. They will be forced to heed another challenging assignment, if their coaches are correct, in preparing for Wisconsin next Saturday.

EVANSTON, Ill.—(AP.)—Northwestern's badly battered squad took only a light drill yesterday as Coach Dick Hanley looked about for replacements. Al Kawal, who suffered a recurrence of a shoulder injury against Notre Dame Saturday, will be out of the final with Michigan this week. Wally Cruice and Ollie Olson, regular backs, also were hurt, but probably will play against the Wolverines.

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(AP.)—Hugh Devore, end, and Tony Mazziotti, quarterback, were on the hospital list as Notre Dame started preparation for the Southern California battle. Both suffered injuries against Northwestern that may keep them from playing against the Trojans. Coach Hunk Anderson indicated he would devote most of the week working on the Irish offense.

Forbes

Industry and Business to Voice Views

By B. C. FORBES

BUSINESS AND industry propose to speak up.

They feel that Washington has had a monopoly of the public's ear quite long enough.

Mr. Forbes

Heretofore it has rarely been possible to induce any large employers to criticize publicly anything whatsoever proposed or done at Washington—no matter how bitterly they expressed themselves privately.

An organization of important men of affairs is in process of formation to enable industry and business to become articulate. Some such body could well prove genuinely helpful to Washington.

But it would have to be totally divorced from the so-called Chamber of Commerce of the United States. It has proved wholly abortive all through the period when a really influential mouthpiece of business has been direly needed. Indeed, stockholders of corporations that divert funds to maintaining this useless outfit are beginning to object and to insist that the money be used for more legitimate corporate purposes.

If the right kind of a new organization be brought into being, it doubtless could succeed in becoming highly regarded, genuinely influential, a national asset, and could supplant the ineffective "chamber" of voluble gabbers.

INTIMATIONS come from Washington that bureaucrats have been admonished to desist going out of their way to rub business men the wrong way.

President Roosevelt revealed in his latest talk that he was aware of the widespread criticism the actions of subordinates have incited. Subordinates may not grasp the importance of inducing employers to go along with Washington policies if real recovery is to be achieved; but

Mr. Roosevelt unquestionably has become aware that Washington alone cannot accomplish the greatest maximum possible and that it is essential to leave no stone unturned to attract the co-operation and confidence of those responsible for filling pay envelopes.

Bluntly, dictation latterly has fostered both resentment and business apprehension.

ALVAN MACAULEY, president of Packard and of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, voiced the view held by many executives and other employers when he observed to me that heretofore the NRA and NRA codes have raised wages and shortened hours and otherwise appealed to labor, but that it is imperative, in order to achieve recovery, that employers very shortly begin to reap benefits.

Not all concerns, by any means, are financially able to draw upon reserve resources indefinitely to pay out higher costs unless, somehow, income be correspondingly increased. If employers become unable to make ends meet, employers must, of course, ultimately suffer, regardless of anything bureaucrats may decree.

The prospect is that many prices will have to be advanced.

Ford is not the only motor manufacturer who, to comply with the NRA 35-hour maximum week, is having to lay off men.

President Paul W. Seiler, of General Motors Truck, has been filling an order for 2,000 White cabs, for the radio fleet, said to be the largest cab order ever placed.

Don't envy President Roosevelt these days. To add to his other problems and worries, the recent weakness in United States Government bonds is distinctly disturbing. The entire recovery program is predicated on the ability of the government to raise billions upon billions through selling government obligations. Hence, the essentiality of maintaining a strong market for Treasury securities. Recourse to the money printing presses—the alternative—wouldn't tend to strengthen confidence.

However, it may be that a new era of co-operation is to be ushered in.

OIL PRODUCTION SHOWS GAIN

TULSA, Nov. 21.—Daily average production of crude oil in the United States during the week ended November 18 totaled 2,328,490 barrels, an increase of 11,496 barrels daily over the preceding week, according to the Oil and Gas Journal.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Secretary Ickes announces the required daily production of crude oil to balance consumer demands during December has been fixed at 2,210,000 barrels, compared with 2,338,500 barrels under the schedule promulgated September 28. The new allocations include: California, 450,000 barrels; Oklahoma, 457,000 barrels, and Texas, 888,000 barrels.

Bureau to Hurry Loans on Cotton

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—A 4c per pound advance to about 600,000 farmers who are to receive options on 2,400,000 bales of government-held cotton, will be made available as quickly as necessary forms can be sent to the field, it is formally announced by Oscar Johnston, Director of Finance of the AAA.

Meeting Notices

NOTICE OF DIVIDEND NO. 39.

NOTICE is hereby given that a dividend of 28 cents Canadian currency per share has been declared, and that the same will be payable on or after the 15th day of December, 1933, in respect to the shares specified in any Bearer Share Warrants of the company of the 1929 issue upon presentation and delivery of coupons No. 39 at:

The Royal Bank of Canada,
King and Church Streets Branch, Toronto, Canada.

The payment to shareholders of record at the close of business on the 30th day of November, 1933, and whose shares are represented by registered certificates of the 1929 issue, will be made by cheque, mailed from the offices of the company on the 14th day of December, 1933.

The transfer books will be closed from the 1st day of December to the 15th day of December, 1933, inclusive, and no bearer share warrants will be "split" during that period.

The income war tax act of the Dominion of Canada having been amended, effective April 1st, 1933, to provide that a tax of 5% shall be imposed and deducted at the source on all dividends payable by Canadian debtors to nonresidents of Canada, the above mentioned tax will be deducted from all dividend cheques mailed to nonresident shareholders and the company's bankers will deduct the 5% tax when paying coupons to or for account of nonresident shareholders. Ownership certificates will be required by the paying bankers in respect of all dividend coupons presented for payment by residents of Canada.

Shareholders resident in the United States are advised that a credit for the 5% Canadian tax withheld at source is allowable against the tax shown on their United States federal income tax return. If it is desired to claim such credit the United States tax authorities require evidence of the deduction of said tax. In order to secure such proof ownership certificates (form No. 601) must be completed in duplicate and the bank cashing the coupon will endorse both copies with a certificate relative to the deduction and payment of 5% tax, and return one certificate to the shareholder. If forms No. 601 are not available at local United States banks they can be secured from the company's office or the Royal Bank of Canada, Toronto.

By Order of the Board.
J. R. CLARKE, Secretary.
56 Church Street, Toronto 2, Canada.

OTTEY VICTOR IN TITLE RUN

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—Another young man has come out of the West to take the I. C. 4-A cross-country title out beyond the Alleghanies for the second time in the 34-year history of the six-mile chase.

He is 23-year-old Tom Ottey, lanky blonde from Ardmore, Pa., who outstepped a field of 118 in the classic yesterday and paved the way for his school, Michigan State, to capture the team championship, which never had gotten further west than Pittsburgh before.

Ottey was clocked in 30 minutes for the grueling course in Van Cortlandt Park as he beat Joe Mangan, of Cornell, intercollegiate mile champion in 1932, by 40 yards and duplicated the feat of Clark Chamberlin, another Michigan State star who won the individual crown three years ago.

Ottey took the lead before the first mile was over and held it throughout to win in easy fashion. Ed Veysey, of Colby, finished third, 75 yards behind Mangan; Tom Russell, of Manhattan College, fourth, and Gene Zenzke, Penn's famous miler from Pottstown, Pa., a poor fifth. Ottey's time was more than a minute slower than the record of 28:58.8 set up by George Barker, of New York University, last year when Ottey finished third.

By placing five men inside the first 20, Michigan State won the team title with the low total of 54 points. Manhattan College, defending champion, was second with 84, Yale third with 100, and Cornell fourth with 113.

Manhattan easily won the freshman title although the individual winner was William F. Hunnewell, of the University of Maine. Hunnewell ran the three miles in 14:47, with Tom Lator, of Syracuse, second, and Phil Smith, of Rutgers, third.

Governor's Kin On Mat Program

Cliff Olson, nephew of Gov. Floyd B. Olson, of Minnesota, who meets Karl Davis in one of the preliminaries of the wrestling revival show at Motor Square Garden Thursday night, is one of the few grapplers who ever have been able to put the great Jim Londos out of commission in a bout.

Olson was wrestling Londos in the New York Coliseum when, in a rough bout, he opened a cut over one of the champion's eyes and forced Jimmy to cancel engagements for two weeks.

Man Underwrites Election for Racing

SALISBURY, N. C., Nov. 21.—(AP.)—One man underwrote the election being held in Rowan County today to determine whether the county shall legalize horse racing with pari-mutuel betting.

Walter F. McCandless, local horse owner and stableman, is paying all expenses for the election, which was authorized by a bill passed at the last State Legislature.

A petition asking for the election was signed by more than 2,000, while ministers condemned the proposition.

CITES W. & J. IN ASKING RULE CHANGE

Gus Dorais, coach at University of Detroit, uses his team's game with W. & J. this fall as an argument for a change in the football scoring rules. He agrees that first downs can mean little or nothing, and says that if emphasis is to be placed on first downs it should be placed on those made in opponents' territory. Dorais recalls that against Detroit, W. & J. played fine offensive football for the first 28 minutes; had the ball practically all the time; ran off its plays with precision, made first downs with regularity, and kept Detroit so deep in its own territory that the Titans had to punt every time they got the ball on downs near their own goal line.

Gus Dorais.

Then, in the last two minutes of the second quarter, Nott threw a forward pass that resulted in a Detroit touchdown, nullifying the Presidents' fine offensive football of 28 minutes. Though it was a nullification in his team's favor, Dorais says it wasn't fair, and insists that things would be more equitable if a forward-pass touchdown were made to count only five points and a rushing-attack touchdown six points. He thinks a power touchdown deserves at least that much of an edge, one point, over the forward-pass variety.

NEW PROTECTION FOR HOCKEY GOALIES

While Pittsburgh is temporarily out of hockey, and box lacrosse at Motor Square Garden will be substituted for the ice game formerly played at Duquesne Garden, local hockey fans continue to follow the National League race closely. They will be interested in steps taken by Frank Patrick, new director general of the league, to enforce the rules for the further protection of the goalkeepers. When a goal is scored this season, it is going to be scored fairly and without interference. Goals scored while the net tender's line of vision is clouded will not be allowed.

The interference rule rarely has been enforced from that angle. Usually, interference was called only when an opposing player was hampering a goalie's movements, not because the netman could not see the rubber. Now, if an attacking player goes in on the net ahead of the man carrying the puck, and blocks the cage guardian's view, a goal scored will be ruled out. The goalie must be given a chance to see what is going on in front of him. In Montreal, three dotted lines have been drawn out from each net to assist the referees in determining interference.

TOM SHARKEY ADMITS JEFF WON FAIRLY

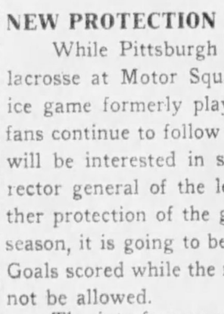
One of the most famous heavyweight championships fights of earlier years was that between Jim Jeffries and Tom Sharkey at Coney Island on November 3, 1899, Jeff's first defense of the title he had won from Bob Fitzsimmons five months previously. Referee George Siler's decision in favor of the champion at the end of 25 rounds, the limit, caused a lot of dispute at the time and has been the subject of many an argument since among old-timers. But Sharkey himself, as honest and frank in expressing his views as he was tough as a fighter, admitted when asked about it recently at a race meeting in Texas that he was beaten fairly.



Tom Sharkey.

Sharkey says Siler's decision was absolutely fair; that while he forced the fighting for 18 rounds Jeffries was countering all the time with terrific blows to the body, breaking two of Tom's ribs and hurting him internally. Sharkey relates that he had to go to a hospital after the fight and remain there for some time, while Jeffries was not hurt beyond a few scratches, and he offers that as evidence that Siler's decision was fair. Tom says he never got over that body punching, though he fought several times afterward. He thinks Jeffries was the greatest champion of all time, and if in his prime today would beat Primo Carnera with ease.

A. A. U. PREXY TO REMAIN

competition at the Olympic games to be held in Germany in 1936 unless the German government changes its attitude toward athletes of Germany who are Jews.

The reading of the resolution by G. T. Kirby precipitated a big fight on the floor. The negative side was taken by Dietrich Wortmann, of the Metropolitan Association, who engaged in a bitter war of words with C. L. Ornstein, who represents the Jewish Welfare Board, one of the allied bodies of the A. A. U.

WORTMANN IRATE

Wortmann gave the resolution the stamp of hypocricy when he declared that in some of the Southern sections of our own country, Negroes were not permitted to compete in A. A. U. events. Just when the scent was reaching climactic proportions, the resolution was put to a vote by President Brundage. It was carried almost unanimously, Wortmann recording a loud "no." The gentleman from New York apparently thinks his own organization has some dirty linen that should go to the cleaners before Germany is told to spruce up in sportsmanship.

The resolution is scheduled to come up before the American Olympic Committee which convenes tomorrow in Washington. That it will pass this august body is a foregone conclusion as some of the delegates who voted on the paper yesterday are members of the bigger committee.

The anti-Hitler legislation completely shadowed all the business transacted by the convention in its second day of work. The delegates were quiet while Kirby read the historic paper, but he had scarcely finished before the verbal fur began to fly.

The A. M. A. district was given added territory in an amendment which authorized the inclusion of three Ohio counties in the Pittsburgh organization. The three counties are, Belmont, Jefferson and Columbiana. The application for the acquisition of Cattaraygus, Chautauqua and Allegany counties in New York state was rejected.

The Sullivan Memorial Committee of the Amateur Athletic Union today voted to consider college football players for the annual award as the outstanding amateur athlete effective with the 1934 season.

Names in News

SAMMY A. WEISS has been elected president of the Western Pennsylvania Football Officials' Association for 1934. Leo Mackey was chosen vice president; Gus G. Morgan, secretary, and Grover C. Washabaugh, treasurer. Paul Schollins, Dave Fawcett, Heinie Boll, Dr. Buck Templeton and J. J. Kennedy were named to the board of directors.

The IRENE KAUFMANN SETTLEMENT HOUSE quintet will open its season tomorrow night when the Jeannette Felders are met in an Allegheny County League game.

Members of the MIAMI UNIVERSITY football team will decide today on whether DUQUESNE UNIVERSITY of Pittsburgh, or Mercer of Macon, Ga., will be the postseason opponent in Miami on New Year's Day.

TEAM SEEKS GAME

The American Legion Post 565 football team coached by Jack Farwell, would like to meet the Veterans of Foreign War gridders on Thanksgiving Day on the Troy Hill playground gridiron. Any team in the lightweight division desiring this attraction call Doc at Cedar 6366.

SPARTANS LEAD ALL RIVALS

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—The Portsmouth Spartans lead the rest of the National Professional Football League both on offense and defense, the latest team statistics revealed today.

The Spartans have gained 2,160 yards in the nine games for an average of 240 yards per contest, for a narrow lead over the Boston Redskins whose average of 238½ has been gained with 2,385 yards in 10 games. Brooklyn stands third with an average of 225 6-7 and the Chicago Bears fourth with 215 4-9.

On the defense, the Spartans have allowed the opposition an average of 156 4-9 yards per game against 157 1-10 for the Green Bay Packers, the leader in this department most of the season. The Bears stand third with an average of 161 8-9 and Brooklyn fourth at 181 3-7.

Brooklyn has completed 55 of its 120 passes, or just under 46 per cent. Green Bay, with 63 completions in 143 attempted passes, stands second with 44 per cent.

Steel City Floor League Organized

The Little Five, Sheridan Arrows, First Presbyterian, American Legion, Doc Jones Club, Goodwill, Y. M. H. A. and Duke A. C. have been admitted to membership in the Steel City League.

Another division of the same league will be organized with the following clubs:

GRAPHIC GOLF

FOOTWORK

A good golf stroke requires considerable coordination from all parts of the body that are affected by the swing and this includes feet. Given an awkward, flat-footed stance and the strongest athlete would have trouble securing length. Yet a comparative lightweight using foot action transference in both the back and downswing can put the ball a considerable distance down the fairway.

Such a quality is possessed by Glenna Collett Vare, who Francis Ouimet claims has the best foot action he has ever seen. Her efficient footwork allows her full use of her body weight in the stroke and much of the length she gets can be attributed to this factor.

In the above illustration, she is poised on her toes after putting a bit of extra power into the blow. Many high-scoring golfers would find new hope if they allowed their feet to lead the way to better use of their legs, hips, and midsection in the golf swing.

ALCOHOL SHARE LIST SHOWS SOFTNESS

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Financial markets displayed a few cloudy spots today notwithstanding the fact that the gold price was again boosted a dime an ounce and international dollar rates slipped to lower levels.

While both buyers and sellers were rather timid at times, and there was quite a bit of profit-taking following yesterday's substantial rally, most stock leaders were not unduly depressed. Sterling got up about 7 cents to above $5.37 and French francs advanced .06 of a cent to more than 6.45 cents, before easing. Grains and cotton were barely steady. United States government securities were slightly lower, but there were a number of recoveries in the corporation section.

Alcohol shares were a bit heavy. National Distillers, Schenley, American Commercial and United States Industrial Alcohol sagged around 2 to 3 points. The metal group also lagged, with McIntyre Porcupine, Dome, Cerro de Pasco, Alaska Juneau and American Smelting losing 1 to 2. The rails proved a sustaining factor, issues of Santa Fe, Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central and Pennsylvania holding moderate advances. Improvement was also shown by American Can, Goodyear, Continental Can and others. United States Steel, du Pont, American Telephone, Chrysler, Western Union and Johns-Manville yielded fractions to a point or more.

Softness of the alcohols was attributed to renewed fears of high costs and heavy taxes. The Pennsylvania Senate approved the House bill imposing a tax of $2 a gallon on whisky in bonded warehouses prior to repeal. National Distillers and Schenley are principally affected by this new tariff. The tax does not apply to liquor manufactured and sold after repeal.

With the dollar declining almost daily, some foreign observers have expressed surprise that England has not already stepped in to halt the soaring pound. Others, however, feel there may be some sort of an agreement between the American authorities and the Bank of England whereby the British will remain neutral during the administrative experiment which envisages the raising of commodity prices through the depreciation of dollars.

This Anglo-American "understanding," of course, bankers say, may be merely in the rumor stage and it is considered possible the British might start reprisals when sterling gets up around the $5 level. Some financial circles, though, point out that British retaliation, through the use of the Bank of England's huge equalization fund, would be a little difficult. The English, heretofore, it was explained, have been able to keep the pound down in relation to French francs by purchasing the latter currency. But England has been able to change francs into gold, if necessary, whereas buying dollars, which are not on a gold base, might subject the British treasury to a heavy loss because the American money could not be redeemed.

GRAIN PRICES SHOW GAINS

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Influenced by unconfirmed reports of Argentine wheat crop damage from yellow stripe rust, grain prices averaged a fraction higher early today. Uncertainties of the monetary situation were apparently a check on buyers, with higher gold quotations at Washington and new rise in sterling having but little immediate stimulating effect. Opening at ¼ off to ⅝ up, wheat later showed advances all around. Corn started unchanged to ½ higher, and subsequently held near the initial limits.

In price setbacks which afterwards were witnessed, wheat more than wiped out as a result of cables from Rosario, Argentine, saying crop damage reports were exaggerated. Declines which resulted carried the market down at one stage to more than a cent a bushel below early top figures. Corn and oats mainly followed wheat and provisions went lower.

DOLLAR SHIFTS WEAKEN U. S. CREDITS

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The outstanding developments last week were the abnormal gyrations of the dollar in foreign exchange, continued flight of capital into English funds, growing pressure on the monetary system of France, and an upheaval in the administration of the U. S. Treasury.

The chief effects of these things were to discourage normal exports and to weaken our Government credit.

The elimination of the Messrs. Woodin and Acheson and the rise of Messrs. Morganthau and Myers strengthens the forces of theoretical manipulation of the dollar and indicate the theories of Prof. Warren are to be carried out.

Developments point more strongly toward some such "price" as $40 an ounce for gold and a 50-cent dollar. Thus no real "stabilization" is in sight until the dollar is forced lower, or until domestic prices average much higher.

PRICES DECLINE

The latter is the difficult thing. Last week, for example, commodity prices actually declined. Tin, rubber and certain chemicals showed the only important gains. Furthermore, price averages in foreign countries have fallen. Clearly the relation between the dollar and the pound is one thing and the dollar prices of wheat, sugar and print cloth are others.

Either we must convince our citizens that the dollar is good so that they can proceed with business plans in a normal way, or we must convince them that the dollar is really worth so little here at home that they will start another rush into commodities and equities.

We seem to be headed toward the latter course. I can see no basis for so-called "stablization" until the dollar is down, right here in America and prices are up. Sinking spells in government bonds will slow Prof. Warren up at times, but the President is now running the Treasury, and will doubtless use its resources to support its own paper. Then the experimenting will be resumed.

Uneasiness concerning monetary conditions is doubtless a drag on business. Last week, however, there were some signs of increased activity notably in the South and Southwest, and in some manufacturing centers in the Ohio-Pennsylvania, New Jersey section. It seems that in the St. Louis-Kansas City territory, the Northwest, the Pacific Coast, and probably New England, conditions on the whole are not so good.

WINTER SALES GAIN

Cold weather has stimulated sales of heavy clothing, coal, winter auto accessories and electric power.

The distribution of cotton crop loans continues to stimulate farm buying in the South, and is largely responsible for a spurt in mail order sales and automobile purchases.

In general, the use of government credit (debt) as a stimulant is increasing. Somewhat in the order of their importance I would mention: New crop loans, the new civil works program, payments on deposits in closed banks, and the public works program. Credits for export trade (with Russia and possibly South America) are in the offing.

These are all means of putting cheapened dollars into circulation. If pushed far enough, and if government bonds are supported, another spurt in business activity seems probable.

The less "favorable" items in the business news (aside from currency instability) are the more-than-seasonal decline in railway car loadings last week and the October slump in factory payrolls.

Evidently the NRA stimulus to employment has ceased, as the number employed barely made the small increase normal for the season. More than that, payrolls actually declined. This means less working time per laborer. It also means reduced purchasing power.

MEMBER BANKS LOANS DOWN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(AP.)—The Federal Reserve Board's condition statement of weekly reporting member banks in 90 leading cities showed the following summary of principal assets and liabilities (in millions of dollars):

Loans on securities to brokers and dealers were $707,000,000, a figure $32,000,000 less than the week previous and $363,000,000 greater than a year ago.

European Sugar Consumption Up

NEW YORK, Nov. 21—Consumption of sugar in 12 European countries for the first month of the 1933-34 crop year increased 51,764 tons, or 9½ per cent, compared to a year ago. Production showed a decline of 27,159 tons, or 14½ per cent, according to B. W. Dyer & Co. Stocks on October 1 last showed a decline of 530,788 tons, or 26.3 per cent, compared with a year ago.

In Memoriam 1-B

IN loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Nellie Llewellyn, who passed away one year ago today, November 21, 1932.
For days and nights she bore her pain;
But for relief, was all in vain.
But God in the one who knows best,
So He gave her eternal rest.
Every day our minds wander to the grave so far away;

In memory of John Spear, beloved husband and father, who died one year ago today. Sadly missed by wife and children.

The Girl Who Won

By MAY CHRISTIE

"You're different from any other girl I've ever seen," said Tony O'Brien in his charming Irish voice as the canoe, skillfully piloted by himself, slid through the water.

As his voice trailed away, there was no sound to break the silence except the faint splash of the paddle and the cry of wild fowl.

Spot of enchantment! Beauty! Nollie's soul was soaked in the wild loveliness of the nearness of this handsome Tony.

THE CHOSEN ONE

Chosen out of all the world was she. She was a being apart. She was beloved by the most wonderful man on earth—a demi-god.

"Glad? Why, Nollie, that's a weak and foolish word. I feel as though I own the whole earth!"

"You like me just as much as that? It isn't make-believe? You—they say you're such a success—with women?"

"Great guns! Who told you that? Was it Mrs. Judson or Rhoda Vane?"

"Then what on earth—?"

And flowers of many colors grew in the long lush grass. There was the sweet scent of locust trees, of myrtle and of honeysuckle.

NOLLIE EXCITED

"Now I will come and sit by you." Tony made the canoe fast to an old tree stump.

"Have one?"

"No thanks."

Her heart beat so loudly she was afraid he would hear it.

It was as though the whole world stood still in an enchanted silence . . . waiting for the moment.

What would he say? Would he confess his love for her. And would she tell him what was in her own heart?

* * *

"I want you," said Tony, in a deep and vibrant voice. "I swear I want you as I've wanted no other woman."

"You're wonderful," said Nollie Day. "You're wonderful—but you know nothing of me, really. That makes it still more amazing."

"Not amazing in the least. D'you take me for a fool? Don't you know I've been wandering through an arid, parched-up desert—oh, for years—thirsty, and longing—longing for someone—"

"Me?"

"You! You, little Nollie Day and no one else. You, the ideal woman!"

"I am not that. You don't know me. I'm just ordinary—humdrum."

"And with eyes like yours! Don't you know that eyes are the windows of the soul, and that I can see—or sometimes I think I can see—clear through yours down to what's at the bottom of them?"

"You mean the real me, don't you, Tony? If I were only worthy! If I were only someone important!"

"I hate important, egotistic women. I love you just as you are. You're my ideal girl, Nollie!"

PROFESSES LOVE

Her heart rose in her bosom at those words as if it would choke her.

He was so near to her in the canoe. He slipped an arm about her, drew her closer.

"Nollie, I love you. Say that you love me?" His young and ardent lips sought hers. He drew her head down.

* * *

It was six o'clock when Nollie awoke to the passing of the hours, and made Tony head the canoe homewards.

He left the backwater reluctantly. It was hard for both of them to come back to mind and matters.

"Tomorrow at the same time you'll be at the rendezvous? You won't fail me, Nollie?"

She faltered, happily: "Not if you still want me, Tony?"

"Want you? Are you crazy, girl? Don't you understand I'll be simply counting the hours? That I'm in love with you?"

"Honest?"—wistfully.

"Cross my heart, and if it isn't true, may I die the very next minute!"

They moored the craft at the little wooden shed and walked as though they trod on air towards the ranch house.

"Please don't come any farther. I don't want any of them to see us—not just yet," pleaded Nollie.

"But I'll come up tonight? Even if we can't be alone, I'll have the blessed privilege of looking at you, darling," begged Tony.

Synopsis

Nollie Day, stenographer at an exclusive hotel, is befriended by wealthy Mrs. Judson, a widow. Nollie goes to a theater in place of Mrs. Judson, where she meets handsome Tony O'Brien. She reveals her own identity but Tony does not hear her. Next day, Tony telephones and learns Mrs. Judson has gone abroad. Nollie wants to clear her identity, but is unable to get in touch with Tony. Mrs. Judson returns and ask Nollie to become her secretary and visit her ranch. Nollie accompanies Mrs. Judson to a garden party and meets Rhoda Vane. Rhoda seems to dislike Nollie. Nollie and the widow leave for the ranch after inviting Rhoda. Nollie is surprised when she meets Tony near the ranch. Tony is pleased when she tells him she is not Mrs. Judson. Rhoda visits the ranch and it develops that she knows Tony. Rhoda embarrasses Nollie in many ways.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Beauty has marched gallantly forward the last 10 years. She has her complexion fairly well organized and delicately tinted. Her hair shines like a mirror and is beautifully arranged. She has learned so much about lines, colors and cute dress tricks that the smooth tongued saleswoman can no longer talk her into buying the wrong model. But she hasn't learned how to carry herself splendidly. Yes, gentle reader, we are harping on the same old theme. We are urging you to stand tall, walk tall, keep the chest cavity expanded and lifted, hips tucked under, tummy flat. Poor posture brings a family of beauty ills—humped shoulders, thick waistline, haunches, a back that is no bargain at all. Worse than all else, it permits internal organs to drop from their natural positions, a condition that is responsible for digestive ills.

The permanent wave accomplishes a miracle. It gives to straight hair the curl quality, and that's a lot. It is not to be expected that it will fall into wide, fluid undulations. That effect must be achieved by means of the finger wave. Brushing does not destroy the wave, it merely disrupts the pattern. If soap suds remain in the strands after the shampoo, there'll be no curl. The permanent is no longer a luxury, it is a necessity since tress ends must coil in ringlets.

Approved for Pittsburgh City Schools, Allegheny County Schools and Parish Schools of Pittsburgh Diocese

GARIBALDI MEETS KING VICTOR EMMANUEL II (1860)

The nineteenth century revolution against the Hapsburgs raged also in Italy (1848), but was crushed. Count Cavour, an able Sardinian statesman of King Victor Emmanuel II, secured the alliance with Napoleon III (Emperor of France since 1852), and in the ensuing warfare of 1859 Austria lost Lombardy to Sardinia.

Guiseppe Garibaldi, an Italian patriot, brought Naples and Sicily under his dictatorship in 1860, but withdrew in favor of a United Italy, including Lombardy and Sardinia, under the reign of Victor Emmanuel II. (World History)

CORRUPTION—DISGRACE OF NATIONS

Gen. Grant, succeeding Johnson in the presidency (1869), declared the South reconstructed before his first term ended. Misgovernment in the South by incompetent politicians found its worthy counterpart in the North. Dishonesty became common among officials, culminating in amazing cases such as the "Tweed Ring" in New York, named after its leader (padding bills for public works), the "Credit Mobilier Scandal" (bribing legislators with stocks sold to them below market prices), the Whisky Ring (embezzling tax money), etc. (United States History)

"TWELFTH NIGHT" OR "WHAT YOU WILL"

Shakespeare took the main plot of this comedy from Plautus and Italian writers, endowing it with rich and rollicking humor. The story hinges on close resemblance of the twins, Viola and Sebastian. Shipwrecked, they reach Illyria, not knowing of each other's presence. Viola—in man's attire—becomes the page of the Duke Orsino, to whom she feels attracted, but charms unwillingly Oliva instead; the Duke woos Oliva, who spurns him.

CHESTNUT TREE (Castanea Dentata) (General Science)

The chestnut tree, with four other species, forms the genus Castanea of the Beech family (Fagaceae). The chestnut tree has alternate, oblong, lanceolate, sharp-pointed, toothed leaves; staminate flowers in crowded clusters along ament; pistillate flowers are at base of upper aments as globular involucres. Fruit is a bur, covered with prickly spines containing 1 to 5 nuts. Range: Maine-Arkansas, growing on almost every soil except very wet or limestone ground. Its wood is light—strength decreasing with age of tree—durable, rich in tannic acid; it is used for railroad ties, telegraph poles, cheap furniture and to manufacture tannic acid.

ROTIFERA AND MOLLUSCOIDEA—SEVENTH AND EIGHTH ANIMAL PHYLUM

Rotifera (about 500 species), small aquatic animals have three body regions: Head, trunk, tail. They have sense organs (eyes, tentacles) and may be sessile, colonial or free swimming (above, left). They survive years of desiccation.

Mulluscoidea (about 2,000 species) have a tentacle bearing ridge (lophophore) about the mouth. The class Brachiopoda shows first the development of heart and circulatory system. Above, right: One species, the Magellania lenticularis. (General Science)

HEATING THE HOUSE—FIREPLACE (General Science)

Our bodies generate heat by burning food. Part of this heat should be given off by radiation and conduction. The proper balance is obtained at about 68° F. to 72° F. If the temperature of the room falls below 60° F. the house has to be heated individually by the room or centrally from a heating plant. Heat is produced by chemical combination of fuels (wood, coal, coke, gas, oil) with the oxygen of the atmosphere transforming chemical energy into heat. The oldest form of heating system used today is the fireplace. It is an open recess in the wall below the chimney giving heat mostly by radiation.

Above: Fireplace of modern design for burning wood or coal. It is most artistic and cheerful in its effect, but least economical since about 90 per cent of the heat escapes through the chimney. It is built only as an auxiliary, mostly for decorative purposes.

BLEACHING POWDER (Chemistry)

Bleaching powder ($CaOCl_2$) is used for destroying color and disinfection. It is a yellowish powder and obtained by passing chlorine gas over slaked lime [Ca (OH) 2] shown above. Reaction: $Ca(OH)_2 + Cl_2 = CaOCl_2 + H_2O$. With acids it evolves chlorine, which combines with the hydrogen of water liberating oxygen; this in "nascent" state burns the organic coloring matter (bleaching). Reactions: $CaOCl_2 + H_2SO_4 = CaSO_4 + H_2O + Cl_2$ and $Cl_2 + H_2O = 2HCl + O$. Bleaching powder decomposes in air to hypochlorous acid (HClO), a good disinfectant.

Master Tricks!

It is assumed that all the boys and girls of Pittsburgh and vicinity have been following the adventures of "Inspector Day" in his hunt for "The Duke." Will this master detective apprehend this master criminal and how will he do it? Every boy and girl sending in an advance solution to the problem before tomorrow night, written in 50 words or less, will be mailed a dandy magic trick with full instructions how to do it, whether your solution is right or wrong. Send your letter to "Inspector Day," Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

We'll Take a Turkey Leg

Got to fix up November so we get our elections later and our turkey earlier.

Through the vagaries of a careless calendar we must wait until the last day of the month for a bite at the stuffed buzzard.

Fortunately, all the elections are over and we can concentrate on the giant Texas sparrow and the Rhode Island strutter. Both birds are nominated on the fusion menu.

At one time Rhode Island had a monopoly on the Thursday trotter. It's soil was peculiarly adapted for the nurture and education of the turkey. Now Texas raises them in flocks of 50,000 and makes 'em walk to the table under their own power.

There is a science in coddling an egg along until it is worth 30 cents a pound. We don't mean hens or ganders which will thrive where cactus would ask for a change of venue.

A turkey is fragile, sensitive and cultured. It amazed us to

When a turkey gets damp claws he just naturally rolls over on his upholstered back and waves his feet feebly at anybody who happens to be walking by. That's why he flourishes under sunny skies on sandy ground.

We are not seeking to start a turkey-calling contest between Rhode Island and Texas. We've sampled turks from both sovereign commonwealths and they all chewed fine. We specialize on the left leg from the ankle to the hip and we claim to do a mighty good job of diagnosing and research.

When we get finished there ain't enough to start a war between ants. You can eulogize the white meat and immortalize the wings, but we will take the leg and reduce it to the sixth decimal point by scientific incisor surgery. The molars and the bicuspids have gone, but we still have old faithful left to gnaw a turkey leg or bite a cigar.

Roosevelt's Humane Civil Works Program Will Quicken Industrial Recovery

AS ITS OBJECTIVES are disclosed, President Roosevelt's civil works program—designed as it is to put 4,000,000 men to work at a living wage before thirty days have passed—shows itself more and more worthy of wholehearted approbation.

When the program was first announced, the Hearst newspapers found it gratifying to give the proposal their enthusiastic support, and to pay to the President himself the respect and praise that his courage and vigor deserved—and these sentiments have been confirmed and strengthened by Mr. Roosevelt's address at the White House on Wednesday last to governors, mayors and state and city relief officials.

In the earliest onset of the depression, the Hearst papers became outstanding advocates of a comprehensive public works program as the key to national economic recovery.

Their recommendation of a five billion dollar unemployment relief appropriation received the immediate approval of a large number of authorities in sociological, economic, industrial and political fields of thought.

UNDER a reactionary Republican administration, however, little or nothing could be accomplished. President Hoover scoffed at the idea of a five billion dollar prosperity loan, and the jobless and dispossessed were left to the scanty ministrations of private charity, while government pursued the fatuous policy of "pouring money in at the top"—as if human suffering could be relieved and stagnant trade revitalized by "unfreezing" ill-advised speculative loans and allowing bankers to hoard up vast reserves of idle money.

So it required the election of a Roosevelt and a Democratic administration to change this heartless federal attitude.

The new President started immediately in the right direction by procuring work-relief appropriations of three and a half billions of dollars from a sympathetic Congress. The sum in itself was not sufficient for the nation's requirement, but it was large enough to get diversified public projects going, and progress has been made—howbeit, slowly.

It is to take up the slack in this federal public works program that the President has instituted the civil works program, dispensing at a stroke with red tape and technical delays and demanding the utmost speed.

In this, the President heeds again his own common sense motto, "put first things first"—for certainly there is no public task more peremptory than sparing to as great a number of our citizens as possible the bitter privations and despair of another jobless winter, and the un-American humiliations of the dole system.

INDEED, since the depression began the important thing and the effective thing for the government to do has been to relieve unemployment directly as fast as it can, and thereby to stimulate private industry so that industry can in turn reabsorb all employment.

And the government must and should lead in re-employment efforts.

Any attempt to compel industry to relieve unemployment before industry is able to do so is merely to retard industrial recovery, and actually to prevent industry from reaching the point where it can properly and permanently provide general employment.

The President's civil works program is, of course, to be administered as a relief measure—it contemplates employing 2,000,000 jobless persons and re-employing 2,000,000 others now receiving less than subsistence wages. At once, with their families and dependents, perhaps 15,000,000 persons will be helped over the winter.

But an employment program on such a scale must necessarily have its effects and be measured in economic terms as well as humanitarian.

Such a program, consistently carried through, points definitely to industrial recovery. For by the time the three-months emergency program is ended, the President expects that vast projects under the permanent public works program will have reached the pick and shovel stage, and these projects with reinvigorated private enterprise will provide other new jobs needed.

TWO POINTS in the President's address of Wednesday emphasized both the economic and the humanitarian features of the plan. Toward hastening the recovery process, the President urged the state representatives to proceed with all speed—"speed," he commented, "is essential." And he adjured the local representatives to avoid any suspicion of politics.

"I would like the general rule adopted," he said, "that no person connected with the administration of this $4,000,000,000 will in any single case... ask whether a person needing relief or work is a Republican, Democrat, Socialist or anything else."

All in all, President Roosevelt has proceeded in a manner to gratify and encourage his countrymen.

Under his leadership, the federal government has been energized into meeting the inevitable human problems of an economic depression in a civilized way.

After long useless debate and heart-sickening delays, the country has happily at length reached the stage of swift and constructive action.

Too Many School Boards

Education Is in a Bad Plight, Partly Because of the Failure to Modernize Government

One of the reasons why public education throughout the United States is in a perilous plight today is to be found in the failure of the several states to modernize their machinery of government so that each state can effectively support and control its system of public education.

Under the American system of government, the state is the legislative and administrative unit in the management and control of the public schools.

A recent survey by the United States Office of Education shows that within the 48 states today there are approximately 127,000 school districts or administrative units under the control of 424,000 school board members.

The average number of teachers to a unit is seven. There is one school board member to every two teachers and in several of the states the school board members actually outnumber the teachers.

In some districts, their power in school matters is limited to executing the will of the voters with respect to specific questions. In other districts these boards exercise complete control of all school affairs.

In the light of the startling facts about school administration within the several states, developed by this Federal Survey, the practical remedy prescribed by Dean Judd, of the School of Education in the University of Chicago, will appeal to thoughtful Americans.

"A movement to abolish school boards is in order," says Dean Judd, and "should be supported by all who believe in the simplification of government.

"Schools have become so complicated that they require administrative guidance by experts.

"It would be far better for schools in general if superintendents of schools were appointed directly by civil authorities.

"The internal administration of the schools should then be turned over in full to the superintendent.

"The superintendents as experts, would be answerable, as they are not now, for the conduct of the schools and the civil authorities, who must always have control directly or indirectly of the financial resources of the community would be unable to escape responsibility."

What this country needs today is more and better schools, manned by better trained and better paid teachers.

These the country cannot afford until state and local governments are simplified and the number of their officials, including school boards, drastically reduced.

A Gratifying Success

The Attendance at the Sunday Symphony Concert Justifies Further Changes in the Blue Law

How eager the people of Pittsburgh are for good entertainment on Sundays was demonstrated day before yesterday when 4,000 persons attended the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra's concert. It was the first legal performance on Sunday of a symphony program for which admission was charged, and it was the largest audience that ever attended a symphonic concert in Pittsburgh.

But the Blue Law should be further modified to permit Sunday movies.

Philippines Hail Prospect Of Roosevelt Visit

By James T. Williams, Jr.

TREMENDOUS enthusiasm is reported throughout the Philippine Islands at the prospect of an official visit from President Roosevelt next summer.

This is not surprising for several reasons. Mr. Roosevelt would be the first President of the United States to land in the Philippines. Both Mr. Taft and Mr. Coolidge had hoped to get there while President, but pressure of affairs of state nearer home prevented.

Mr. Taft went to the Philippines first as president of the Philippine Civil Commission sent out by President McKinley in 1900, and was inaugurated civil governor a year later. His last visit was in 1906 when he went as Secretary of War of the first President Roosevelt to open the first Philippine Assembly. The Assembly was the beginning of what is now the insular Legislature.

* * *

The President's Good Appointments

BUT there is another reason why the prospect of a visit from the Roosevelt now in the White House is such welcome news to the Philippine people at this time. The Roosevelt administration has made a much better record to date than did its predecessor in administering Philippine affairs. This is particularly true in the appointments the President has made to Philippine offices.

His first choice for Governor-General of the islands is now Mr. Roosevelt's Attorney-General, Mr. Cummings. He succeeded to the cabinet portfolio intended for the late Senator Walsh, of Montana. Governor-General Murphy, of Michigan, was then appointed in the belief that his administrative experience and executive talent qualified him for useful service at Manila.

Recently the President has appointed a vice Governor, who will be ex-officio secretary of education and Public Health. He has also appointed several judges and an auditor. In each case Mr. Roosevelt has disregarded the recommendations of "the spoilsmen" of his party and tried to man the Philippine government with men of character and capacity.

* * *

Final Decision Rests On Congress

THE efforts of the President in this regard are not only well understood but thoroughly appreciated in the islands. If Mr. Roosevelt finds it possible to include the Philippines in his swing around the circle of "overseas America" next summer he will get the thanks of the government and people of the islands for protecting them from political exploitation.

A final decision regarding the President's proposed cruise in the Pacific must await the adjournment of the next session of the Congress. Instead of meeting in December, the regular session will not commence until January 3 of next year. This is one of the changes provided for in the Twentieth Amendment to the Federal Constitution, which went into effect last month.

If Congress can finish its work in time to adjourn in May or early June of next year, the President, aboard one of the Navy's 10,000-ton cruisers, will go first to Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands, and then to the Panama Canal. From the canal he will go to Hawaii, where the reorganization of the government is badly needed. If there is then time to extend his cruise to the Philippines and "all's quiet along the Potomac," the President will be under tremendous pressure to accept the invitation, which a Philippine mission, headed by Senate President Quezon, is now bringing from Manila to Washington.

Modern communications make it entirely feasible for the President to keep in close touch with the federal city throughout the Atlantic-Pacific cruise he hopes to make next summer.

If he gets as far as the Philippines it will be to the advantage of both the American and Philippine peoples to await Mr. Roosevelt's study of Philippine problems on Philippine soil before attempting further legislation on Philippine matters. This would make for "peace in the Pacific."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

—By O. O. McIntyre—

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—No one likely plays a more conspicuous part in the drama of Broadway and yet remains so aloof from its sham than Maj. Edward Bowes. To familiars and to his wife, the long-time and deserved stage favorite, Margaret Illington, he is "Eddie."

He was selected by Messmore Kendall, the owner, to open what was then the world's largest movie theater, the Capitol, and has been at the helm since. He introduced Roxy in the larger type of extravagant stage spectacles. And he is one of the pioneers of radio who endures.

Aside from managerial and broadcasting duties, he is an executive in one of the major movie studios as well as director in a number of industrial organizations. His art-filled apartment over the theater he directs has been the scene of some of the most notable of the celebrity gatherings.

It was he who induced Ethel Barrymore, Mary Garden and such to make their first cinema cathedral appearances. San Francisco-born, he dreams of returning some day to Nob Hill. In the meantime he does much to energize a now anaemic thoroughfare and spends odd moments raising dahlias in an up-the-Hudson arcadia.

* * *

They were window shopping in that achingly mute manner of young lovers. Before an avenue's jewelry window they halted to gaze in blissful absorption at a string of pearls. "Flashy!" she murmured. "Gee, but wouldn't they look swell?" he breathed. And the stillness suggested how full two hearts can be. Then Dante and Beatrice, with a laugh, came out of their dream and moved on. If one could tempt Fate and peer into their lives 10 years from now!

* * *

And there's a pinch of drama about young love in public restaurants. Tonight at the Bijou they sat next table—a youth and his girl. He was at his conversational best and she mooned in admiration across the table top. Intoxicated by his temporary preeminence, he leaned toward her and gazed with that longing Ghetto children have for cake in a bakery. One had an impression their feet touched beneath the table. Her eyes go flicker-flicker, she languishes and suddenly nibbles at an olive she doesn't want.

* * *

I plopped into Big Dick Butler the other evening—the first meeting since he became a literary mug. "Dock Walloper," which had quite a sale among New Yorkers, is the story of his Donnybrook-Fair-like career. A product of Hell's Kitchen, he is the man who smuggled Harry Thaw out of Matteawan and fought his way up from slum gutters to the New York Assembly. Also he knew more of the inside of the Becker-Rosenthal murder than anyone outside the principals. He is confessedly a bit of a rogue, booming voiced and exploiting a bland breeziness. But he has stuck by his neighbors. That counts in Hell's Kitchen!

* * *

But the New York character fascinating me most of all was Chuck Conners, self-styled Mayor of Chinatown, who invented himself and his role. They glorified him in a recent movie but Chuck and his lingo could never be translated. Much of his original jargon Broadway has picked up and given impression it is its own. I met Chuck but once with Francis Albertanti in Nigger Mike Salter's blowzy bar in a curve of Chinatown. "Chuck," said Albertanti, "you remember McIntyre?" We shook hands. Soitenly," he replied, "I never forgits loose spenders." Although I'd never seen him before in my life, naturally I had to buy for his gang.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

—By Aline Michaelis—

The Bare House

When I go into a house that is bare,
A staring window, a table, a chair,
No flower on the sill, no hearth-flames warm,
I know the dweller within those walls

I know he would never regret or delay
If a summons should come that would take him away
From the dull reproach of that naked place
Which he has not sought to lend beauty or grace,
That house which, although he has lived there for years,

And so, when I look at a life, as well,
That adds nothing of beauty or joy, to swell
I know that with never a pang or a doubt
The tenant there will be glad of release
